Foreword

THE EUROPA YEAR BOOK is a two-volume world survey and directory which has become established as a basic source of information about every country in the world and all the principal international organizations. This is the eleventh annual edition since it was reshaped into two volumes from a looseleaf information service (EUROPA for the European countries, ORBIS for those outside Europe).

This eleventh edition, like its predecessors, has been thoroughly revised and brought up to date. In addition to the normal updating of information, many improvements have been made. In the section on International Organizations (Part I), the chapter on the Latin American Free Trade Association has been re-organized, with the addition of new material, while information on the new agreement on financing the European Communities has been added to the chapter on the European Communities. The chapters on The International Court of Justice, IFC, UNIDO, UNCTAD, ECAFE, UNICEF and IPI have all been expanded, and a chapter on the Caribbean Free Trade Association appears for the first time this year. Once again the list of smaller regional and international bodies has been extensively revised, and more than eighty new organizations have been added to the list.

Part II of the first volume of THE EUROPA YEAR BOOK is a country by country survey of European countries. In this edition the chapters on Albania, U.S.S.R. and Yugoslavia have been extensively revised. The sections on the Union Republics in the U.S.S.R. chapter have been considerably expanded. All the other countries have been thoroughly revised, and the task of expanding the articles on Social Welfare and Education in the various Introductory Surveys has been continued. In addition, general articles on Finance have been added to the chapters on the Federal Republic of Germany and Switzerland, and an article on the Press has been added to the chapter on Austria.

The work of compiling and revising the information contained in THE EUROPA YEAR BOOK would be impossible without the continued generous co-operation of many individuals and organizations throughout the world; once again the editors express here their thanks for contributions of new information too numerous to be acknowledged individually, which nevertheless are always warmly appreciated.

PART I

INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

THE UNITED NATIONS

First Avenue, New York City, New York, U.S.A.

Founded in 1945 to maintain international peace and security and to develop international co-operation in economic, social, cultural and humanitarian problems.

THE UNITED NATIONS CHARTER

PREAMBLE

We the peoples of the United Nations determined

TO SAVE succeeding generations from the scourge of war, which twice in our lifetime has brought untold sorrow to mankind, and

TO REAFFIRM faith in fundamental human rights, in the dignity and worth of the human person, in the equal rights of men and women and of nations large and small, and

TO ESTABLISH conditions under which justice and respect for the obligations arising from treaties and other sources of international law can be maintained, and

TO PROMOTE social progress and better standards of life in larger freedom,

And for these ends

TO PRACTICE tolerance and live together in peace with one another as good neighbours, and

TO UNITE our strength to maintain international peace and security, and

TO ENSURE, by the acceptance of principles and the institution of methods, that armed force shall not be used, save in the common interest, and

TO EMPLOY international machinery for the promotion of the economic and social advancement of all peoples,

Have resolved to combine our efforts to accomplish these aims

Accordingly, our respective governments, through representatives assembled in the city of San Francisco, who have exhibited their full powers found to be in good and due form, have agreed to the present Charter of the United Nations and do hereby establish an international organization to be known as the United Nations.

ORIGIN

The United Nations was a name devised by President Franklin D. Roosevelt. It was first used in the Declaration by United Nations of January 1st, 1942, when representatives of twenty-six nations pledged their governments to continue fighting together against the Axis powers.

The United Nations Charter was drawn up by the representatives of fifty countries at the United Nations Conference on International Organization, which met at San Francisco from April 25th to June 26th, 1945. The representatives deliberated on the basis of proposals worked out by representatives of China, the U.S.S.R., the United Kingdom and the United States at Dumbarton Oaks in August-October 1944. The Charter was signed on June 26th, 1945. Poland, not represented at the Conference, signed it later but nevertheless became one of the original fifty-one members.

The United Nations officially came into existence on October 24th, 1945, when the Charter had been ratified by China, France, the U.S.S.R., the United Kingdom and the United States, and by a majority of other signatories. October 24th is now universally celebrated as United Nations Day.

PURPOSES AND PRINCIPLES

The purposes of the United Nations are

- To maintain international peace and security;
- To develop friendly relations among nations;
- To co-operate internationally in solving international economic, social, cultural and humanitarian problems and in promoting respect for human rights and fundamental freedoms;
- To be a centre for harmonizing the actions of nations in attaining these common ends.

The United Nations acts in accordance with these principles

- It is based on the sovereign equality of all its members.
- All members are to fulfil in good faith their Charter obligations.
- They are to settle their international disputes by peaceful means and without endangering peace, security and justice.
- They are to refrain in their international relations from the threat or use of force against other states.
- They are to give the United Nations every assistance in action it takes in accordance with the Charter, and not to assist states against which preventive or enforcement action is being taken.
- The United Nations is to ensure that states which are not members act in accordance with these principles in so far as it is necessary to maintain international peace and security.

Nothing in the Charter is to authorize the United Nations to intervene in matters which are purely the national concern of any state.

The official languages of the United Nations are Chinese, English, French, Russian and Spanish. Its working languages are English and French. Spanish is also a working language of the General Assembly and of the Economic and Social Council.

Membership of the United Nations is open to all peace-loving nations which accept the obligations of the United Nations Charter and, in the judgment of the Organization, are able and willing to carry out these obligations.

The original members of the United Nations are those countries which signed the Declaration by United Nations of January 1st, 1942, or took part in the San Francisco Conference, and which signed and ratified the Charter.

Other countries can be admitted by the General Assembly upon the recommendation of the Security Council. A two-thirds majority vote by the Assembly is required.

Members may be suspended or expelled by the General Assembly on recommendation of the Security Council. They may be suspended if the Security Council is taking enforcement action against them or expelled if they persistently violate the principles of the Charter. The Security Council can restore its rights to a suspended member.

THE MAIN ORGANS

GENERAL ASSEMBLY

The General Assembly is the main deliberative organ of the United Nations.

MEMBERS

All members of the UN. Each delegation consists of not more than five representatives and five alternates with as many advisers, technical advisers and experts as may be required.

ORGANIZATION

President for 24th Session (1969-70): Miss ANGIE E. BROOKS (Liberia).

Vice-Presidents: Barbados, Chile, China (Taiwan), Denmark, France, Ghana, Indonesia, Jordan, Luxembourg, Malawi, Mongolia, Nigeria, Panama, U.S.S.R., U.K., U.S.A., Yugoslavia.

The Assembly meets regularly once a year, but special sessions may also be held. It has the power to adopt recommendations only, not binding decisions. Important questions are decided by a two-thirds majority. Each nation has one vote and each vote is equal.

PRINCIPAL COMMITTEES

Main Committees: There are seven committees on which all members have a right to be represented: Political and Security; Special Political; Economic and Financial; Social, Humanitarian and Cultural; Trust and Non-Self-Governing Territories; Administrative and Budgetary; Legal.

General (Steering) Committee: twenty-five members.

Credentials Committee: nine members.

Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions: standing committee of twelve members.

Committee on Contributions: standing committee of twelve members.

SUBSIDIARY AND AD HOC COMMITTEES

International Law Commission: f. 1947; twenty-five members; normally meets in Geneva once a year; promotes development of international law and its codification.

Peace Observation Commission: f. 1950; fourteen members, including five permanent members of the Security Council; can be used by the General Assembly or Security Council to observe and report on areas of international tension.

Disarmament Commission: f. 1952; all members of the General Assembly.

Disarmament Committee: f. 1961; twenty-six members (originally established as the Eighteen-Nation Committee on Disarmament).

UN Conciliation Commission for Palestine: f. 1948; three members.

United Nations Scientific Advisory Committee: f. 1954; seven members.

Committee on the Peaceful Uses of Outer Space: f. 1961; twenty-eight members.

Scientific Committee on the Effects of Atomic Radiation: fifteen members.

Special Committee on the Ending of Colonialism: twenty-four members.

Special Committee on the Policies of Apartheid of the Government of the Republic of South Africa: f. 1962; seventeen members.

Special Committee on Peace-Keeping Operations: f. 1965; thirty-three members.

Council for Namibia (S.W. Africa): f. 1967; eleven members.

Committee on Conferences: f. 1966; fifteen members.

Special Committee on the Question of Defining Aggression: f. 1967; thirty-five members.

Commission on International Trade Law (UNCITRAL): f. 1966 to further the harmonization and unification of the law of international trade; twenty-nine members took office in January, 1968.

Committee on Sanctions for Southern Rhodesia: f. 1968; seven members.

Committee on the Peaceful Uses of the Sea-Bed and the Ocean Floor beyond the Limits of National Jurisdiction: f. 1968; forty-two members.

Preparatory Committee for the Second UN Development Decade: f. 1968; fifty-four members.

SECURITY COUNCIL

The task of the Security Council is to promote international peace and security in all parts of the world.

MEMBERS

Permanent members

China (Taiwan)	U S S R.	United Kingdom
France		U.S.A.

The remaining ten members are normally elected by the General Assembly for two-year periods

Until December 1970 Colombia, Finland, Nepal, Spain, Zambia.

Until December 1971 Burundi, Nicaragua, Poland, Sierra Leone, Syria

ORGANIZATION

The Security Council has the right to investigate any dispute or situation which might lead to friction between two or more countries, and such disputes or situations may be brought to the Council's attention either by one of its members, by any member state, by the General Assembly, by the Secretary-General or even, under certain conditions, by a state which is not a member of the United Nations

The Council has the right to recommend ways and means of peaceful settlement and, in certain circumstances, the actual terms of settlement

In the event of a threat to or breach of international peace or an act of aggression, the Council has powers to take "enforcement" measures in order to restore international peace and security. These include severance of communications and of economic and diplomatic relations and, if required, action by air, land and sea forces

All members of the United Nations are pledged by the Charter to make available to the Security Council, on its call and in accordance with special agreements, the armed forces, assistance and facilities necessary to maintain international peace and security. These agreements, however, have not yet been concluded.

The Council is organized to be able to function continuously. The Presidency of the Council is held monthly in turn by the member states in English alphabetical order.

Each member of the Council has one vote. On procedural matters decisions are made by the affirmative vote of any nine members. For decisions on other matters the required nine affirmative votes must include the votes of the five permanent members. This is the rule of "great power unanimity" popularly known as the "veto" privilege. This right has so far been exercised 113 times, as follows: China (1), France (4), U S S R (105), United Kingdom (3), U S A (0) (as at February, 1970)

In practice, an abstention by one of the permanent members is not regarded as a veto. Any member, whether permanent or non-permanent, must abstain from voting in any decision concerning the pacific settlement of a dispute to which it is a party

SUBSIDIARY BODY

Military Staff Committee: Consists of the Chiefs of Staff (or their representatives) of the five permanent members of the Security Council and assists the Council on all military questions.

ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL COUNCIL—ECOSOC

Promotes world co-operation on economic, social, cultural and humanitarian problems

MEMBERS

Twenty-seven members are elected by the General Assembly for three-year terms: nine are elected each year.

Current membership
Until December 1970 Argentina, Bulgaria, Chad, Congo (Brazzaville), India, Ireland, Japan, U S A, Upper Volta

Until December 1971 Indonesia, Jamaica, Norway, Pakistan, Sudan, U S S R, U K, Uruguay, Yugoslavia.

Until December 1972 Brazil, Ceylon, France, Ghana, Greece, Italy, Kenya, Peru, Tunisia

ORGANIZATION

The Council, normally meeting twice a year in New York and Geneva, is mainly a central policy-making and co-ordinating organ. It has a co-ordinating function between UN and the specialized agencies, and also makes consultative arrangements with approved voluntary or non-governmental organizations which work within the sphere of its activities. The Council has functional and regional commissions to carry out much of its detailed work

President (1970) J B P MARAMIS (Indonesia)

THE TRUSTEESHIP COUNCIL

New York City

One of the six main organs of the UN, the Trusteeship Council supervises United Nations' Trust Territories through the administering authorities to promote the political, economic, social and educational advancement of the inhabitants towards self-government or independence.

TERRITORIES UNDER TRUSTEESHIP SYSTEM

New Guinea (Australia).

Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands (U.S.A.).

MEMBERS OF TRUSTEESHIP COUNCIL

The Council consists of member states administering Trust Territories, permanent members of the Security Council which do not administer Trust Territories, and enough other non-administering countries elected by the Assembly for three-year terms to ensure that the membership is equally divided between administering and non-administering members.

Administering Countries:

Australia
United States

Other Countries:

China (Taiwan)
France
United Kingdom
U.S.S.R.
Liberia

ORGANIZATION

The Council meets once a year, generally in June. Each member has one vote, and decisions are made by a simple majority of the members present and voting. A new President is elected at the beginning of the Council's regular session each year.

The Council is under the authority of the General Assembly for all its territories except the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands. This has been designated a strategic area, and the supervisory functions of the United Nations are, in its case, exercised by the Trusteeship Council under the authority of the Security Council.

PROCEDURE AND POWERS

Origin. The International Court of Justice operates in accordance with a Statute annexed to the UN Charter, which is based on the Statute of the former Permanent Court of International Justice, established in 1920 under the League of Nations and dissolved in 1946. It continues the work of the latter, references conferring jurisdiction on the Permanent Court in treaties or conventions still in force being deemed to be references to the present Court.

Disputes may be brought before the Court only by States.

The following States may bring disputes before the Court:

1. All members of the UN, which are ipso facto parties to the Statute.
2. Other parties to the Statute not members of the UN, on conditions laid down by the General Assembly on the recommendation of the Security Council (Liechtenstein, San Marino, Switzerland).
3. States which are not parties to the Statute, in certain circumstances and under conditions laid down by the Security Council (Federal Republic of Germany, Republic of Viet-Nam).

Advisory Opinions on legal questions may be requested by the General Assembly and the Security Council and by other organs and specialized agencies of the UN. The Court has given thirteen advisory opinions.

The Jurisdiction of the Court comprises

1. All cases which the parties refer to it.
2. All matters specially provided for in treaties in force.
3. Legal disputes between States which have voluntarily recognized as compulsory the jurisdiction of the Court for specified classes of disputes. Forty-five States have accepted the optional clause of the Statute which confers this compulsory jurisdiction. Australia, Belgium, Cambodia, Canada, China, Colombia, Denmark, Dominican Republic, El Salvador, Finland, France, Gambia, Haiti, Honduras, India, Israel, Japan, Kenya, Liberia, Liechtenstein, Luxembourg, Malawi, Malta, Mauritius, Mexico, Netherlands, New Zealand, Nicaragua, Nigeria, Norway, Pakistan, Panama, Philippines, Portugal, Somalia, Sudan, Swaziland, Sweden, Switzerland, Turkey, Uganda, United Arab Republic, United Kingdom, United States of America, and Uruguay.

Disputes as to whether the Court has jurisdiction are settled by the Court.

Judgments are without appeal, but are binding only for the particular case and between the parties.

Thirty-nine cases have been referred to the Court. Some were removed from its list as a result of settlement on discontinuance, and in others it has found that it had no jurisdiction. The cases in which final judgment has been given include Corfu Channel (United Kingdom v. Albania), Fisheries (United Kingdom v. Norway), Asylum (Colombia/Peru), Rights of Nationals of the U.S.A. in Morocco (France v. U.S.A.), Haya de la Torre (Colombia v. Peru), Ambatielos (Greece v. United Kingdom), Minqiars and Ecehos (France/United Kingdom), Rights of Passage over Indian Territory (Portugal v. India), Application of the Convention of 1902 Governing the Guardianship of Infants (Netherlands v. Sweden), Sovereignty over Certain Frontier Land (Belgium/Netherlands), Arbitral Award made by the King of Spain on 23 December 1906 (Honduras v. Nicaragua), Temple of Preah Vihear (Cambodia v. Thailand), South West Africa (Ethiopia and Liberia v. South Africa), North Sea Continental Shelf (Federal Republic of Germany/Denmark and Netherlands).

Compliance with Judgments. States appearing before the Court undertake to comply with its judgment. If a party to a case fails to do so, the other party may apply to the Security Council which may make recommendations or decide upon measures to give effect to the Judgment.

The Judges. The Court is composed of fifteen independent judges of different nationalities, elected from among persons of high moral character who possess high judicial or legal qualifications. Representation of the main forms of civilization and legal systems of the world is required to be borne in mind in election. Candidates are nominated by national groups appointed by governments under special conditions, and for election require an absolute majority in both the General Assembly and the Security Council sitting independently. Judges are elected for nine years and may be re-elected; elections for five seats are held every three years. The Court elects its President and Vice-President for three years and remains permanently in session. Judges may not have any political, administrative, or other professional occupation, and may not participate in the decision of any case in which they have previously taken part as agent or counsel or as a member of a court or commission of enquiry, or in any other capacity. They undertake to exercise their powers impartially and conscientiously. If there is no judge on the bench of the nationality of the parties, each party may choose a judge, who sits on terms of equality with his colleagues. All questions are decided by a majority of the judges present, subject to a quorum of nine.

RECENT JUDICIAL ACTIVITY OF THE COURT

During the year ending July 31st, 1969, the Court gave Judgment on February 20th, 1969, in the two cases concerning the North Sea Continental Shelf (Federal Republic of Germany/Denmark); (Federal Republic of Germany/Netherlands) and continued to deal with the case concerning the Barcelona Traction, Light and Power Company, Limited (Belgium v. Spain). In the periods from October 14th, 1968, to February 20th, 1969, and from April 9th to July 24th, 1969, it held 78 public sittings and 93 private meetings.

North Sea Continental Shelf. These two cases were concerned with delimitation of the North Sea continental shelf between the Federal Republic of Germany and Denmark on the one hand, and between the Federal Republic of Germany and the Netherlands on the other. Boundary lines had already been determined for a short distance between the Federal Republic and the Netherlands (1964) and between the Federal Republic and Denmark (1965), but those delimitations had not been carried further for want of agreement between the respective Parties.

By two Special Agreements, notified to the Court on February 20th, 1967, the Federal Republic of Germany agreed with Denmark and the Netherlands respectively to ask the Court what principles and rules of international law were applicable to the delimitations remaining to be carried out. The Court was not itself asked to fix the boundary lines in question: the Parties undertook to settle them by agreement between themselves following the Court's decision and pursuant to that decision.

The Court gave its decision on the two cases in a single Judgment on February 20th, 1969, by 11 votes to 6 (I.C.J. Reports 1969 p. 3). It found that the boundary lines in question were to be drawn by agreement between the Parties and in accordance with equitable principles, and it indicated certain factors to be taken into consideration for that purpose.

ORGANIZATION

COMMISSION

ECE is one of the four regional economic commissions set up by the UN Economic and Social Council. The Commission holds an annual plenary session and brief meetings of subsidiary bodies are convened throughout the year. Specialists seek agreements for later government approval, collect statistics and exchange technical information, both at meetings and through distribution of reports and special papers. ECE itself takes no action affecting governments.

SECRETARIAT

Executive Secretary: JANEZ STANOVNIK (Yugoslavia).

The Secretariat services the meetings of the Commission and its subsidiary bodies and publishes periodic surveys and reviews, including a number of specialized statistical bulletins on coal, timber, steel, housing and building, electric power, gas and transport.

COMMITTEES

Committee on Agricultural Problems. Keeps under review the market conditions, follows developments under the Protocol on the Standardization of Fruit and Vegetables, examines problems arising from mechanization of agriculture, and drafts standard clauses for the international sale of certain agricultural products (cereals and citrus fruits). Chair. G. VOROBYEV (U.S.S.R.).

Industry and Materials Committee. Concerned with the ways and means of making fuller use of the existing capacity in particular industries, especially in the engineering industry. Supervises the erection of plant and machinery in ECE countries; studies contract practices and automation in industry; drafts general conditions of sale for industrial goods. Has not met since 1950.

Timber Committee. Regularly reviews the market in sawn softwood, small-sized roundwood and hardwood, studies forest working techniques, compiles statistics, watches trends in the use of wood and its products and of wood waste, and drafts standard clauses for the international sale of certain categories of timber. Chair. K. RONGE (Sweden).

Coal Committee. Concentrates on problems of production and trade, makes recommendations on the use of solid fuel. With agreements reached on the international classification of brown coals and lignites, ECE has completed the classification by type of all existing coals. Drafts general conditions of sale for solid fuels. Chair. R. DUFLOU (Belgium).

THE UNITED NATIONS—(REGIONAL ECONOMIC COMMISSIONS)

Committee on Electric Power. Studies hydro-electric resources, thermal power plants, legal questions, rural electrification and the cost of financing new projects. ECE's relationship with the International Atomic Energy Agency is close. Chair A GEORGESCU (Romania)

Committee on Gas. Deals with the economic and technical aspects of the production, transport and utilization of gas, natural and manufactured as well as liquefied petroleum gases, and forecasts demand. Chair L CASTELLANO (Spain)

Committee on Housing, Building and Planning. Periodically reviews trends and progress, with special reference to industrialization of construction and building costs. Studies land use and prices, urban renewal and physical planning. Housing problems of less industrialized countries receive special consideration. Chair O LINDBLOM (Finland)

Inland Transport Committee. Covers road, rail and inland water transport, customs, contracts, transport of dangerous and perishable goods, equipment, statistics, tariffs, river law, road transport régime and road traffic accidents, construction of vehicles and passenger transport services by road. A number of international agreements are in force following their adoption through ECE Chair. I. REZABEK (Czechoslovakia)

Steel Committee. Annually reviews trends in the European and world markets, changes in price policy, growth of capacity supply factors and future prospects. Also studies long-term economic and technological problems. Chair G. ANDREJEVIC (Yugoslavia).

Committee on the Development of Trade. Examines intra-European trade, especially east/west trade. Organizes facilities in arbitration, trade fairs and technical shows, standardization of general conditions of sale of goods, insurance, simplification and standardization of export documents, payments arrangements, including multi-lateral compensation procedures, and consultations. Chair V. BABÁČEK (Czechoslovakia).

Conference of European Statisticians. Promotes improvement of national statistics and their international comparability in economic, social and demographic fields; facilitates exchange of information between European countries. Chair J. KAZIMOUR (Czechoslovakia).

BUDGET

ECE's budget is included in the budget of the United Nations

PUBLICATIONS

Economic Survey of Europe (annual), Economic Bulletin for Europe; frequent statistical and technical studies and bulletins, ECE News/Nouvelles (monthly, in English and French).

ORGANIZATION

The Commission meets yearly in different member countries (first session, Shanghai, 1947; twenty-sixth session scheduled for Bangkok, spring 1970).

The work of the Commission is conducted through its annual sessions; meetings of its main committees and sub-committees, working parties, ad hoc conferences, trade promotion meetings and seminars; year-round work of a secretariat based in Bangkok; and technical assistance to governments. Fields of work include:

Development Research and Planning

Trade
Industry and Natural Resources
Water Resources
Agricultural Development
Transport and Communications
Statistics Population
Social Development
Public Administration

Executive Secretary: U NYUN (Burma).

ACTIVITIES

ECAFE seeks to promote regional co-operation in all possible areas, from river basin development, transport and telecommunications, for example, to joint-venture industries and trade. At the same time, it helps individual members in the planning and carrying out of balanced national development programmes.

In recent years ECAFE's work has been increasingly focused on action-oriented programmes to stimulate tangible growth. To provide a sound basis for regional and national development, ECAFE compiles and analyses statistics; prepares economic surveys and studies; organizes seminars, working parties and study tours; and provides advisory services to governments at their request. Although ECAFE does not itself distribute capital aid, it has helped set up and attract funds for regional projects that, in turn, provide development assistance. The Asian Development Bank, for example, grew out of an ECAFE decision on the need for a source of additional capital; since 1966 it has operated as an independent institution in Manila (see separate chapter below).

ECAFE initiatives have resulted in the establishment of the Committee for the Co-ordination of Investigations of the Lower Mekong Basin, composed of Cambodia, Laos, the Republic of Viet-Nam and Thailand, in 1957; the Asian Highway Co-ordinating Committee, which is served by a Transport Technical Bureau operating at ECAFE headquarters; and the Asian Institute for Economic Development and Planning, set up in 1964. All three are now working in Bangkok, with links to ECAFE and with aid from the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP).

ECAFE efforts to stimulate regional economic co-operation have also led to the establishment of the Asian Industrial Development Council, in 1966; the Committee for Co-ordination of Joint Prospecting for Mineral Resources in Asian Offshore Areas, in the same year; ECAFE Trade Promotion Centre, in 1968; the Asian Coconut Community, formally inaugurated in 1969; the ECAFE/World Meteorological Organization (WMO) Joint Unit on Typhoons, in 1968; and the Asian Statistical Institute, which will begin training of senior government statisticians in Tokyo early in 1970.

MINISTERIAL CONFERENCES

To speed up economic co-operation, ECAFE has convened three ministerial conferences—in Manila in 1963 and 1965 and in Bangkok in 1968. The Third Ministerial Conference on Asian Economic Co-operation, which decided that it would henceforth serve as the Council of Ministers for Asian Economic Co-operation, called for "a strategy of integrated regional co-operation" and a series of specific steps. In follow-up action, "national units" appointed by member governments and a special task force set up in the ECAFE secretariat are working together to carry the programme forward.

In its current work, ECAFE is also giving special attention to ways of achieving regional growth during the coming United Nations Second Development Decade (1971-1980), following guide-lines adopted at the Commission's twenty-fifth session in Singapore in 1969. Some current and recent activities in major fields are outlined below.

FIELDS OF ECAFE WORK

Development Research and Planning: As a foundation for action programmes, the ECAFE secretariat carries out an annual Economic Survey of Asia and the Far East, studies specific problems involved in development planning, plan harmonization and regional co-operation, has assisted with world-wide preparations for the Second Development Decade, and aids with national planning problems.

An example of regional co-operation and plan harmonization is the establishment of the Asian Coconut Community—the first association of Asian producers organized on a commodity basis—which was formally inaugurated under ECAFE auspices in September 1969 and temporarily began work at ECAFE headquarters. It dates back to an ECAFE study in 1967-68 analysing problems of the coconut industry and recommending action. In response, major coconut-producing countries of the region formed the Community to promote, co-ordinate and harmonize all activities of the coconut industry.

Following the success of the study on coconut, the ECAFE secretariat is engaged in a study on rice, seeking concrete solutions to problems of exporting and importing countries.

International Trade: ECAFE is seeking to help members in the region expand trade among themselves and with the rest of the world—for example, through liberalization, easing of customs formalities, promotional efforts, and improved regional payments arrangements. ECAFE's Trade Promotion Centre, established in 1968, organizes

International Trade Fairs (Bangkok, Thailand, 1966, and Teheran, Iran, 1969) were held with ECAFE support; in conjunction with the two Fairs, ECAFE arranged for Trade Promotion Talks to be held by governments. ECAFE's Centre for Shipping Information and Advisory Services, set up in 1967, aids governments with problems such as freight rates, establishment of shippers' councils, development of merchant marines, and other steps designed to reduce export costs. The Centre for Commercial Arbitration has drawn up standards in this field and carries out research intended to improve arbitral facilities and practices in the ECAFE region.

Industry and Natural Resources: Ways of speeding industrial development in the region are sought by ECAFE through field missions, studies, advisory services, and expert meetings dealing, for example, with iron and steel, joint ventures in the petrochemical industry, manufacture of improved farm machinery, better rice-processing equipment, prospects for expanding production of edible oil from rice bran, application of advanced technology in coconut processing, low-cost automation for small-scale industries, and handicrafts. A comprehensive Industrial Survey for Regional Co-operation has been scheduled for 1970-71. Guidance is provided by the Asian Industrial Development Council (AIDC) and ECAFE's Committee on Industry and Natural Resources, which also has a work programme in mineral and energy resources development and housing.

Offshore Resources: The ECAFE-fostered Committee for Co-ordination of Joint Prospecting for Mineral Resources in Asian Offshore Areas (CCOP), set up in 1966, seeks to promote and co-ordinate exploration, using advanced technology, to locate undersea resources of mineral wealth adjoining land areas of countries in the Western Pacific region. Specially equipped vessels, aircraft and other facilities have been provided by industrialized countries to aid in this effort. A geophysical survey conducted in the East China Sea and Yellow Sea has indicated that the shallow sea floor between Japan and the Republic of China may contain one of the most prolific oil reservoirs in the world. Plans for a similar co-ordinating body for offshore prospecting in the Indian Ocean area are under consideration.

Water Resources: ECAFE is working on problems of river-basin development, improved use of delta land, conservation and development of national water resources, and typhoon forecasting services. A Joint Unit on Typhoons was set up by ECAFE and the World Meteorological Organization (WMO) in 1968 to help in the task of minimizing the damage caused by typhoons and associated floods in the region, which cost an estimated US $500 million a year. Under the auspices of ECAFE's Water Resources Consulting Group, organized in 1967, groups of experts from donor countries have provided advisory services relating to water conservation and development.

Agriculture: Economic problems of agriculture, and agricultural aspects of economic programmes that are of interest to both ECAFE and the Food and Agriculture Organization, are dealt with by a Joint ECAFE/FAO Agriculture Division. Activities include studies in these fields, meetings of expert groups, and advisory aid to governments.

Transport and Communications: As part of its efforts to help member countries expand and modernize travel and transport facilities, ECAFE is seeking a Trans-Asian Rail Network to provide greater uniformity of services in Asia and permit links with Europe and Africa. The network proposed, from Istanbul to Singapore, would total about 14,000 km. In addition, ECAFE is working on highway transport problems and co-operates with the Asian Highway Transport Technical Bureau (see below), water transport, and ways of expanding tourism. ECAFE's Port Information and Advisory Centre offers technical assistance with port-facilities problems. A joint unit of ECAFE and the International Telecommunications Union (ITU) is stressing efforts to improve telecommunication services in the region, upgrade technological training, and lay the groundwork for the introduction of satellite communication in the area.

Statistics: As a new activity, the ECAFE secretariat in 1969 published its first issue of the Statistical Yearbook for Asia and the Far East. Other activities include compilation of statistics in specific fields, aid to governments with statistical problems, and servicing of the Conference of Asian Statisticians. As an outgrowth of an ECAFE resolution adopted in 1967, the Asian Statistical Institute for training and research was opened in Tokyo in 1969 as an undertaking of governments in the region and the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP).

Population: A new Population Division was established in the ECAFE secretariat in 1969 as a step towards an expanded Asian Population Programme designed to increase regional assistance to national efforts in this field. High priority is being given to improving the effectiveness of evaluation and training procedures in national family planning programmes. Advisory services are available to meet government requests.

Social Development: ECAFE is expanding its social programmes in the belief that development is an integrated and balanced process in which economic and social factors interact. The Commission in 1969 set up a Working Party on Social Development for the ECAFE Region which will meet once every two years. A review of social trends and developments in the ECAFE region is being made as part of a world survey to be issued by the United Nations in 1971. Advisory missions in social development planning, social work, and community development training have been provided in the past year.

Public Administration: This relatively new field in ECAFE activities includes surveys and seminar-type meetings on subjects such as national personnel systems, administrative reforms, and civil service training needs.

Technical Assistance: In many of the individual subject fields cited above, technical assistance activities are undertaken by ECAFE with funds from the regular United Nations budget and from the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP), which is financed with voluntary contributions. These activities include seminars, advisory services, and training aid. Three larger-scale projects initiated under ECAFE auspices and now receiving UNDP aid have separate budgets—the Mekong project, Asian Highway project, and Asian Institute for Economic Development and Planning, described below.

REGIONAL PROJECTS

MEKONG DEVELOPMENT PROJECT

The Mekong Project seeks to develop the water resources of the Lower Mekong Basin, including mainstream and tributaries, in terms of hydroelectric power, irrigation, flood control, drainage, navigation improvement, watershed management, water supply and related problems. The project is directed by the Committee for the Co-ordination of Investigations of the Lower Mekong Basin consisting of Cambodia, Laos, the Republic of Viet-Nam and Thailand, which operates under the auspices of ECAFE and the UNDP. Its work has been supported by 26 governments outside the region, a total of 16 United Nations agencies or bodies, and a number of foundations and business firms. (Further information on the Mekong Project appears in a separate chapter below.)

ASIAN HIGHWAY

The Asian Highway Project, approved by ECAFE in 1959, calls for a network of 60,000 km. covering 12 countries. During the current United Nations Development Decade, ending in 1970, efforts have been concentrated on establishing at least one through route from west to east, with connections to all other countries not served by that route. Route A-1, from Iran to the Republic of Viet-Nam (10,800 km.), considered one of the most important routes, was 93 per cent complete by late 1969. As for the entire network, 83 per cent is now motorable in all weather.

To demonstrate the availability of the various sections of the Asian Highway to trade and tourist traffic, the first Asian Highway motor rally, from Vientiane to Singapore, was organized in April 1969. A rally for the western section of the highway between Teheran (Iran) and Dacca (Pakistan), is being planned for 1970.

Work on the project is guided by the Asian Highway Co-ordinating Committee, composed of representatives at ministerial level from member countries, which held its first meeting in April 1965. An Asian Highway Transport Technical Bureau, set up within ECAFE and aided by the UNDP, seeks to assist member countries in the project and to carry out recommendations of the Co-ordinating Committee.

ASIAN INSTITUTE FOR ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT AND PLANNING

The Asian Institute for Economic Development and Planning, established in 1961, provides training, on a regional basis, for personnel engaged in economic and social development programmes in Asia. It also serves as a development staff college for senior executives of governments and private industry in the ECAFE region.

By September 1969, the Institute had trained more than 1,000 fellows of the ECAFE region, either in Bangkok or in "country courses" in Ceylon, China (Taiwan), Indonesia, Iran, Nepal, Philippines, Republic of Korea, Singapore, and Thailand. A research wing carries out studies of the problems, possibilities and techniques of economic and social development in the region.

The Institute works as an autonomous institution under the aegis of ECAFE with support from the UNDP and participating governments, and with the co-operation of several United Nations specialized agencies, other international organizations and foundations. The management is vested in a Governing Council of which the Executive Secretary of ECAFE is Chairman ex-officio.

BUDGET AND STAFF

For 1969, ECAFE's regular annual budget totalled U.S. $4.9 million. This sum (which forms part of the regular budget of the United Nations in the economic and social field) was supplemented by technical assistance funds, as well as certain funds from governments and institutions.

In 1969 the work of ECAFE proper was carried out by a staff of some 150 professionals and 270 general-service employees whose posts were financed from the regular budget, plus 28 regional advisers and supporting staff members paid from technical assistance sources. Other staff members serve in the Mekong Office, the Asian Institute for Economic Development and Planning, and the Asian Highway Transport Technical Bureau (which have separate budgets). Overall, the staff members came from 39 countries in 1969.

ORGANIZATION

The Commission normally meets every two years in one of the Latin American capitals. The Commission has established two permanent bodies with various sub-committees:

Central American Economic Co-operation Committee:

- Central American Trade Sub-Committee
- Central American Sub-Committee on Statistical Co-ordination
- Central American Sub-Committee on Transport
- Central American Sub-Committee on Housing, Building and Planning
- Central American Sub-Committee on Electric Power
- Central American Commission for Industrial Initiatives
- Central American Sub-Committee on Agricultural Development

Trade Committee:

- Working Group on the Regional Market.
- Working Group on Customs Questions.

Executive Secretary: CARLOS QUINTANA (Mexico).

Secretariat: Santiago de Chile; branch offices at Mexico City, Rio de Janeiro, Montevideo, Washington, D.C., Port-of-Spain and Bogotá. The Secretariat is organized into divisions of economic development and research, trade policy, social affairs, agriculture (jointly with FAO), statistics and administration, programmes on integration of industrial development (jointly with the Latin American Institute for Social and Economic Planning and IDB), natural resources and energy and transport (jointly with OAS) and Latin-American Center for Economic Projections.

LATIN AMERICAN INSTITUTE FOR ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL PLANNING

Santiago, Chile

The Institute was founded by ECLA in June 1962, with financial assistance from the United Nations Special Fund, the Inter-American Development Bank and sixteen Latin American governments, and with the co-operation of OAS, ILO, UNICEF, Resources for the Future, and other international bodies. It operates as an autonomous body under the aegis of ECLA to provide training and advisory services on request to member countries and to undertake research in planning techniques.

Director-General: RAÚL PREBISCH (Argentina)

THE UNITED NATIONS—(REGIONAL ECONOMIC COMMISSIONS)

ACTIVITIES

In the early years the Commission focused its activities on preparing studies and reports, but now concentrates more on the questions of a regional market and Latin American economic integration.

REGIONAL MARKET

Proposals for the setting up of a Latin American Common Market, drawn up by the Market Group, were discussed in detail at the 8th Session of ECLA at Panama in May 1959. The Latin American Free Trade Association was set up in February 1960. First negotiations on tariffs between government members of the Association were held between September and December 1961. The first stage came into operation January 1962 (see Chapter on LAFTA).

RELATIONS WITH LAFTA

The relations of ECLA with the Latin American Free Trade Association (LAFTA) are defined by the Montevideo Treaty. ECLA assists the organizations of the Association in an advisory capacity and attends meetings of the Executive Committee.

RELATIONS WITH OAS

ECLA has co-ordination arrangements with OAS.

ECONOMIC CO-OPERATION IN LATIN AMERICA

Central American Common Market: Guatemala; established 1960 under the aegis of the Organization of Central American States (ODECA); mems. Costa Rica, Guatemala, El Salvador, Honduras, Nicaragua (see Chapter).

ACTIVITIES

The work of the Commission is determined by decisions of its plenary sessions. The Commission is charged with the responsibility of promoting and facilitating concerted action for the economic and social development of Africa, to maintain and strengthen the economic relations of African countries, both among themselves and with other countries of the world, to undertake or sponsor investigations, research and studies of economic and technological problems and developments; to collect, evaluate and disseminate economic, technological and statistical information; and to assist in the formulation and development of co-ordinated policies in promoting economic and technological development in the region

During 1969, ECA's ninth session recommended the setting up of new institutional machinery on the following pattern: (a) Regular biennial sessions to be held at ministerial level and called ECA Conference of Ministers. This would consist of Ministers of Member States responsible for economic affairs, and it would, among other things, review the programme of the preceding two years; (b) Committee of Experts to meet once a year. It would be composed of senior officials of Member States concerned with economic affairs, and it would examine studies prepared by the ECA Secretariat and assist in the formulation of the work programme aimed at ensuring co-operation between the Secretariat and member governments, and (c) an Executive Committee to meet twice a year. This includes officers of the Conference of Ministers, plus two representatives from each sub-region, two African members of the Economic and Social Council, and two African members of the Governing Council of the United Nations Development Programme, representing English and French-speaking countries. This Committee, which has already met twice in 1969, provides a link between the ECA Secretariat, Member States and sub-regions. It also fosters co-operation between the Commission, United Nations bodies, and international agencies concerned with development in Africa.

THE UNITED NATIONS—(REGIONAL ECONOMIC COMMISSIONS)

WHO maintains a liaison office at ECA; in co-operation with ITU, work has begun on a pan-African Telecommunications system. ECA also runs a Joint Agricultural Division in conjunction with FAO.

Co-operation between ECA and the Organization of African Unity started with the signing of a UN/OAU agreement by the Secretary-General of the United Nations, U Thant, and the Secretary-General of the OAU, Diallo Telli, on November 15th, 1965.

In 1969, co-operation between the two organizations continued with the holding of five meetings jointly, namely: the Meeting to Establish an African Civil Aviation Commission (January), the Third and Fourth Joint Meeting of the ECA Working Party on Intra-African Trade and the OAU Expert Committee on Trade and Development (January and August); Joint ECA/OAU Meeting of African Countries who are members of IBRD/IMF (September) and ECA/IDEP/OAU/Dag Hammarskjöld Foundation African Regional Conference on the Integrated Approach to Rural Development (October).

ECONOMIC CO-OPERATION IN AFRICA

Member States of the Commission in each of the four sub-regions have set up organizations to foster regional economic co-operation. The Maghreb Permanent Consultative Committee (North Africa) and the East African Community are now operative, while Articles of Association have been signed, pending the establishment of Economic Communities for the Eastern African and the West African sub-regions. These and the other inter-state organizations concerned with economic co-operation are described below:

NORTH AFRICAN SUB-REGION

Maghreb Permanent Consultative Committee: Tunis, Tunisia; established 1965; Mems. Algeria, Libya, Morocco, Tunisia (see Chapter).

EAST AFRICAN SUB-REGION

Economic Community of Eastern Africa: The ECA convened the sub-regional meeting on Economic Co-operation in Eastern Africa in Lusaka in October–November 1965. It was agreed at this meeting to set up, at an early date, at the sub-regional level, inter-governmental machinery responsible for the harmonization of economic and social development in the sub-region, taking into account the experience of similar institutional arrangements inside and outside Africa.

The meeting was attended by Burundi, Ethiopia, Kenya, Malawi, Rwanda, Tanzania, Uganda and Zambia. The sub-region consists of eleven countries, i.e. those mentioned above and also Somalia, Madagascar and Mauritius. Other countries interested in associating with the sub-region are Botswana, Lesotho and Swaziland.

Following the Lusaka Conference, a meeting of the Interim Council of Ministers of the sub-region was held in Addis Ababa in May 1966, at which the Terms of Association of the Eastern African Community to govern the interim arrangements pending the signing of a formal treaty were considered. The following countries signed or initialled the Terms of Association: Burundi, Ethiopia, Kenya, Madagascar, Malawi, Mauritius, Rwanda, Somalia, Tanzania and Zambia. Uganda has not yet signed the Terms of Association. An interim Economic Committee was set up and its first meeting was held in November 1967.

East African Community: Arusha, Tanzania. The Treaty of Co-operation, signed June 1967, provides for the strengthening of the common market between Kenya, Tanzania and Uganda, and for the management of the common services and joint research undertakings of the three countries. Other countries in East Africa who have indicated their interest in joining the Community are Burundi, Ethiopia, Somalia and Zambia (see Chapter).

CENTRAL AFRICAN SUB-REGION

Union Douanière Economique de l'Afrique Centrale (UDEAC): Bangui, C.A.R. Established January 1966 by Cameroon, Central African Republic, Chad, Congo (Brazzaville), Gabon, but in 1968 Central African Republic and Chad withdrew from the Union to form a new Union of Central African States together with Congo (Kinshasa). Central African Republic subsequently left UGAS and rejoined UDEAC. An oil refinery is being built at Port Gentil, Gabon, as a joint enterprise (see Chapter).

Common Organization for Economic Co-operation in Central Africa (OCCEAC): Kinshasa, 1 October 1969 at meeting of Foreign Ministers of Congo-Kinshasa, Rwanda and Burundi.

WEST AFRICAN SUB-REGION

West African Economic Community: Accra, Ghana. Articles of Association were signed at Accra in May 1967 by Dahomey, Ghana, Ivory Coast, Liberia, Mali, Mauritania, Niger, Nigeria, Senegal, Sierra Leone, Togo, Upper Volta. An interim Council of Ministers was set up to negotiate a common market treaty, which was drafted by ECA experts. A provisional secretariat, an interim economic committee and committees on transport, energy and industry were also established. The Industry Committee is at present specifically concerned with the proposed setting up of an Iron and Steel Industry for West Africa.

Aims the establishment of a common market to further the maximum exchange of goods and services between members and the elimination of customs and trade barriers between them; to promote through the economic co-operation of the member states a co-ordinated and equitable development of their economies, especially in industry, agriculture, transport and communications, trade and payments, manpower, energy and resources; to contribute to the orderly expansion of trade between members and the rest of the world, to contribute to the economic development of Africa as a whole.

A meeting of the interim Council of Ministers was held in Monrovia, Liberia, in December 1968.

West African Regional Group: in April 1968 a summit meeting was held in Monrovia, Gambia, Ghana, Guinea, Liberia, Mali, Mauritania, Nigeria, Senegal and Upper Volta signed a Protocol which incorporates the Accra Articles of Association (see West African Economic Community) and which aims to develop economic, social and cultural co-operation between members, with the ultimate goal of economic integration of the region.

Union Douanière Economique de l'Afrique de l'Ouest (UDEAO): Ouagadougou, Upper Volta; established 1959, a new convention came into effect in December 1966, Mems. Dahomey, Ivory Coast, Mali, Mauritania, Niger, Senegal, Upper Volta (see Chapter).

West African Rice Development Association: Monrovia, Liberia, 1 September 1969 by FAO, UNDP and ECA to increase rice productivity in the region.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT ASSOCIATION—IDA

1818 H Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20433

Telephone EXecutive 3-6360

The International Development Association began operations in November 1960. Affiliated to the World Bank, IDA advances capital on more flexible terms to underdeveloped countries. Members: 104.

ORGANIZATION

President and Chairman of Executive Directors: Chairman of the World Bank (ex-officio)

Officers and staff of the World Bank serve concurrently as officers and staff of IDA

FINANCE

IDA'S initial resources were derived from members' subscriptions: the richer nations pay in gold or freely convertible currencies, the less-developed nations pay 10 per cent in the above form and 90 per cent in their own currencies. By July 31st, 1969, IDA's initial subscriptions totalled $1,012.5 million.

IDA is authorized to accept supplementary contributions and is required to maintain a regular review of the adequacy of its resources. In 1964, formalities were completed for the first general replenishment of IDA's funds. The eighteen Part I countries—Australia, Austria, Belgium, Canada, Denmark, Finland, France, Germany, Italy, Japan, Kuwait, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, Norway, South Africa, Sweden, the United Kingdom and the United States—agreed to provide supplementary resources of almost $750 million.

On July 23rd, 1969, the second general replenishment of IDA's resources came into force. The second replenishment proposal provided for expanding IDA's resources by $1,200 million equivalent, payable in three annual instalments of $400 million each.

IDA's supplementary resources amounted to over $3,000 million including $285 million transfers from the World Bank, a loan of $121 million from the Swiss Confederation and special supplementary contributions totalling $64.5 million from Sweden and Denmark. Usable funds available to IDA from the start of its operations to the end of July 1969 amounted to $3,051.9 million.

THE UNITED NATIONS—(SPECIALIZED AGENCIES)

ACTIVITIES

Principles similar to those of the Bank are followed by IDA in appraising projects, in negotiating its credits and in requirements for procurement, disbursement of funds and reports on the progress of constructions. However, the favourable terms upon which IDA lends make it possible to extend credits to countries which, for balance of payments reasons, could not prudently assume the burden of repayment required for Bank loans.

By June 30th, 1969, IDA had extended 165 credits totalling $2,170.3 million to 49 member countries.

INTERNATIONAL FINANCE CORPORATION—IFC

Telephone: EXecutive 3-6360.

Founded in 1956 as an affiliate of the World Bank to encourage the growth of productive private enterprise in its member countries, particularly in the less-developed areas. Members: 92.

ORGANIZATION

IFC is a separate legal entity in the World Bank Group. IFC's share capital, subscribed by member countries, amounted to $106.5 million at June 30th, 1969. A first line of credit is available to IFC of $100 million from the World Bank, which has authorized borrowing privileges up to four times IFC's unimpaired capital and surplus. Up to the end of the 1969 fiscal year, IFC had not drawn upon this credit, although commitments have been made that would not have been possible without the availability of the credit. A further $100 million loan was provided by the Bank in December 1969.

Executive Directors of the World Bank representing at least one country which is also a member of IFC serve as Directors of IFC.

PRINCIPAL OFFICERS

President: ROBERT S. McNAMARA.†
Executive Vice-President: WILLIAM S. GAUD.
Vice-President: JAMES S. RAJ.
General Counsel: R. B. J. RICHARDS.
Treasurer: EUGENE H. ROTBERG.†
Controller: FRANCIS R. POORE.†
Secretary: M. M. MENDELS.†

† These officers hold the same position in the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development.

FUNCTIONS

1. Invests without government guarantee in productive private enterprises of economic priority in member countries for the benefit of developing member countries.
2. Stimulates the international flow of private capital to developing countries.
3. Encourages the development of local capital markets.
4. Invests in development finance companies.

5. Commits limited amounts of funds for promotional purposes, to help bring development enterprises into being. The projects which IFC seeks to promote are those which have a reasonable prospect of eventually being suitable for financing by the Corporation in accordance with established criteria.

6. Revolves its portfolio by sales of its investments to institutional investors.

1969 OPERATIONS

IFC is continuing to diversify its investments. In 1966/67 IFC began committing funds to tourism development; placed major emphasis upon simultaneous assistance to industry and agriculture through fertilizer investments in Latin America, Asia and Africa; and began investment in services such as electricity supply. Diversification continued in 1968/69 with increased promotional work and with first investments in three fields: animal feed additives and printing and publishing in Latin America, and silk production in Asia.

In April 1969, IFC made the largest commitment in its history, amounting to $22.1 million, to finance simultaneously four industrial programmes of the Siam Cement Group Companies in Thailand, recovering over two-thirds of the commitment through participation of nineteen financial institutions in the United States, the Caribbean, Europe and Asia.

In June 1969, IFC made its first investment in a specialized development institution: a $9.9 million commitment to Compagnie Financière et Touristique S.A., to promote and finance hotel and other tourism projects, on a nationwide basis, in order to assist the continued growth of tourism as Tunisia's largest foreign exchange earner. The new institution, with initial resources of $39.3 million, will provide equity and long-term funds for three types of operations: the construction of new hotels, the expansion or financial reorganization of existing hotels, and other activities related to the tourism sector, such as transportation facilities for tourists.

IFC also invested in promotional companies in Colombia and Honduras during the 1969 fiscal year, and undertook to organize the development, from the ground up, of an industrial project in Indonesia.

GEOGRAPHICAL DISTRIBUTION

By June 30th, 1969, 106 projects assisted by IFC, with a total cost of over $1,276 million, had begun operations. Fifty-two of these projects, with a total cost of approximately $671 million, were in Latin America, and 24 operative projects in Asia and the Middle East had a total cost of $301 million. Fourteen operative projects in Africa cost $124 million, and 13 projects in Europe had a total cost of $178 million. Three other IFC-supported projects that have become operative, in the Caribbean and Australia, cost over $2 million.

FINANCIAL RECORD

(up to June 30th, 1969)

Cumulative total of IFC's funds available at June 30th, 1969, amounted to $404 million, including $100 million line of credit from the World Bank (see Organization, above)

INTERNATIONAL MONETARY FUND—IMF

19th and H Streets, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20431

Telephone: EXecutive 3-6360.

Aims to facilitate the expansion and balanced growth of international trade, to promote exchange stability, to maintain orderly exchange arrangements among members, to avoid competitive exchange depreciation, and to give confidence to members by making the Fund's resources available to them under adequate safeguards.

Members: 113.

ORGANIZATION

Chairman: PIERRE-PAUL SCHWEITZER (France).

Board of Governors: The highest authority of the Fund is exercised by a Board of Governors, one Governor and an alternate representing each member. The Board of Governors normally meets once a year; it delegates many of its powers to a twenty-member Board of Executive Directors.

Quotas: Each of the 113 members is assigned a quota which approximately determines its voting power and the amount of foreign exchange it may purchase from the Fund. Its subscription is equal to its quota and is payable partly in gold and partly in its own currency. On September 30th, 1969, the Fund's assets included $3,316.4 million in gold, $780 million in subscriptions receivable and $19,152 million in various national currencies. By September 30th, 1969, 68 countries had drawn from the Fund's resources the equivalent of over $19,000 million in 23 currencies since transactions commenced in March 1947.

The original quotas totalled some $9,000 million, but in 1958 a general review of the adequacy of members' quotas resulted in general and selective increases raising total quotas to some 15,000 million over the next two years. A further 25 per cent general increase of quotas, together with larger increases for 16 countries, was proposed in 1965. This increase brought an expansion of total quotas from $16,000 million to over $21,000 million. Another general review of quotas is in progress.

General Arrangements to Borrow: The IMF is also authorized to supplement its resources by borrowing. An agreement was approved by the Fund in 1962 and extended in 1965 until 1970 whereby ten industrial members undertook to lend the Fund up to $6,000 million in their own currencies, if this should be needed to forestall or cope with an impairment of the international monetary system. These arrangements were used to help finance the drawings made by the United Kingdom in 1964, 1965, 1968 and 1969. The amount still available under the arrangements at September 30th, 1969, was $4,734.5 million.

FUTURE ACTIVITIES

Creation of Reserves

Studies by the Fund over recent years indicated that in future certain countries would take less of their reserve increases in the form of reserve currencies and that the U.S.A., whose reserves had fallen substantially over the post-war period, would seek to increase its reserve assets. After various considerations were examined, the Fund suggested that the rate of growth in reserves should be related to the long-term trend in payments imbalances taking into account the results of any improvements in the adjustment process. Studies made in the IMF show that the upward trend in payments imbalances over the recent past has been of the same order of magnitude as that in international trade. Although the same relationship may not prevail in the future, it is clear that, if gold accruals to official reserves do not increase, and there is a continuing reluctance to add to holdings over reserve currencies, deliberate reserve creation would at an appropriate time be necessary in order to maintain an adequate rate of reserve growth.

The creation of reserves should be determined by global need, rather than by way of providing credit to countries in balance of payments difficulties, or by development aid. Discussions on the form of any newly-created reserves have centred on the choice between additional drawing facilities in the IMF and the creation of a reserve unit through an expansion of claims between a reserve-creating institution and the countries to which newly-created reserves were initially distributed.

Special Drawing Rights

The purposes for which the Fund was created have necessarily meant that problems relating to the adequacy of liquidity in general and reserves in particular have occupied the Fund during its whole history. Starting with the Annual Report for 1963, the Executive Directors have in each report dealt with international liquidity from the policy, analytical, statistical, and technical points of view. At the 1966 Annual Meeting of the IMF, the Board of Governors took the decision for a direct exchange of views on international liquidity between IMF Executive Directors and Deputies of the Group of Ten, the ten nations participating in the General Arrangements to Borrow. Four such meetings took place between November 1966 and June 1967 In September 1967, the Governors requested the Executive Directors to proceed with work relating to the establishment in the Fund of a new facility based on Special Drawings Rights (SDR's), as well as on improvements to the present rules and practices of the IMF in the light of the experience and developments of the last 20 years. The Proposed Amendment to the Articles of Agreement was approved by the Governors in May 1968. Thereafter all members were asked whether they accepted the Proposed Amendment. It went into effect on July 28th, 1969, after being accepted by the required majority of three-fifths of the membership representing four-fifths of the total voting power in the Fund. Members with 75 per cent of total quotas in the Fund deposited the required instruments of participation by August 7th, 1969, and thereby enabled participants in the Special Drawing Account to take decisions with respect to the management of that Account, including any allocation of SDRs. At the subsequent Annual Meeting of the Fund a resolution was adopted on October 2nd, 1969, calling for allocations of SDRs totalling $9,500 million over a first basic period of three years commencing January 1st, 1970. The first allocation of SDRs equivalent to $3,424 was made on that date.

The Special Drawing Rights facility is intended to assure an appropriate level of international reserves in the light of the needs of the world economy, by supplementing existing reserve assets in the form of gold and reserve currencies. The new rights will be allocated amongst members in proportion to their quotas in the Fund and global and to complement resources and the other...

ment process.

Stabilization of Prices on Primary Products

The Fund, in association with the World Bank, has prepared a study of the problem of the stabilization of prices of primary products. This is pursuant to resolutions adopted at the 1967 Annual Meetings in Rio de Janeiro. A factual section of the study was noted at the Annual Meetings held in Washington in September 1968. The Governors of the Fund then invited the Managing Director to have this work completed with the inclusion of a consideration of specific financial measures and other ways in which the IMF might assist in finding feasible solutions to the problem. Under the terms of a decision announced in July 1969 drawings for the purpose of financing buffer stocks in connection with international commodity arrangements may be made up to amounts equivalent to 50 per cent of quota, provided that drawings under the Fund's existing compensatory financing facility and the new buffer stock facility taken together do not exceed 75 per cent of the quota. Repurchase is to be made within three to five years, or earlier in the event of the buffer stock distributing cash to its members.

FUNCTIONS

1. Makes its foreign exchange resources available, under proper safeguards, to its members to meet short-term or medium-term payments difficulties
2. Furnishes, on request, expert technicians to advise and assist members in their financial and monetary problems.
3. Affords continuous and full consultation on monetary and exchange matters

FAO, the oldest postwar specialized agency, with 42 founding members from all the people of the world. It carries out world support and capital

ORGANIZATION

CONFERENCE

The governing body of FAO is the FAO Conference. It usually meets every two years, and is attended by delegates from member nations. The Conference elects the Director-General, formulates policy, determines the Organization's programme and budget on a biennial basis, and elects new members. The 15th Session of the Conference, in November 1969, elected MICHEL CÉPEDE (France) as Independent Chairman of the FAO Council.

COUNCIL

The FAO Council is composed of representatives of 34 member nations, elected by the Conference for three-year terms. It acts as the interim governing body of FAO between sessions of the Conference. The most important standing Committees of the Council are the Finance and Programme Committees, the Committee on Commodity Problems and the Committee on Fisheries, both of which consist of 34 member nations.

SECRETARIAT

Director-General (1968-72) A. H. BOERMA (Netherlands)

Deputy Director-General: ORIS V. WELLS (U.S.A.)

The Director-General is elected by the Conference. He appoints and directs a staff of about 2,100 professional officers assigned to field projects in developed countries, and some 1,200 professional staff at headquarters.

ACTIVITIES

FAO serves as the organizing and co-ordinating agency which brings together representatives of national governments, scientific bodies, non-governmental organizations, industry and banking, to plan and execute development programmes within the whole range of food and agriculture, including forestry and fisheries.

In 1969, FAO issued a provisional Indicative World Plan for Agricultural Development, an analysis of the main issues which will face world agriculture up to 1985, together with suggested policies and techniques for solving the problems through national and international action. The IWP discusses methods for increasing supplies of staple cereals, improving the protein-content of diet, promoting agricultural exports and providing rural employment.

During the year, FAO gradually implemented its new strategy designed to concentrate efforts in five main areas: high-yielding seed varieties, the protein gap, human resources, earning and saving of foreign exchange, and reduction of waste.

Documentation. Over the past two decades, FAO has become an international centre of information on agriculture in all its aspects, forestry, fisheries, livestock development and nutrition. Statistics on production, trade and consumption of hundreds of commodities are published in yearbooks and periodicals. In 1969, more than 50 per cent of the Library's reference and information services (60,000 queries were answered and 50,000 frames of microfilm reproduced during the year) were directed to field projects. FAO's bi-monthly review, Ceres, is published in English, French and Spanish. It is the first UN publication to open its pages to controversial opinion on matters beyond the terms of reference of the sponsoring agency.

UNDP Special Fund and Technical Assistance. In 1969 FAO was responsible for 325 operational projects involving the expenditure of approximately $50 million in UNDP (Special Fund) monies, and for over 400 projects costing $12 million in UNDP (Technical Assistance) funds. These outlays of internationally pledged funds were more than matched by counterpart payments from aided governments.

Freedom from Hunger Campaign. The Campaign was launched by FAO in 1960 to broaden public support for development efforts. The Campaign is conducted by national committees, of which there were 90 by the end of 1969. Their membership is drawn from the national administration, voluntary organizations such as trade unions, teachers' associations and youth groups, and from the private sector. Over 100 FAO/FFHC projects were operational during 1969, financed in equal proportions by donors and by beneficiary governments and organizations. Linked with FFHC are the Young World Appeal and the Young World Programme.

World Food Programme. Launched in 1963, the World Food Programme is a joint effort by the UN and FAO to use supplies of food as investment in programmes of economic and social development and also for relief purposes. Supplies of food, as well as cash and services such as shipping, are pledged to the Programme by member governments of FAO and UN. During 1969, some 70 development projects in 40 countries were approved for WFP backing for a total value of $330 million. Emergency relief operations involved 25 projects and two extensions for a total of $16 million. A $300 million target has been set for voluntary pledges to the World Food Programme for 1971 and 1972.

FAO Investment Centre. Up to the end of November 1969, the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development (IBRD) and the International Development Agency (IDA) had approved financing for a total of $669 million in projects identified and evaluated by the FAO/IBRD Co-operative Programme. The projects are estimated to have involved total investments of the order of $1,478 million in some 40 countries. Over one-third of these operations became effective in the first eleven months of 1969, the corresponding figures for that period alone being $264.5 and $556. FAO is also co-operating with the Inter-American Development Bank, the African Development Bank and the Asian Development Bank.

FAO/Industry Co-operative Programme. The FAO/Industry Co-operative Programme was established in 1965 to promote closer co-operation between FAO, its member governments and industries potentially concerned with agriculture in developing countries. It helps governments to eliminate obstacles to investment, and brings together the managerial, financial and technical elements associated with new investment. At the end of 1969, some 80 multinational companies were members of the Programme.

Atomic Energy in Food and Agriculture. FAO and the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) have set up a Joint Division of Atomic Energy in Agriculture to assist member nations in the application of nuclear techniques in research and development of food and agriculture. Operational projects and training courses have centred on the use of isotopes and radiation for investigating soil and crop production factors, the use of induced mutations for the improvement of staple crops, and insect eradication and pest control programmes.

GENERAL AGREEMENT ON TARIFFS AND TRADE—GATT

Villa le Bocage, Palais des Nations, Geneva

Telephone 34 60 11, 33 40 00, 33 20 00, 33 10 00

GATT came into force in January 1948. It is an international agreement aiming to raise standards of living, to ensure full employment, to develop the world's resources, to expand production and exchange of goods, and to promote economic development. Members: 76 full members (contracting parties), 15 other forms of membership.

ORGANIZATION

TARIFF CONFERENCES

Held so that members may negotiate to reduce and stabilize tariff levels. There have been six main Conferences.

Geneva	1947	Geneva	1956
Annecy	1949	Geneva	1960-61
Torquay	1951	Geneva	1964-67

The Kennedy Round of Trade Negotiations (May 1964-June 1967) was concerned with the reduction of tariffs and other barriers to trade. Some fifty countries accounting for eighty per cent of world trade participated. In the industrial field, across-the-board tariff cuts were agreed over a wide area of trade. The estimated trade in the products on which concessions were agreed amounted to some $40,000 million. In many areas reductions of fifty per cent were agreed. In the agricultural sector, the basic elements for a world grains arrangement were agreed, including the provision for food aid to developing countries to an amount of 4.5 million tons of grain annually (these elements were subsequently transformed into an international grains arrangement). In the field of non-tariff barriers a code for the administration of national anti-dumping laws and regulations was agreed.

SESSIONS

The sessions of the Contracting Parties are held usually once a year, in Geneva.

Chairman (1969-70) SULE D KOLO (Nigeria)

Vice-Chairmen (1969-70) H E Mrs ANNA ZAEFFERER DE GOYENECHE (Argentina), YOSHIHIRO NAKAYAMA (Japan), M H VAN WYK (Netherlands)

COUNCIL OF REPRESENTATIVES

Set up in September 1960 to deal with urgent and routine work arising between the annual sessions, and to supervise the work of committees and working groups.

SECRETARIAT

Director-General: OLIVIER LONG

The Secretariat consists of a number of experts in trade policy and trade intelligence, and an administrative staff. It prepares and runs the sessions, and services the work of the Council and the committees and working groups. It is also responsible for organizing the trade negotiating conferences.

ORIGIN OF GATT

During the Second World War the United States, the United Kingdom and other important trading countries discussed the establishment of international organizations to tackle the post-war problems of currency, investment and trade. The International Monetary Fund and the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development were established before the end of the war, but the Charter for the International Trade Organization (ITO) was not completed until March 1948. The first tariff negotiating conference was held at Geneva in 1947, and the resulting concessions were safeguarded under the terms of a multilateral agreement called the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade. It was signed on October 30th, 1947, at Geneva and came into force on January 1st, 1948. Originally the GATT was accepted by twenty-three countries.

The GATT was intended as a stop-gap arrangement, pending the entry into force of the ITO (Havana) Charter and the creation of the International Trade Organization. But, as events have worked out, GATT has stood alone since 1948 as the generally accepted international instrument which lays down rules of conduct for trade on a world-wide basis.

THE UNITED NATIONS—(SPECIALIZED AGENCIES)

AIMS AND ACTIVITIES

GATT is a legal treaty embodying reciprocal rights and obligations designed to achieve the objectives set out in the preamble to the Agreement where the Contracting Parties recognize that "... their relations in the field of trade and economic endeavour should be conducted with a view to raising standards of living, ensuring full employment and a large and steadily-growing volume of real income and effective demand, developing the full use of the resources of the world and expanding the production and exchange of goods, and promoting the progressive development of the economies of all the contracting parties."

The detailed undertakings set out in the GATT, together with a body of case law built up by the Contracting Parties, constitute a general code of conduct covering virtually the whole field of the commercial relations of member states.

The Contracting Parties (i.e. the member governments acting jointly) deal with questions arising from the implementation of the Agreement—among other things acting as a negotiating forum, and as a forum where any difference between member countries can be dealt with—and take such action as is necessary in the light of developments in international trade to further the objectives of the Agreement.

A major objective of GATT is, through the operation of the provisions of the Agreement and through trade negotiations, to bring about a lowering of barriers to trade.

Over the past decade particular attention has been paid to the trade and economic development problems of the developing countries, and practical steps have been taken to remove or reduce impediments to the expansion of their export trade. The Programme for Trade Expansion was inaugurated in 1958, the Action Programme launched in 1963, and a new Part IV of the Agreement, containing provisions which deal specifically with problems of trade and development, entered into force in June 1966. A further programme of work for the benefit of developing countries was decided upon at a meeting of Ministers in November 1967.

Long-Term Arrangement for Cotton Textiles

In 1961 a short-term arrangement regarding international trade in cotton textiles was drawn up. This was designed to deal with immediate problems and applied to the twelve-month period starting October 1961. The Cotton Textiles Committee was created to undertake work preparatory to a long-term solution. This work was completed in 1962 with the completion of a Long-Term Arrangement for Cotton Textiles, which entered into force in October 1962 for a period of five years. In 1967 the Arrangement was extended for a further three years.

The purpose of the Arrangement is to ensure the orderly development of trade in cotton textile products, in order progressively to increase export possibilities, particularly for less-developed countries, while at the same time avoiding disruption of markets in importing countries. Each year the Cotton Textiles Committee reviews the operation of the Arrangement. Thirty countries have accepted the Arrangement.

SUMMARY OF THE GENERAL AGREEMENT

PART I

ARTICLE I. Most-Favoured-Nation obligation. Based on the League of Nations clause.

PART II

ARTICLE II. The basic tariff article incorporating the concessions (i.e. mainly reductions or bindings of import duties) set forth in the schedules annexed to the Agreement.

ARTICLE III. Internal taxation and concessions; based on the principle that internal taxes shall not be applied so as to protect domestic industry.

ARTICLES IV–X. The technical articles, providing general rules and principles relating to transit trade, to anti-dumping duties, to customs valuation, customs formalities, and marks of origin.

ARTICLE XI. Contains the general prohibition of quantitative restrictions.

ARTICLE XII. Lays down the conditions under which such restrictions can be used to safeguard the balance of payments.

ARTICLES XIII, XIV. Provision that quantitative restrictions must be applied without discrimination, with certain exceptions.

ARTICLE XV. Deals with relations between the Contracting Parties and the International Monetary Fund.

ARTICLE XVI. Subsidies.

ARTICLE XVII. Non-discriminatory treatment by state trading enterprises.

ARTICLE XVIII. Recognizes that the less-developed countries need to maintain a degree of flexibility in their tariff structure in order to grant the tariff protection required for the establishment of particular industries and may need to apply quantitative restrictions in a manner which takes full account of the continued high level of demand for imports likely to be generated by their programmes of economic development.

ARTICLE XIX. Emergency action about imports of particular products.

ARTICLES XX, XXI. General and security exceptions.

ARTICLES XXII, XXIII. Provisions for action by Contracting Parties to settle differences arising out of the application of the GATT.

PART III

ARTICLE XXIV. Territorial application; frontier traffic; the rules relating to the establishment of customs unions and free-trade areas.

THE UNITED NATIONS—(SPECIALIZED AGENCIES)

ARTICLE XXV. Provides for joint action by the Contracting Parties. Each Party to have one vote. Decisions by majority. This article is the legal basis for the very broad role the Contracting Parties have come to play in working towards the expansion of international trade and in providing a forum for discussion of international trade problems.

ARTICLE XXVI. Acceptance, entry into force, registration.

ARTICLE XXVII. Withholding or withdrawal of concessions.

ARTICLE XXVIII. Deals with the general principle of tariff negotiation and with the arrangements under which Contracting Parties can, by negotiation, modify existing tariff concessions.

ARTICLE XXIX. Relationship to the Havana Charter.
ARTICLES XXX–XXXIV. Definitions and amendments, etc.

ARTICLE XXXV. Non-application between particular parties.

PART IV.

ARTICLE XXXVI. Principles and Objectives

ARTICLE XXXVII. Commitments

ARTICLE XXXVIII. Joint Action.

Adopted in February 1965, Part IV provides a contractual and legal basis for commitments by contracting parties aimed at ensuring that less-developed countries can raise standards of living and promote rapid economic development through raising their export earnings.

BUDGET

Payments are based on each member's share of the total trade between members. Contributions for 1969 totalled $3,174,000.

INTERNATIONAL TRADE CENTRE UNCTAD/GATT

Villa Le Boscage, Palais de Nations, Geneva

Established by GATT in May 1964 to assist the developing countries in their export trade by providing information on export markets and marketing, and helping them both to develop their export promotion services and to train the personnel required for these services.

The Centre has been jointly operated since January 1968 by GATT and UNCTAD.

The centre's services at present comprise four main sectors: Market Information Service, Publications Programme, Trade Promotion Advisory Service; Training Programme.

INTER-GOVERNMENTAL MARITIME CONSULTATIVE ORGANIZATION—IMCO

22 Berners Street, London, W.1, England

Telephone: 01-580 6141.

IMCO was set up in 1959 to facilitate co-operation among governments and to achieve safety and efficient navigation. It seeks to remove restrictions on the movement of international shipping. Members: 69.

ORGANIZATION

THE ASSEMBLY

President (1968-): H. R. BARDARSON (Iceland).

The Assembly consists of delegates from all member countries, who each have one vote. Associate members and observers from other governments, the United Nations and UN agencies are also present. Sessions are held regularly every two years. The first three took place in London in January 1959, April 1961 and October 1963, and the fourth in Paris in September 1965. The Assembly is responsible for the election of members to the Council and to the Maritime Safety Committee. It considers reports from all subsidiary bodies and decides the action to be taken on them. The Assembly votes the agency's budget and determines the financial policy. An important part of its work is to recommend to members measures designed to promote maritime safety.

THE COUNCIL

Chairman: I. AVERIN (U.S.S.R.).

MEMBERS

Australia	Ghana	Netherlands
Belgium	Greece	Norway
Brazil	India	Poland
Canada	Italy	United Kingdom
France	Japan	U.S.A.
German Federal Republic	Madagascar	U.S.S.R.

The Council is the governing body of the Organization between the biennial sessions of the Assembly. The Council appoints the Secretary-General; transmits reports by the Maritime Safety Committee to the Assembly and reports on the work of the Organization generally; submits budget estimates and financial statements with comments and recommendations to the Assembly. The Council normally meets twice a year.

LEGAL COMMITTEE

Established by the Council in June 1967 to deal initially with problems connected with the loss of the tanker Torrey Canyon, and subsequently with any legal problems laid before IMCO. Membership open to all IMCO Member States.

THE MARITIME SAFETY COMMITTEE

Chairman: CHARLES MURPHY (U.S.A.).

MEMBERS

Argentina	Italy	Sweden
Canada	Japan	United Arab Republic
France	Netherlands	United Kingdom
German Federal Republic	Norway	U.S.A.
Greece	Pakistan	U.S.S.R.
	Spain

The Maritime Safety Committee consists of sixteen members elected by the Assembly for a term of four years. The Committee meets at least once a year and submits proposals to the Assembly on matters relating to safety at sea.

SUB-COMMITTEES

Cargoes and Containers.	Safety of Fishing Vessels.
Carriage of Dangerous Goods.	Safety of Navigation.
Fire Protection.	Ship Design and Equipment.

SECRETARIAT

Secretary-General: COLIN GOAD (United Kingdom).

The Secretariat consists of the Secretary-General, the Deputy Secretary-General, the Secretary of the Maritime Safety Committee, and a staff appointed by the Secretary-General and recruited on as wide a geographical basis as possible. It comprises a Technical Division, an Administrative Division, a Technical Co-operation Division and a Legal Division.

ACTIVITIES

International Convention for Safety of Life at Sea, 1948, and Collision Regulations, 1948 IMCO has taken over administration from the United Kingdom

International Convention for Safety of Life at Sea, 1960, and Collision Regulations, 1960 A Conference held in 1960 revised the 1948 Safety Convention and prepared a new one. The 1960 Safety Convention, administered by IMCO, came into force on May 26th, 1965 and the 1960 Collision Regulations became effective on September 1st, 1965

International Convention for the Prevention of Pollution of the Sea by Oil, 1954 IMCO has taken over administration from the United Kingdom and an international conference in 1962 adopted certain amendments to the 1954 Convention. The amendments came into force in May 1967

Convention on Facilitation of International Maritime Traffic, 1965 Drawn up at a conference called by IMCO in 1965. The object of the convention is to reduce and simplify governmental procedures and documentation for ships. Came into force in March 1967.

International Convention on Load Lines, 1966 Drawn up at a conference called by IMCO in 1966. It will eventually replace the current Load Line Convention of 1930. The Convention is to come into force in July 1968

International Convention on Tonnage Measurement of Ships, 1969 Drawn up at a Conference called by IMCO in 1969, the Convention embodies a universal system for measuring ships' tonnage. Will come into force two years after acceptance or accession by twenty-five governments of states, the combined fleets of which constitute not less than 65 per cent of gross tonnage of world merchant shipping.

Sub-Committee on Cargoes and Containers Has drawn up the Code of Safe Practice for Bulk Cargoes, which will be kept up to date. Has drawn up new Grain Regulations, adopted by 1969 Assembly as equivalent to Chapter VI of International Convention for the Safety of Life at Sea, 1960

Sub-Committee on the Carriage of Dangerous Goods Has drawn up International Maritime Dangerous Goods Code, which will be kept up to date

Sub-Committee on Fire Protection Deals with fire protection measures for ships, including tankers.

Sub-Committee on Life-Saving Appliances Deals with questions pertaining to life-saving equipment

Sub-Committee on Marine Pollution Keeps the problem of pollution and its prevention under constant review

Sub-Committee on Radiocommunications Deals with questions pertaining to radiocommunications from the viewpoint of safety at sea. Responsible for periodic revision of the International Code of Signals

Sub-Committee on Safety of Navigation Deals with questions pertaining to safety of navigation, including those relevant to new types of craft, and with traffic separation schemes

Sub-Committee on Ship Design and Equipment Considers primarily the construction and equipment of ships carrying bulk cargoes of dangerous chemical substances other than petroleum and similar inflammable products normally carried in tankers, aims to recommend suitable design criteria, constructional standards and other safety measures

Sub-Committee on Safety of Fishing Vessels Considers and makes recommendations on safety aspects of these vessels

Sub-Committee on Subdivision and Stability Examines watertight subdivision of passenger ships, intact stability of passenger and cargo ships, subdivision and damage stability of cargo ships

An International Conference on Tonnage Measurement is to be held in 1969 with the aim of adopting a universal system.

BUDGET

The establishment of IMCO was financed by a loan from the United Nations. Arrangements were made by the first Assembly to place the Organization on a sound financial basis with contributions assessed from member states. The budget for operations during 1970 was established at $1,258,888 and during 1971 at $1,448,106

CONVENTION

PART I—PURPOSES

ARTICLE 1. (a) to provide machinery for co-operation among governments in the field of governmental regulation and practices relating to technical matters of all kinds affecting shipping engaged in international trade, and to encourage the general adoption of the highest practicable standards in matters concerning maritime safety and efficiency of navigation,

(b) to encourage the removal of discriminatory action and unnecessary restrictions by governments affecting shipping engaged in international trade so as to promote the availability of shipping services to the commerce of the world without discrimination, assistance and encouragement given by a government for the development of its national shipping and for purposes of security does not in itself constitute discrimination, provided that such assistance and encouragement is not based on measures designed to restrict the freedom of shipping of all flags to take part in international trade,

(c) to provide for the consideration by the Organization of matters concerning unfair restrictive practices by shipping concerns in accordance with Part II;

THE UNITED NATIONS—(SPECIALIZED AGENCIES)

(d) to provide for the consideration by the Organization of any matters concerning shipping that may be referred to it by any organ or Specialized Agency of the United Nations;

(e) to provide for the exchange of information among governments on matters under consideration by the Organization.

PART II—FUNCTIONS

ARTICLE 2. The functions of the Organization shall be consultative and advisory.

ARTICLES 3 and 4. Description of functions.

PART III—MEMBERSHIP

ARTICLE 5. Membership in the Organization shall be open to all states.

ARTICLES 6–11. Conditions of membership.

PART IV—ORGANS

ARTICLE 12. The Organization shall consist of an Assembly, a Council, a Maritime Safety Committee, and such subsidiary organs as the Organization may at any time consider necessary; and a Secretariat.

PART V—ASSEMBLY

ARTICLE 13. The Assembly shall consist of all the members.

ARTICLES 14–16. Powers and duties of the Assembly.

PART VI—COUNCIL

ARTICLE 17. The Council shall be composed of eighteen members elected by the Assembly.

ARTICLE 18. In electing the members of the Council, the Assembly shall observe the following principles:

- (a) six shall be governments of States with the largest interest in providing international shipping services;
- (b) six shall be governments of other States with the largest interest in international seaborne trade;
- (c) six shall be governments of States not elected under (a) or (b) above, which have special interests in maritime transport or navigation and whose election to the Council will ensure the representation of all major geographic areas of the world.

ARTICLES 19–27. Powers and duties of the Council.

PART VII—MARITIME SAFETY COMMITTEE

ARTICLE 28. The Maritime Safety Committee shall consist of sixteen members elected by the Assembly from members, governments of those States having an important interest in maritime safety of which:

- (a) eight members shall be elected from among the ten largest shipowning States;

(b) four members shall be elected in such manner as to ensure that, under this sub-paragraph, a State in each of the following areas is represented: I: Africa; II. The Americas; III. Asia and Oceania; IV. Europe;

(c) the remaining four members shall be elected from among States not otherwise represented on the Committee. For the purpose of this Article, States having an important interest in maritime safety shall include, for example, States interested in the supply of large numbers of crews or in the carriage of berthed or unberthed passengers. Members of the Maritime Safety Committee shall be elected for a term of four years and shall be eligible for re-election.

ARTICLE 29. (a) The Maritime Safety Committee shall have the duty of considering any matter within the scope of the Organization and concerned with aids to navigation, construction and equipment of vessels, manning from a safety standpoint, rules for the prevention of collisions, handling of dangerous cargoes, maritime safety procedures and requirements, hydrographic information, log-books and navigational records, marine casualty investigation, salvage and rescue, and any other matters directly affecting maritime safety.

(b) The Maritime Safety Committee shall provide machinery for performing any duties assigned to it by the Convention, or by the Assembly, or any duty within the scope of this Article which may be assigned to it by any other intergovernmental instrument.

(c) Having regard to the provisions of Part XII, the Maritime Safety Committee shall have the duty of maintaining such close relationship with other intergovernmental bodies concerned with transport and communications as may further the object of the Organization in promoting maritime safety and facilitate the co-ordination of activities in the fields of shipping, aviation, telecommunications and meteorology with respect to safety and rescue.

ARTICLES 30–32. Powers and duties of the Maritime Safety Committee.

PART VIII—SECRETARIAT

ARTICLE 33. The Secretariat shall comprise the Secretary-General, a Secretary of the Maritime Safety Committee and such staff as the Organization may require.

ARTICLES 34–38. Powers and duties of the Secretariat.

INTERNATIONAL CIVIL AVIATION ORGANIZATION—ICAO

International Aviation Building, Montreal, Canada

Founded in 1947 to foster the development of international civil aviation for peaceful purposes. Members: 117

ORGANIZATION

ASSEMBLY

Composed of representatives of the member nations, and is the organization's legislative body, meets every three years

COUNCIL

Comprises representatives of twenty-seven nations elected by the Assembly. It is the executive body, and establishes and supervises subsidiary technical committees and makes recommendations to member governments, meets in virtually continuous session; elects the President, appoints the Secretary-General, and administers the finances of the organization

President of the Council: WALTER BINAGHI (Argentina)

Secretary-General: B. T. TWIGT (Netherlands)

FUNCTIONS OF THE COUNCIL

1. Adopts international standards and recommended practices and incorporates them as annexes to the Convention on International Civil Aviation
2. Acts as arbiter between member states on matters concerning aviation and implementation of the Convention.
3. Investigates any situation which prevents avoidable obstacles to development of international air navigation.
4. Takes whatever steps are necessary to maintain safety and regularity of operation of international air transport

ACTIVITIES DURING 1969

In 1969 the ICAO Legal Subcommittee prepared a draft international agreement with a view to ensuring that States establish their jurisdiction to try as a criminal offender a person who unlawfully seizes the control of aircraft in flight; in addition, the offence of hijacking shall be deemed to be included in bilateral or multilateral agreements or arrangements concerning extradition of offenders. The draft convention will be considered by the Legal Committee in 1970 and eventually submitted to a diplomatic conference for adoption and opening for signature

Technical and aeronautical aspects of unlawful seizure of aircraft were studied by the Air Transport Committee and Air Navigation Commission

In April 1969 the Council of ICAO established a Committee to study future acts of unlawful interference with international civil aviation and to develop preventive measures and procedures to safeguard international civil aviation against such acts

The Convention on Offences and Certain Other Acts Committed on Board Aircraft, signed under the auspices of ICAO at Tokyo on September 14th, 1963, came into force on December 4th, 1969, this Convention, among other problems, provides for restoration of control of the hijacked aircraft to its lawful commander and release of passengers as soon as practicable

INTERNATIONAL LABOUR ORGANISATION—ILO

154 Rue de Lausanne, CH-1211 Geneva 22, Switzerland

ILO was founded in 1919 to deal with social and labour problems. In 1946 it became UN's first Specialized Agency. The ILO was awarded the Nobel Prize in 1969. Members: 121.

ORGANIZATION

INTERNATIONAL LABOUR CONFERENCE

President (1969): JEAN MÖRI (Switzerland).

Vice-Presidents (1969): ANGEL TZANKOV (Bulgaria), EDWIN P. NEILAN (U.S.A.), ALBERT ERNEST MONK (Australia).

The supreme deliberative body of ILO. Normally meets annually at Geneva. Attended by more than 1,200 delegates, advisers and observers. National delegations are composed of two government delegates, one employers' delegate and one workers' delegate. Non-governmental delegates can speak and vote independently of the views of their government. Conference elects the Governing Body and adopts the Budget and International Labour Conventions and Recommendations.

The President and Vice-Presidents hold office for the term of the Conference only.

INTERNATIONAL LABOUR OFFICE

Director-General: DAVID A. MORSE (U.S.A.).

Principal Deputy Director-General: C. W. JENKS (United Kingdom).

Deputy Directors-General: A. M. ANMAR (U.A.R.), F. BLANCHARD (France).

Assistant Directors-General: H. A. MAJID (Pakistan), E. J. RICHES (New Zealand), BERTIL BOLIN (Sweden), ALBERT TÉVOÉDJRÉ (Dahomey), XAVIER CABALLERO TAMAYO (Bolivia).

The International Labour Office is the Organisation's secretariat, operational headquarters and publishing house. It is staffed in Geneva and in the field by some 2,400 officials of more than 100 nationalities. Operations are decentralized to regional, area and branch offices in over 30 countries.

GOVERNING BODY

Chairman (1969-70): HECTOR GROS ESPIELL (Uruguay).

Employers' Vice-Chairman (1969-70): GULLMAR BERGENSTRÖM (Sweden).

Workers' Vice-Chairman (1969-70): JEAN MÖRI (Switzerland).

ILO's executive council. Normally meets three or four times a year at Geneva to decide policy and programmes. Composed of 24 government members, 12 employers' members and 12 workers' members. Ten of the government members represent "states of chief industrial importance"—Canada, Republic of China (Taiwan), France, German Federal Republic, India, Italy, Japan, U.S.S.R., United Kingdom, United States. The remaining 14 are elected from other countries every three years. Employers' and workers' members are elected as individuals, not as national candidates.

INTERNATIONAL INSTITUTE FOR LABOUR STUDIES

Established by ILO in March 1960. The Institute is an advanced educational and research institution in social and labour policy, and brings together international experts representing employers, management, workers and government interests. Activities include international and regional study courses, and are financed by grants and an Endowment Fund to which governments and other bodies contribute.

Director: R. W. COX (Canada).

INTERNATIONAL CENTRE FOR ADVANCED TECHNICAL AND VOCATIONAL TRAINING

Established by ILO in Turin, Italy, the Centre became operational in October 1965. It provides advanced technical, vocational and managerial training, in a modern industrial setting, to persons who are considered suitable for more advanced training than they can obtain in their own countries or regions. The ILO Director-General is Chairman of the Board. The Centre is financed by voluntary contributions, from governments, inter-governmental and non-governmental organizations, and other bodies.

Director: PHILIPPE BLAMONT (France).

ACTIVITIES

INTERNATIONAL LABOUR STANDARDS

One of the ILO's primary functions is the adoption by the International Labour Conference of Conventions and Recommendations setting minimum labour standards. Through ratification by member states, Conventions create binding obligations to put their provisions into effect. Recommendations provide guidance as to policy and practice. A total of 130 Conventions and 134 Recommendations have been adopted, ranging over a wide field of social and labour matters, including basic human rights such as freedom of association, abolition of forced labour and elimination of discrimination in employment. Together they form the International Labour Code. By the end of 1969, more than 3 500 Conventions had been ratified by member states.

TECHNICAL CO-OPERATION

In 1969, technical co-operation continued to be the ILO's major activity in terms of expenditure. An estimated $50 million from all sources, including the United Nations Development Programme and government counterpart contributions, was spent on ILO projects in aid of social and economic development. More than 700 ILO experts were at work in over 90 countries. Regional distribution of such expenditure in 1968 was as follows: Africa, 40.5 per cent, Latin America and the Caribbean, 18.7 per cent; Asia, 22.1 per cent, Europe, 8.2 per cent, Middle East, 6.3 per cent, inter-regional projects, 4.2 per cent.

THE WORLD EMPLOYMENT PROGRAMME

In 1969, its 50th anniversary year, the ILO launched a World Employment Programme designed to help governments provide work opportunities and job training for their mounting populations. The main components of the Programme are regional plans for Latin America, Asia and Africa. The Programme will involve not only the ILO but also co-operating international organizations and particularly the countries themselves. Its aim is to enable the people of developing countries to share in the fruits of economic progress through gainful and productive work.

MEETINGS

Among the important meetings scheduled for 1970, besides those of the International Labour Conference and the Governing Body, are the following: Conference of American States Members of the ILO, Coal Mines Committee, Metal Trades Committee, Asian Advisory Committee; Joint Committee on the Public Service, Committee on Work on Plantations; Meeting on Control of Atmospheric Pollution in the Working Environment.

INTERNATIONAL LABOUR CONFERENCE

The 33rd session of the International Labour Conference (June 1969) was marked by ceremonies commemorating the ILO's Fiftieth Anniversary at which were present world spiritual and political leaders including Pope Paul VI, Dr Eugene C. Blake, General Secretary of the World Council of Churches, U Thant, Secretary-General of the United Nations, H. I. M. Emperor Haile Selassie I of Ethiopia, President Kenneth Kaunda of Zambia, and President Ahmadou Ahidjo of Cameroon. One hundred and sixteen of the ILO's 121 member states were represented at the Conference, which was attended by nearly 1,400 delegates, advisers and observers.

The Conference formally endorsed the launching of the World Employment Programme and adopted four new international labour standards: A Convention and a Recommendation on labour inspection in agriculture, and a Convention and a Recommendation on medical care and sickness benefits. It further approved first drafts of three proposed standards dealing with paid holidays, minimum wages, and special youth employment and training schemes. Also on its agenda was the examination of the programme and structure of the ILO.

Agenda items for the 54th session of the International Labour Conference (June 1970): Director-General's report, budgetary and financial questions, information and reports on the application of Conventions and Recommendations; revision of Convention No. 52 concerning holidays with pay (second discussion), revision of Convention No. 26 and Recommendation No. 30 concerning minimum wage-fixing machinery and related problems with special reference to developing countries (second discussion), examination of a draft Recommendation on special youth employment and training schemes for development purposes (second discussion), trade union rights and their relation to civil liberties; protection and facilities afforded to workers' representatives in the undertaking.

The 55th (Maritime) session of the International Labour Conference will convene in October 1970 to work out higher international standards governing seafarers' living and working conditions, including minimum rates of pay for able seamen.

INTERNATIONAL TELECOMMUNICATION UNION—ITU

Place des Nations, Geneva, Switzerland

ITU succeeded, in 1934, the International Telegraph Union (founded 1865). It has three main purposes: to encourage world co-operation in the use of tele-communication, to promote the development of technical facilities and their efficient operation, and to harmonize the actions of nations in the attainment of these common ends.

Members: 137.

ORGANIZATION

PLENIPOTENTIARY CONFERENCE

The supreme organ of ITU; meets about every five years. Each member has one vote at the Conference, whose main tasks are to approve budget policy and accounts, to negotiate with other international organizations, and generally direct policy. Last Conference: Montreux, September 1965. Next Conference, Geneva 1972.

WORLD ADMINISTRATIVE CONFERENCES

The Administrative Telegraph and Telephone Conference: revises telegraph and telephone regulations.

World Administrative Radio Conference: revises radio regulations, elects the members of the International Frequency Registration Board, and reviews its activities.

World Administrative Conferences meet at irregular intervals according to technical needs, and there may also be regional Administrative Conferences held ad hoc.

A World Administrative Radio Conference for Space Telecommunications will meet in Geneva in June 1971 for a duration of six or seven weeks.

ADMINISTRATIVE COUNCIL

The Administrative Council meets annually in Geneva; the 24th session was held in May 1969. The Council is composed of 29 members elected by the Plenipotentiary Conference.

The Council helps the implementation of the Convention's provisions, and executes the decisions of the Plenipotentiary Conference and, where appropriate, the decisions of the conferences and meetings of the Union. It conducts relations with other international organizations, and approves the annual budget.

GENERAL SECRETARIAT

Secretary-General: MOHAMED MILI (Tunisia).

Deputy Secretary-General: RICHARD E. BUTLER (Australia).

Director of External Affairs: CLIFFORD STEAD (United Kingdom).

Chief, Department of Common Services: RUSSELL COOK (U.S.A.).

The Secretary-General is elected by the Plenipotentiary Conference, and is responsible to it for the General Secretariat's work, and for the Union's administrative and financial services. The General Secretariat's staff totals 263; the working languages are English, French and Spanish.

INTERNATIONAL FREQUENCY REGISTRATION BOARD (IFRB)

Chairman: TARO NISHIZAKI (Japan); 5 mems.; number of staff 99.

IFRB records assignments of radio frequencies and provides technical advice to enable members of the Union to operate as many radio channels as possible in overcrowded parts of the radio spectrum. It also investigates cases of harmful interference and makes recommendations for their solution.

INTERNATIONAL TELEGRAPH AND TELEPHONE CONSULTATIVE COMMITTEE (CITT)

Director: JEAN ROUVIERE (France), number of staff 32

CITT is currently organizing sixteen study groups and two special study groups covering transmission problems, operation and tariffs, radio relay links, maintenance, electromagnetic dangers, protection of equipment, definitions, vocabulary and symbols, apparatus, local connecting lines, facsimile- and photo-telegraphy, quality of transmission, specifications, telegraph and telex switching, telephone signalling and switching and planning the development of an international network. It has its own telephone laboratory.

INTERNATIONAL RADIO CONSULTATIVE COMMITTEE (CCIR)

Director: JACK W. HERBSTREIT (U.S.A.); number of staff 24

CCIR is currently organizing fourteen study groups covering transmitters, receivers, fixed service systems, casting, television, tropical broadcasting, mobile services, vocabulary and space communications. The television study group is working on the following matters: television recording, television standards for both black and white and colour transmission, ratio of the wanted to unwanted signal in television, reduction of band width, conversion of a television signal from one standard to another, estimates of the quality of television pictures, etc.

HISTORY OF ITU

The General Assembly of the United Nations acknowledged ITU as the specialized agency in the field of telecommunication on November 15th, 1947. ITU is the oldest of the specialized agencies. Its origin dates back to May 1865, when the International Telegraph Union was founded in Paris by the signing of the International Telegraph Convention. The Paris Convention was revised in Vienna in 1868, in Rome in 1872 and in St. Petersburg in 1875. At Vienna it was decided to create a permanent international bureau, which became the forerunner of the present General Secretariat of ITU. From 1869 to 1948 its headquarters were in Berne.

In 1932 two plenipotentiary conferences were held in Madrid: a Telegraph and Telephone Conference and a Radio-telegraph Conference. The two existing Conventions were amalgamated in a single International Telecommunication Convention, and the countries which signed or acceded to it formed the International Telecommunication Union, replacing the Telegraph Union. Four sets of regulations were annexed to the Convention: Telegraph, Telephone, Radio and the Additional Radio Regulations.

A Plenipotentiary Conference met in Atlantic City in 1947 to revise the Madrid Convention. It introduced radical changes in the organization of the Union: new organs were created, it became a UN specialized agency, and in 1948 its headquarters were transferred from Berne to Geneva.

The Radio Conference, which met in 1947 at the same time as the Plenipotentiary Conference, prepared a new frequency allocation table for the various radio services. The new procedure provided for an engineering study to be made of each frequency notified to the International Frequency Registration Board. At the Radio Conference held in Geneva in 1959, the radio frequency spectrum was re-apportioned. (Within this, various bands are allocated to the Fixed, Broadcasting, Aeronautical Mobile, Land Mobile, Maritime Mobile, Radionavigation, Radiolocation, Space, Earth-Space, Radio Astronomy, Meteorological Aids, Amateur, Standard Frequency and Time Signal Services). Advances in knowledge, techniques and usage required allocations to be made beyond the previous limit of 10,500 MHz; allocations were therefore made up to 40,000 MHz. Although the future radio requirements for the new services of space and earth-space and for radio astronomy could not be foreseen, care was taken to ensure that the research in this field would not be hampered by lack of frequency allocation.

A Plenipotentiary Conference was held in Buenos Aires in 1952, in Geneva during 1959 and in Montreux in 1965. Telegraph and Telephone Conferences and Radio Conferences are normally held every five years. The last Telegraph and Telephone Conferences were held in Cairo in 1938, in Paris in 1949 and in Geneva in 1958. Radio Conferences were held in Cairo in 1938, in Atlantic City in 1947, and in Geneva in 1959. In October and November 1963, ITU held a world Space Radiocommunications Conference in Geneva at which over 6,000 megahertz (about 15 per cent of the entire radio frequency spectrum) were allocated for outer space purposes.

Other recent ITU conferences were an Aeronautical Radiocommunications Conference held in Geneva in March-April 1966, an African Broadcasting Conference held in Geneva during January-February 1964 and September-October 1966, and a World Maritime Radiocommunications Conference which took place in September 1967.

CONVENTION AND REGULATIONS

MONTREUX CONVENTION

The International Telecommunications Convention (Montreux, 1965), which replaced the 1959 Geneva Convention and lays down the organization and structure of ITU, came into force on January 1st, 1967. It contains the fundamental provisions which bind the Member and Associate Member Governments of the Union with the object of facilitating relations and co-operation between the peoples by means of efficient telecommunication services. These provisions deal with the composition, functions and structure of the Union, the application of the Convention and Regulations, relations with the United Nations and with International Organizations, and with special rules for radio.

TELEGRAPH AND TELEPHONE REGULATIONS

The Telegraph and Telephone Regulations were adopted during the 1958 Geneva Telegraph and Telephone Conference and are still in force. They deal with problems of telegraph and telephone rates and tariffs among ITU Member countries. These two Regulations lay down the rules to be observed in the international telephone service. Their provisions are applied to both wire and wireless telegraph and telephone communications so far as the Radio Regulations and the Additional Radio Regulations do not provide otherwise.

RADIO REGULATIONS

The Regulations are attached to the Geneva Convention, and bind all Members and Associate Members. They include general rules for the assignment and use of frequencies and—the most important part of the Regulations—a Table of Frequency Allocations between 10 kHz and 40 kHz to the various radio services: broadcasting, television, radio astronomy, navigation aid, point-to-point service, maritime mobile, amateur, etc. Chapter III deals with the duties of the International Frequency Registration Board. The Regulations governing measures against interference follow. Subsequently, there are the administrative provisions for stations (secrecy, licences, identification, service documents, inspection of mobile stations).

Chapters VI and VII are concerned with personnel and working conditions in the mobile services, and Chapter VIII with radio assistance in life saving. The last two chapters deal with radiotelegrams and radiotelephone calls and miscellaneous stations and services. Partial revision of the Radio Regulations, Geneva 1959, entered into force on January 1st, 1965 for space service and on July 1st, 1967 for the Aeronautical Mobile Services.

UNITED NATIONS EDUCATIONAL, SCIENTIFIC AND CULTURAL ORGANIZATION—UNESCO

7 & 9 place de Fontenoy, Paris 7e, France
Telephone 566 57-57, 705 97-49, 705 99-48

UNESCO was established in 1945. The purpose of the Organization is to contribute to peace and security by promoting collaboration among the nations through education, science, and culture in order to further universal respect for justice, for the rule of law, and for the human rights and fundamental freedoms which are affirmed for the peoples of the world, without distinction of race, sex, language, or religion, by the Charter of the United Nations.

PRIMARY TASKS

1. To eliminate illiteracy and encourage universal free and compulsory education.
2. To obtain for each person an education conforming to his aptitudes and to the needs of society, including technological training and higher education.
3. To promote, through education, respect for Human Rights throughout all nations.
4. To overcome the obstacles to the free flow of persons, ideas, and knowledge between the countries of the world.
5. To promote the progress and utilisation of science for the benefit of all mankind.
6. To focus the social sciences on the study of particular social questions for the benefit both of the general public and of governments.

7. To assure the preservation of the world's inheritance of books, works of art and monuments of history and science, to make this cultural heritage known and available to all, and to promote mutual appreciation of differing cultural values.
8. To advance through the media of mass communication the causes of truth, freedom, and peace.
9. To bring about better understanding among the peoples of the world and to convince them of the necessity of co-operating loyally with one another in the framework of the United Nations.
10. To provide clearing-house and exchange service in all its fields of action, together with technical aid to nations and peoples in emergencies.

THE UNITED NATIONS—(SPECIALIZED AGENCIES)

REGULAR PROGRAMME

Development of International Co-operation. Promotion of co-operation in natural science, social sciences, education and mass communication. Organization of seminars, discussions and conferences.

Improving Documentation. Collection, analysis and diffusion of information, including statistics. Promotion of national Documentation Centres.

School Education. Extension of free and compulsory education, improvement of school curricula, education for international understanding, vocational and technical education, higher education, and educational planning.

Education Outside School. Fundamental education (community development), adult education and youth work.

Aid to Scientific Research and Development. Creation of international bodies and promotion of research in a wide variety of natural sciences, with particular reference to their application to development.

Applied Social Sciences. Use of social sciences to study and solve great contemporary social problems such as human rights, racial prejudice and social questions in the developing countries.

Preservation of the Cultural Heritage of Mankind. Conservation and protection of books, works of art and historical and scientific monuments.

Mutual Appreciation of Cultural Values. Encouragement of a better knowledge of the cultures of different peoples to further real understanding.

Free Flow of Information. Sponsorship of international agreements, reduction of postal, transport and other obstacles, expansion and improvements of communications.

International Training of Specialists. Awards for fellowships abroad, organization of special courses, improvement of planning and administration of international training programmes.

Human Rights. Application of the UN Declaration of Human Rights.

OTHER PROGRAMMES

United Nations Development Programme—UNDP

Technical Assistance: aid to the developing countries by sending experts, equipment and supplies and by granting fellowships.

Special Fund: teacher training, training of technicians and applied scientific research.

Participation Programme. Development assistance in fields, such as social sciences, cultural activities.

Other International Accounts. Co-operation with other international aid and educational programmes, notably with IDA.

INTERNATIONAL INSTITUTE FOR EDUCATIONAL PLANNING—IIEP

9 rue Eugène Delacroix, Paris 16e

Established by UNESCO in 1963 to serve as a world centre for advanced training and research in educational planning. Its purpose is to help all member states of UNESCO in their social and economic development efforts, by enlarging the fund of knowledge about educational planning and the supply of competent experts in this field.

Legally and administratively a part of UNESCO, the Institute enjoys intellectual autonomy, and its policies and programme are controlled by its own Governing Board, under special statutes voted by the General Conference of UNESCO.

Chairman of Governing Board: Sir SYDNEY CAINE.

Director: RAYMOND POIGNANT.

Publications include Progress Report 1963-1967 and over 50 titles in English, French and Spanish.

INTERNATIONAL BUREAU OF EDUCATION—IBE

Palais Wilson, 1211 Geneva 14, Switzerland

Founded in 1925 by a group of Genevan educationists, the IBE became an intergovernmental organization in July 1929 and was incorporated into UNESCO in January 1969

COUNCIL

The Council of the IBE is composed of representatives of 21 member states designated by the General Conference of UNESCO. These are Belgium, Cameroon, Colombia, Federal Republic of Germany, France, Gabon, Hungary, India, Italy, Japan, Lebanon, Malaysia, Mauritania, Nigeria, Poland, Senegal, Switzerland, Turkey, U.S.A., U.S.S.R.

CONSTITUTION

London, November 16th, 1945

The Governments of the States parties to this Constitution on behalf of their peoples declare:

That since wars begin in the minds of men, it is in the minds of men that the defences of peace must be constructed;

That ignorance of each other's ways and lives has been a common cause, throughout the history of mankind, of that suspicion and mistrust between the peoples of the world through which their differences have all too often broken into war;

That the great and terrible war which has now ended was a war made possible by the denial of the democratic principles of the dignity, equality, and mutual respect of men, and by the propagation, in their place, through ignorance and prejudice, of the doctrine of the inequality of men and races;

That the wide diffusion of culture, and the education of humanity for justice and liberty and peace are indispensable to the dignity of man and constitute a sacred duty which all the nations must fulfil in a spirit of mutual assistance and concern;

That a peace based exclusively upon the political and economic arrangements of governments would not be a peace which could secure the unanimous, lasting, and sincere support of the peoples of the world, and that the peace must therefore be founded, if it is not to fail, upon the intellectual and moral solidarity of mankind.

For these reasons, the States parties to this Constitution, believing in full and equal opportunities for education for all, in the unrestricted pursuit of objective truth, and in the free exchange of ideas and knowledge, are agreed and determined to develop and to increase the means of communication between their peoples and to employ these means for the purposes of mutual understanding and a truer and more perfect knowledge of each other's lives.

In consequence whereof they do hereby create the United Nations Educational, Scientific, and Cultural Organization for the purpose of advancing, through the educational and scientific and cultural relations of the peoples of the world, the objectives of international peace and of the common welfare of mankind for which the United Nations Organization was established and which its Charter proclaims.

PERIODICALS

UNESCO Courier: monthly illustrated journal devoted to the general activities of UNESCO; English, French, German, Spanish, Russian, Italian, Arabic, Japanese, Hindi, Tamil, Hebrew and Persian.

UNESCO Chronicle: monthly, giving official information, records of meetings, reports, and articles on UNESCO's programme, etc.; English, French, Arabic and Spanish.

Bulletin for Libraries: bi-monthly, containing information of use to libraries, scientific research institutes, etc.; chapters offering publications on exchange and for free distribution as well as lists of publications wanted by libraries; English, French, Spanish and Russian.

Copyright Bulletin: quarterly review of special studies and documentation on the legislation in different countries, and on UNESCO's work on behalf of the harmonization of the various copyright laws; trilingual (English-French-Spanish).

Museum: quarterly international review of museographical techniques intended for museum specialists; bilingual (English-French).

Impact of Science on Society: quarterly review of current events and trends in science and of their social consequences; English, French and Spanish.

International Social Science Journal: quarterly journal providing a forum for professional debate on important topics of timely significance by international panels of scholars. Other features provide a regular documentation service to social scientists; English and French.

Prospects in Education: quarterly, providing educators, educational institutions and teaching personnel in UNESCO's Member States with articles and information from world-wide sources, and at the same time designed to help teachers—particularly at primary level—by offering them insight into the educational problems and solutions of other lands.

UNIVERSAL POSTAL UNION—UPU

3000 Berne 15, Switzerland

Telephone: (031) 44 06 21.

By the Treaty of Berne, 1874, the General Postal Union was founded, beginning operations in July 1875. Three years later its name was changed to the Universal Postal Union. In 1948 UPU became a Specialized Agency of UN Members: 142

PRINCIPLES GOVERNING THE ACTIVITIES OF THE UNION

The essential principles of the Union, introduced by the Berne Convention (1874) and still appearing in the Constitution and the present Convention are the following

- 1 Formation of one single postal territory
- 2 Unification of postal charges
- 3 Abolition of the sharing of charges between the sender country and the country of destination

- 4 Guarantee of freedom of transit.
- 5 Settlement of disputes by arbitration
- 6 Establishment of a central office (secretariat) under the name of the International Bureau paid for by all members
- 7 Periodical meeting of Congresses.

CONGRESS

The Supreme body of the Union is Congress which meets every five years. Its duties are legislative and consist mainly of revision of the Acts. Sixteen Congresses have been held

Berne . . . 1874	London . . . 1929
Paris . . . 1878	Cairo . . . 1934
Lisbon . . . 1885	Buenos Aires . . . 1939
Vienna . . . 1891	Paris . . . 1947
Washington . . . 1897	Brussels . . . 1952
Rome . . . 1906	Ottawa . . . 1957
Madrid . . . 1920	Vienna . . . 1964
Stockholm . . . 1924	Tokyo . . . 1969

EXECUTIVE COUNCIL

Between Congresses, an Executive Council, created by the Paris Congress 1947, meets annually at Berne. It is composed of 31 member countries of the Union elected by Congress on the basis of an equitable geographical distribution. Its role is to ensure continuity of the Union's work in the interval between Congresses, namely to study the problems submitted to it by Congress

CONSULTATIVE COUNCIL FOR POSTAL STUDIES

At the Ottawa Congress 1957 a Consultative Committee for Postal Studies was established, the aim of which was to make recommendations on technical, operational and economic questions related to the postal service. At the Tokyo Congress 1969 this Committee became the Consultative Council for Postal Studies (CCPS), whose 30 member countries meet annually, in principle at Berne

INTERNATIONAL BUREAU

The day-to-day work of UPU is executed through a permanent organ called the International Bureau stationed at Berne. It serves as an instrument of liaison, information and consultation for the postal administration of the member countries

Director-General of the International Bureau: Dr MICHEL RAHII (U A R)

BUDGET

The Tokyo Congress, 1969, fixed 7,000,000 Swiss francs as the basic figure for annual expenditure. This sum, and any extraordinary expenses, are borne by members. Members are listed in seven classes setting out the proportion they should pay

PUBLICATIONS

UPU publications are listed in Liste des publications du Bureau international, all are in French, some also in English.

Union Postale (monthly review): published in French, German, English, Arabic, Chinese, Spanish and Russian.

THE UNITED NATIONS—(SPECIALIZED AGENCIES)

CONSTITUTION, GENERAL REGULATIONS AND CONVENTIONS

The Constitution, which came into being as a result of the division of the Universal Postal Convention by the Vienna Congress in 1964, contains the basic organic provisions of the UPU. It took effect on January 1st, 1966, and was thenceforth the permanent Act of the Union.

The provisions providing for the application of the Constitution and the operation of the Union are contained in the General Regulations, which, like the other UPU Acts and unlike the Constitution, is renewable at each Congress.

The common rules applicable to the international postal service and to the letter-post provisions are contained in the Universal Postal Convention and its Detailed Regulations. Owing to their importance in the postal field and their historical value, these two Acts, together with the Constitution and the General Regulations, constitute the compulsory Acts of the Union. It is therefore not possible to be a member country of the Union without being a party to these Acts and applying their provisions.

SPECIAL AGREEMENTS

The activities of the international postal service, other than letter mail, are governed by Special Agreements. These are binding only for the countries which have acceded to them. There are eight such Agreements:

1. Agreement concerning Insured Letters and Boxes.
2. Agreement concerning Postal Parcels.
3. Agreement concerning Postal Money Orders and postal Travellers' Cheques.

4. Agreement concerning Transfers to and from Postal Cheque Accounts.
5. Agreement concerning Cash on Delivery items.
6. Agreement concerning the Collection of Bills.
7. Agreement concerning the International Savings Bank Service.
8. Agreement concerning Subscriptions to Newspapers and Periodicals.

WORLD HEALTH ORGANIZATION—WHO

Avenue Appia, 1211 Geneva, Switzerland

Telephone 34 60 61.

Established in 1948. The purpose of WHO is the attainment by all peoples of the highest possible level of health.
Members. 131

ORGANIZATION

WORLD HEALTH ASSEMBLY

President (1969-70) Dr WILLIAM H STEWART (U.S.A.)

Vice-Presidents (1969-70) ETI LUAMANUVAE (Western Samoa), Prof JAN KOSTRZEWSKI (Poland), Dr ABDOL MAHMOUD SALLAM (U.A.R.), Dr JULIE SULIANTY SAROSO (Indonesia), Dr J. C. HAPPI (Cameroon)

Chairman, Committee on Programme and Budget: Prof BROR A. REKED (Sweden)

Chairman, Committee on Administration, Finance and Legal Matters: Dr SAMUEL P. W. STREET (Jamaica)

The World Health Assembly meets once a year, usually in Geneva, but occasionally away from headquarters, at the invitation of a member state. The Assembly determines policy, adopts a programme and budget for the following year, appoints the Director-General, admits new members and decides the scale of assessments for members' contributions to the budget.

EXECUTIVE BOARD

Chairman: Sir WILLIAM REFSHAGE (Australia)

Vice-Chairmen: Dr IVAN S. KADAMA (Uganda), Prof ION MORARU (Romania)

Rapporteurs: Dr HACHEM M. EL KADI (U.A.R.), Dr I. IBRAHIM KONE (Ivory Coast)

The Board is composed of twenty-four health experts designated by, but not representing, their governments.

It meets at least twice a year to review the Director-General's programme, which it forwards to the Assembly with any recommendations that seem necessary. It also advises the Assembly on questions referred to it by that body.

SECRETARIAT

Director-General: Dr. M. G. CANDAU (Brazil)

Deputy Director-General: Dr P. DOROLLE.

Assistant Directors-General: Dr. N. F. IZMEROV, Dr. J. KAREFA-SMART, M. P. SIEGEL, Dr. L. BERNARD, Dr. A. M.-M. PAYNE.

REGIONS

Africa: Dr A. QUENUM, P.O. B. 6, Brazzaville, Congo

Americas: Dr. ABRAHAM HORWITZ, Pan-American Sanitary Bureau, 525 23rd St., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20037, U.S.A.

Eastern Mediterranean: Dr. A. H. TABA, P.O.B. 1517, Alexandria, United Arab Republic

Europe: Dr. LEO KAPRIO, 8 Scherfigsvej, Copenhagen Ø, Denmark.

South-East Asia: Dr. V. T. HERAT GUNARATNE, Indraprastha Estate, Ring Rd., New Delhi 1, India.

Western Pacific: Dr. FRANCISCO J. DY, P.O.B. 2932, Manila, Philippines

ACTIVITIES IN 1969

WORLD HEALTH DAY

April 7th is designated as World Health Day to commemorate the coming into existence of WHO on that date in 1948. The theme in 1969 was "Health, Labour and Productivity" in homage to the International Labour Organisation, which celebrated its 50th anniversary in that year. The need for a properly planned programme to deal with the health hazards of workers was stressed. Dust, heat, noise, toxic substances and fatigue all tend to undermine the health of workers. The machine must be adapted to man rather than man to the machine. Doctors, nurses, social workers, health engineers and architects can all contribute to maintaining the physical and mental well-being of the workers.

WORLD HEALTH ASSEMBLY

The World Health Assembly met in Boston, Massachusetts, 10 July 1969, at the invitation of the Government of the United States of America, to commemorate the founding of the Public Health Department of the State of Massachusetts one hundred years earlier. The Assembly adopted a budget of $67,650,000 to finance the 1970 programme of WHO, an increase of $5,528,300 over that for 1969. The WHO programme of assistance to governments and technical services is also financed with the help of voluntary contributions and the United Nations Development Programme. Many projects receive substantial aid from the United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF).

New international health regulations. The Assembly decided to modernize the existing international sanitary regulations to meet the tremendous increase in the speed and volume of travel. The aim of the new health regulations, which will come into force on January 1st, 1971, is to make fuller use of modern technology to prevent the spread of disease.

Strategy of malaria eradication revised. A number of technical, administrative and financial difficulties have caused serious setbacks in the malaria eradication programme in some countries. The Assembly reasserted that global eradication of malaria remains the long-term goal but adopted the Director-General's proposal for a new and more flexible approach. The introduction of a new strategy does not mean that malaria eradication has not made notable progress. Nearly a thousand million people now live in areas freed from the threat of endemic malaria—a unique achievement in the annals of public health and one which reflects great credit on the governments concerned.

Further progress on smallpox eradication. Significant progress was made in smallpox eradication in 1969 although not all countries were moving fast enough to assure the success of the campaign. Lack of basic health services was one of the principal reasons. Few countries concerned have developed adequate systems of surveillance and many have yet to achieve a satisfactory rate of vaccination, particularly of pre-school children. Nevertheless until November 4th, 1969, there were only 38,959 cases of smallpox which had been reported in the world. This is 33 per cent fewer than the 58,278 notifications during the same period in 1968 and 64 per cent fewer than the recorded cases during the same period in 1967.

Water fluoridation and dental health. The great majority of the member states attending the Assembly were in favour of fluoridation of community water supplies as a public health measure to prevent tooth decay. A resolution recommending it to member states was unanimously adopted.

Vector control. Diseases transmitted by insects and other vectors still constitute a major health problem in many countries. The control of these diseases, including malaria, depends mainly on the use of persistent pesticides. The Assembly recommended that WHO intensify research on alternative methods of vector control and continue to study the short-term and long-term effects of pesticides of the chlorinated hydrocarbon type.

Health aspects of population dynamics and family planning. Under the broad mandate given by the Assembly to WHO to work in the domain of the health aspects of human reproduction, family planning and population dynamics, the Organization has been assisting countries, on request, to introduce and extend family planning into health services, particularly those for mothers and children. WHO is also supporting laboratory and clinical research on infertility, foetal development, early growth and methods of fertility regulation, and epidemiological and administrative research studies to test various approaches to family planning care in the context of health services.

Medical research. The intensified medical research programme, initiated in 1959, now extends to virtually all aspects of public health. The programme, which is of fundamental importance to WHO's work, depends upon the advice and guidance it receives from the members of the Advisory Committee on Medical Research and scientific groups and also upon the work of innumerable scientists either working individually or in the ever-widening network of research institutes throughout the world. It is enriching knowledge of a host of problems which still impede progress in controlling major communicable diseases, the prevention of nutritional disorders, cancer, cardiovascular diseases and mental illness, among others.

INTERNATIONAL AGENCY FOR RESEARCH ON CANCER

Lyons, France

Members: Australia, France, Federal Republic of Germany, Israel, Italy, Netherlands, U.S.S.R., United Kingdom, U.S.A.

Director: Prof. H. HIGGINSON.

Established in 1965 to provide participating states with a means of co-operating in the stimulation and support of all phases of cancer research. The Agency is an autonomous body within the framework of WHO to participate and promote international co-operation in cancer research. The foundation stone of the building that will house the International Agency for Research on Cancer was laid in March 1969. Collaborative work with over 60 centres in different parts of the world is in progress. Three regional centres have been set up, in Nairobi, Singapore and Jamaica, to study environmental factors in cancer.

FEDERATION OF WORLD HEALTH FOUNDATIONS

The Federation of World Health Foundations, established with headquarters in Geneva in 1967, now represents World Health Foundations in Canada, Ceylon, Iran, Switzerland, the United Kingdom and the U.S.A. Their aim is to encourage voluntary support for the improvement of world health from sources such as business, industry and the general public.

CONSTITUTION

CHAPTER I

The objective of the World Health Organization shall be the attainment by all peoples of the highest possible level of health.

CHAPTER II

In order to achieve its objective, the functions of the Organization shall be

- (a) to act as the directing and co-ordinating authority on international health work,
- (b) to establish and maintain effective collaboration with the United Nations, specialized agencies, governmental health administrations, professional groups and such other organizations as may be deemed appropriate,
- (c) to assist governments, upon request, in strengthening health services,
- (d) to furnish appropriate technical assistance and, in emergencies, necessary aid upon the request or acceptance of governments,
- (e) to provide or assist in providing, upon the request of the United Nations, health services and facilities to special groups, such as the peoples of trust territories;
- (f) to establish and maintain such administrative and technical services as may be required, including epidemiological and statistical services,
- (g) to stimulate and advance work to eradicate epidemic, endemic and other diseases,
- (h) to promote, in co-operation with other specialized agencies where necessary, the prevention of accidental injuries,
- (i) to promote, in co-operation with other specialized agencies where necessary, the improvement of nutrition, housing, sanitation, recreation, economic or working conditions and other aspects of environmental hygiene,
- (j) to promote co-operation among scientific and professional groups which contribute to the advancement of health,
- (k) to propose conventions, agreements and regulations, and make recommendations with respect to international health matters and to perform such duties as may be assigned thereby to the Organization and are consistent with its objective;

- (l) to promote maternal and child health and welfare and to foster the ability to live harmoniously in a changing total environment,
- (m) to foster activities in the field of mental health, especially those affecting the harmony of human relations;
- (n) to promote and conduct research in the field of health,
- (o) to promote improved standards of teaching and training in the health, medical and related professions,
- (p) to study and report on, in co-operation with other specialized agencies where necessary, administrative and social techniques affecting public health and medical care from preventive and curative points of view, including hospital services and social security;
- (q) to provide information, counsel and assistance in the field of health,
- (r) to assist in developing an informed public opinion among all peoples on matters of health,
- (s) to establish and revise as necessary international nomenclatures of diseases, of causes of death and of public health practices;
- (t) to standardize diagnostic procedures as necessary,
- (u) to develop, establish and promote international standards with respect to food, biological, pharmaceutical and similar products,
- (v) generally to take all necessary action to attain the objective of the Organization

CHAPTER III

Membership in the Organization shall be open to all states

CHAPTER IV

The work of the Organization shall be carried out by:
The World Health Assembly
The Executive Board
The Secretariat

CHAPTER V

THE WORLD HEALTH ASSEMBLY

The functions of the Health Assembly shall be:

- (a) to determine the policies of the Organization;
- (b) to name the Members entitled to designate a person to serve on the Board;

THE UNITED NATIONS—(SPECIALIZED AGENCIES)

- (c) to appoint the Director-General;
- (d) to review and approve reports and activities of the Board and of the Director-General and to instruct the Board in regard to matters upon which action, study, investigation or report may be considered desirable;
- (e) to establish such committees as may be considered necessary for the work of the Organization;
- (f) to supervise the financial policies of the Organization and to review and approve the budget;
- (g) to instruct the Board and the Director-General to bring to the attention of Members and of international organizations, governmental or non-governmental, any matter with regard to health which the Health Assembly may consider appropriate;
- (h) to invite any organization, international or national, governmental or non-governmental, which has responsibilities related to those of the Organization, to appoint representatives to participate, without right of vote, in its meetings or in those of the committees and conferences convened under its authority, on conditions prescribed by the Health Assembly; but in the case of national organizations, invitations shall be issued only with the consent of the government concerned;
- (i) to consider recommendations bearing on health made by the General Assembly, the Economic and Social Council, the Security Council or Trusteeship Council of the United Nations, and to report to them on the steps taken by the Organization to give effect to such recommendations;
- (j) to report to the Economic and Social Council in accordance with any agreement between the Organization and the United Nations;
- (k) to promote and conduct research in the field of health by the personnel of the Organization, by the establishment of its own institutions or by co-operation with official or non-official institutions of any Member with the consent of its government;
- (l) to establish such other institutions as it may consider desirable;
- (m) to take any other appropriate action to further the objective of the Organization.

The World Health Assembly shall have authority to adopt regulations concerning:

- (a) sanitary and quarantine requirements and other procedures designed to prevent the international spread of disease;
- (b) nomenclatures with respect to diseases, causes of death and public health practices;
- (c) standards with respect to diagnostic procedures for international use;

- (d) standards with respect to the safety, purity, and potency of biological, pharmaceutical and similar products moving in international commerce;
- (e) advertising and labelling of biological, pharmaceutical and similar products moving in international commerce.

CHAPTER VI

THE EXECUTIVE BOARD

The Board shall consist of twenty-four persons designated by as many Members.

The Board shall meet at least twice a year and shall determine the place of each meeting.

The Board shall elect its chairman from among its members and shall adopt its own rules of procedure.

The functions of the Board shall be:

- (a) to give effect to the decisions and policies of the Health Assembly;
- (b) to act as the executive organ of the Health Assembly;
- (c) to perform any other functions entrusted to it by the Health Assembly;
- (d) to advise the Health Assembly on questions referred to it by that body and on matters assigned to the Organization by conventions, agreements and regulations;
- (e) to submit advice or proposals to the Health Assembly on its own initiative;
- (f) to prepare the agenda of meetings of the Health Assembly;
- (g) to submit to the Health Assembly for consideration and approval a general programme of work covering a specific period;
- (h) to study all questions within its competence;
- (i) to take emergency measures within the functions and financial resources of the Organization to deal with events requiring immediate action. In particular it may authorize the Director-General to take the necessary steps to combat epidemics, to participate in the organization of health relief to victims of a calamity and to undertake studies and research the urgency of which has been drawn to the attention of the Board by any Member or by the Director-General.

WORLD METEOROLOGICAL ORGANIZATION—WMO

41 ave. Giuseppe Motta, Geneva, Switzerland

Telephone 34 64 00.

WMO began its activities in 1951. It aims to standardize, co-ordinate and improve the services rendered by meteorology throughout the world. Members: 120 States, 12 Territories.

AIMS AND HISTORY

AIMS

1. To facilitate international co-operation in the establishment of networks of stations and centres to provide meteorological services and observations
2. To promote the establishment and maintenance of systems for the rapid exchange of weather information
3. To promote standardization of meteorological observations and ensure the uniform publication of observations and statistics
4. To further the application of meteorology to aviation, shipping, water problems, agriculture and other human activities
5. To encourage research and training in meteorology.

HISTORY

International co-operation in meteorology was established on a regular basis at the first Congress of meteorological directors held in Vienna in 1873. In 1947, at Washington, it was decided to establish a new organization founded on an agreement between governments. The Convention of the new World Meteorological Organization was ratified by a large number of countries, and began activities in 1951. It was recognized as a Specialized Agency when the General Assembly, in December 1951, approved an agreement between WMO and the United Nations. Membership is open to any country with a meteorological service which ratifies the Convention, or to whom the Convention is applied.

ORGANIZATION

WORLD METEOROLOGICAL CONGRESS

Supreme organ of WMO, convened every four years, all members are represented on it, adopts regulations, approves policy, programme and budget. Next meeting Geneva, 1971.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

Composed of twenty-four members, including the President, three Vice-Presidents and the Presidents of the six Regional Associations, meets at least yearly to prepare studies and recommendations for the Congress; supervises the implementation of Congress resolutions and regulations; informs members on technical matters and offers advice.

President: Dr A. NYBERG (Sweden).

Vice-Presidents: W. J. GIBBS (Australia), E. K. FEDOROV (U.S.S.R.), (position of third Vice-President vacant)

SECRETARIAT

Secretary-General: D. A. DAVIES (United Kingdom).

Deputy Secretary-General: J. R. RIVER (France).

The Secretariat serves as the administrative, documentary and information centre of the Organization, undertakes special technical studies; prepares and distributes the approved publications, organizes meetings of WMO constituent bodies; generally acts as a link between the meteorological services of the world, and provides information for the general public.

REGIONAL ASSOCIATIONS

Members are grouped in six Regional Associations, whose task is to co-ordinate meteorological activity within their regions and to examine, from a regional point of view, questions referred to them by the Executive Committee. Sessions are held at least once every four years.

Africa President M. SECK (Senegal).

Asia President M. H. GANJI (Iran).

South America President A. GARCIA (Ecuador).

North and Central America President J. R. H. NOBLE (Canada).

South-West Pacific President: K. RAJENDRAN (acting) (Singapore).

Europe President R. J. SCHNEIDER (Switzerland).

THE UNITED NATIONS—(SPECIALIZED AGENCIES)

TECHNICAL COMMISSIONS

Eight Technical Commissions composed of experts nominated by members study the applications of meteorology and problems and developments in specialized fields. Sessions are held at least once every four years. The Commissions are:

Synoptic Meteorology (CSM)	President: N. LEONOV (acting) (U.S.S.R.).
Climatology (CCI)	President: H. E. LANDSBERG (U.S.A.).
Instruments and Methods of Observation (CIMO)	President: V. D. ROCKNEY (U.S.A.).

Atmospheric Sciences (CAS)	President: J. S. SAWYER (acting) (U.K.).
Aeronautical Meteorology (CAeM)	President: N. A. LIEURANCE (U.S.A.).
Agricultural Meteorology (CAgM)	President: L. P. SMITH (U.K.).
Hydrometeorology (CHy)	President: E. G. POPOV (U.S.S.R.).
Maritime Meteorology (CMM)	President: S. L. TIERNEY (Ireland).

WMO ACTIVITIES

The activities of WMO are grouped into four main programmes as follows: World Weather Watch, WMO Research Programme, WMO Programme on the Interaction of Man and his Environment, and the WMO Technical Co-operation Programme.

World Weather Watch. The Fifth World Meteorological Congress (Geneva, April 1967) approved plans drawn up by the Secretary-General of the Organization for the implementation of a World Weather Watch based on meteorological satellites, computer technology and a system of world and regional centres.

One of the primary responsibilities of WMO is to co-ordinate the reception and exchange of meteorological data to permit members to fulfil their responsibilities in the application of meteorology. The basic conventional source for these data is from the world-wide network of observing stations where observations are made at exactly the same agreed times. The methods and practices followed are based on internationally agreed decisions and are practically uniform everywhere. In addition to reports from about 8,000 land stations in the international network some 3,000 aircraft and 4,000 ships contribute to the daily total of 100,000 observations for the surface of the earth and 10,000 observations for the upper air. These figures are increasing from year to year as new stations are brought into service. Lists of weather stations, code manuals and transmission schedules are issued by WMO and are kept up to date by a regular and frequent service of supplements. They are used by meteorological services, airlines, coastal vessels and ships on the high seas.

The World Weather Watch includes plans for filling the main gaps in the existing world network of observation stations. The first four-year phase calls for approximately 40 new stations for upper-air observations and the implementation of a full observing programme at 95 existing stations; average spacing will be 1,500 km. over ocean areas and 1,000 km. over land masses.

The successful performance of meteorological satellites has opened up new possibilities of obtaining information on the structure and processes of the atmosphere. WMO has produced a number of reports on the advancement of atmospheric sciences and their application in the light of developments in outer space. Informal planning meetings on a number of aspects of satellite meteorology have been arranged and their conclusions distributed to members.

Under the World Weather Watch plan, a global data-processing system with World Meteorological Centres (WMC's) at Melbourne, Moscow and Washington and approximately 25 Regional Meteorological Centres (RMC's) and National Meteorological Centres (NMC's) are being implemented during the 1968-71 period.

To support these centres and the national meteorological services, a global telecommunications system has been organized by WMO since arrangements for the collection and transmission of weather reports are also a responsibility of the Organization, which lays down international regulations controlling the contents as well as the hours and mode of the transmissions.

The WWW transmission system has been organized on a three-level system, i.e., the main trunk circuit between WMC's, the regional telecommunications networks and the national telecommunications networks. To complete the World Weather Watch, programmes for research, education and training are included as sub-systems to permit the effective use of meteorological information in the improvement of the national meteorological services. The World Weather Watch plan will be implemented through the application of the basic principle that each country will provide facilities and services which fall within its territory. However, those developing countries which are unable to do this will be assisted, as far as possible, through the United Nations Development Programme and through bilateral agreements. A third means of assistance will be the Voluntary Assistance Programme which will be made up of contributions in financial form or in the form of equipment or services offered by members of WMO. In the case of regions outside the territories of individual countries (i.e. outer space, ocean areas and Antarctica) implementation will be based on the principle of voluntary participation of countries by providing facilities and services from their national resources. The Voluntary Assistance Programme will to some extent replace the WMO New Development Fund of $1.5 million which was established by the Fourth World Meteorological Congress in 1963 to enable significant and prompt assistance to be rendered to members during the period 1965 to 1967.

The planning and implementation of the World Weather Watch is supported by the work of a number of the Technical Commissions, namely CSM, CMM, CAeM, and in part by CCI and CIMO.

WMO Research Programme. WMO's main research effort in collaboration with the International Council of Scientific Unions (ICSU) will be centered on the Global Atmospheric Research Programme (GARP). The aim of the programme is to investigate the scientific problems which stand in the way of a fuller understanding of the atmosphere's structure and behaviour.

GARP is being planned as a world-wide scientific effort involving both theoretical research and complex field experiments. It will enable the fundamental physical and mathematical bases of long-range weather prediction to be developed further and tested. In doing this, use will be made of what are known as numerical simulation models of the atmosphere's circulation.

GARP will be composed of several auxiliary programmes which will be known as GARP Sub Programmes. The GARP Global Sub Programme will have a leading role inasmuch as the large-scale motions of the global atmosphere is the central theme of GARP. Other Sub-Programmes, such as the Tropical Sub-Programme and the Air/Sea Sub-Programme, will be concerned with smaller-scale phenomena associated, for instance, with the deep convection systems in the tropics of the exchange processes between the atmosphere and the underlying surfaces.

The research programme of WMO is supported in general by the work of one Technical Commission, CAS.

WMO Programme on the Interaction of Man and his Environment. This programme includes all the activities aimed at applying meteorological knowledge to human activities. They include such questions as agricultural meteorology, aeronautical meteorology, maritime meteorology and other oceanographic matters, human biometeorology, water resources, atmospheric pollution, meteorological factors involved in industry, recreation, etc.

In the field of agricultural meteorology, WMO has initiated in co-operation with FAO, UNDP, UNESCO and WHO, an inter-agency co-ordinating group on agricultural biometeorology. The objectives include the development and implementation of an agrometeorological programme in and of world food production. Agroclimatological surveys in the Near East, in Africa south of the Sahara, and in the highlands of eastern Africa have been completed. Similar surveys are planned in other areas and related projects, including technical conferences, are being developed.

Through CAeM acting in co-operation with expert bodies of the International Civil Aviation Organization, universal regulations have been drawn up and are under continual revision for the supply of weather information for aircraft operations and for planning purposes.

In view of the intimate relation between oceanography and meteorology, WMO takes an active part in a number of international ocean research projects, in the establishment of ocean stations on the high seas for combined meteorological and oceanographic purposes and in the collection and exchange of the resulting data. WMO is responsible for co-ordinating the international aspects of the global ocean forecast service for meteorological and some of the physical oceanographic parameters. It also has responsibilities in the archiving of ocean-atmosphere environmental data.

Fields of interest common to the Intergovernmental Oceanographic Commission and WMO, such as the Integrated Global Ocean Station System, air-sea inter-of an Executive Committee Panel on meteorological aspects of ocean affairs

WMO is continuing its close collaboration with the United Nations and other interested UN organizations in the field of water resources development and, in particular, is participating in the Priority Programme in Water Resources within the UN Development Decade. Particular activities are fostering establishment of networks, standardization of instruments and methods of observation, and training of manpower. WMO recognizes the potential importance of the International Hydrological Decade as a large scale programme for the development and promotion of the science of hydrology. The Organization is playing a major role in this programme of international co-operation.

The meteorological aspects of air pollution have been under consideration by several of the Technical Commissions for some time. At its twenty-first session in June 1969, the Executive Committee decided to co-ordinate the work by establishing an expert panel on the subject and to invite representatives of UN, UNESCO and WHO to participate in the work.

The Technical Commissions whose work is most closely linked with this programme are CAeM, CHy, CCI and CIMO.

WMO Technical Co-operation Programme. In view of the important contributions of meteorological services to economic development and planning (in the fields of water resources, agriculture, aviation, shipping, fishing, etc.) many countries request the Organization to assist them in the establishment or development of national meteorological services.

in developing their meteorological services through expert missions, fellowships, training centres, training seminars, etc., under the Technical Assistance Component of UNDP. WMO also acts as executing agency for projects in a number of countries, financed by the Special Fund Component of this programme, under which extensive networks of hydrometeorological and hydrological observing stations are set up, training and research centres are established and special studies are carried out for developing improved typhoon and flood warning techniques. WMO's allocation from the Technical Assistance Component of the UNDP for the year 1969 was approximately US $1,500,000. WMO Bulletin: quarterly; f. 1952; reports international meetings and activities in meteorology; contains articles on the various branches of meteorology and on the applications of meteorology.

Basic Documents: published in the four official languages (English, French, Russian and Spanish), contain information on the WMO Convention, General and Technical Regulations.

Final Reports of Meetings of WMO: published in English and French.

Technical Publications: include Technical Notes, Guides and Nomenclatures.

WMO Technical Notes are published in one language only, but contain a summary in all four official languages.

WMO Guides and Nomenclatures are published in English and French.

World Weather Watch Planning Reports are published on the results of surveys and studies carried out on various aspects of World Weather Watch.

GARP Publications: a joint WMO/ICSU series which presents the fundamental problems, projects and prospects in the development of plans for the Global Atmospheric Research Programme (GARP).

CONVENTION

ARTICLE 1. Establishment of WMO.

ARTICLE 2. The purposes of WMO are to facilitate world-wide co-operation in establishing a network of stations for making meteorological observations and to promote the establishment and maintenance of meteorological centres charged with the provision of meteorological services; to promote the establishment of systems for the rapid exchange of weather information; to promote standardization of meteorological observations and publications; to further the application of meteorology to aviation and other human activities; to encourage research and training in meteorology.

ARTICLE 3. Membership. Any state belonging to the International Meteorological Organization in 1947, may become a member by ratifying WMO's Convention; any UN member possessing a meteorological service; any other country on territory possessing a meteorological service, which is approved by two-thirds of existing members.

ARTICLES 4-5. Organization of WMO. The World Meteorological Congress; Executive Committee; Regional Associations; Technical Commissions; Secretariat.

ARTICLE 6. Election of officers.

ARTICLES 7-12. Congress: composition and functions; execution of decisions; sessions, voting; quorum.

ARTICLES 13-17. Executive Committee: composition and functions; sessions; voting; quorum.

ARTICLE 18. Regional Associations: composition and functions; meetings.

ARTICLE 19. Technical Commissions: organization and election of officers.

ARTICLES 20-22. Secretariat: officers and functions.

ARTICLES 23-24. Finances.

ARTICLES 25-26. Relations with UN and other organizations.

ARTICLE 27. Legal status, privileges and immunities.

ARTICLES 28-29. Amendments, interpretations and disputes.

ARTICLES 30-31. Withdrawal and suspension.

ARTICLES 32-34. Ratification and accession.

ARTICLE 35. Entry into force.

UNITED NATIONS CHILDREN'S FUND—UNICEF

New York City

Established in 1946 to continue the work carried out by UNRRA in assisting mothers and children in war-devastated countries. Since 1950 UNICEF has mainly directed its activities to help children and young people in the developing countries in fields of health, nutrition, social welfare, and preparing for later responsibilities.

ORGANIZATION

EXECUTIVE BOARD

The governing body of UNICEF meets once a year to determine policy and consider applications for aid. Countries receiving aid match UNICEF expenditure on all projects and are responsible for their implementation. Members: Representatives of 30 Countries.

SECRETARIAT

UNICEF is an integral part of the United Nations and personnel are members of the UN Secretariat. Executive Director: HENRY R. LABOITSE (U.S.A.)

REGIONAL OFFICES

Europe and North Africa: 20 rue Pauline Borghese, Neuilly-sur-Seine, France

Eastern Mediterranean: Dr. Raji Nasr Building, Beirut, Lebanon.
The Americas: Avenida Providencia 329, Santiago, Chile.
East Asia: 19 Phra Atut Rd., Bangkok, Thailand

ACTIVITIES

In 1969 UNICEF approved activities, in co-operation with the appropriate specialized agencies, in developing and implementing projects undertaken by 92 governments, plus 22 on a regional or inter-regional basis. These projects comprise the creation and development of maternal and child health services; the prevention and treatment of specified diseases (TB, malaria, yaws, trachoma, etc.); improvement of nutrition amongst under-nourished children and increase in food supplies (such as milk and other protein foods); extension of primary and secondary education and teacher training; development of welfare services; provision of vocational training for employment opportunities. UNICEF's contribution consists largely of the provision of supplies, equipment, transport, etc. Well over one-third of UNICEF aid is devoted to training personnel for implementation of the assisted projects, which to date has comprised over 437,000 trainees, nationals of developing countries.

In 1968 UNICEF equipped over 3,000 health centres

(bringing the total to over 40,000). It assisted 400 mothers club and day care centres (bringing the total to 4,500). Over 11,000 schools were assisted in establishing food producing gardens or canteens (bringing the total to 7,000). Help was given in equipping 24,700 teacher training schools and associated primary schools (making 39,000 in all). A total of over 283 million children have so far been vaccinated against tuberculosis; 32 million children protected against malaria; nearly 23 million children treated for yaws; 30 million children treated for trachoma; and 850,000 children are now under treatment for leprosy. In addition to such long-term programmes for promoting the health, nutrition, education, training and welfare of children, UNICEF has provided emergency help in relief of suffering experienced by children as the result of war, earthquakes, cyclones, floods, droughts in Nigeria/Biafra, Vietnam, the Middle East, Iran, Burma, Syria and other countries. Help has also been provided, in association with the UN High Commissioner for Refugees, for the children of refugees in Africa, Asia and the Middle East.

FINANCE

UNICEF is financed by voluntary contributions from governments, non-governmental organizations and individuals. For 1968 UNICEF's income was $33,500,000 from the following sources:

Government contributions	28,800,000
Non-governmental contributions	7,900,000
Greeting card operations	5,000,000
Other income	1,800,000

For 1969 income is estimated at $45-$46 million, with a target figure aimed at for 1970 of $50 million.

At the meeting of the Executive Board in May 1969 allocations for the succeeding twelve months totalled $46.3 million. The amounts allocated for supplies, equipment, etc., required for projects in the various regions (omitting the cost of staff engaged in operating such projects, the cost of freight, etc.) were

ORGANIZATION

Commissioner-General: LAURENCE V. MICHELMORI

Deputy Commissioner-General: Sir JOHN S. RENNIE, C.C.M.G., O.B.E. (U.K.).

UNRWA is a subsidiary organ of the General Assembly, which began operations in May 1950; it has a mandate currently extending to June 30th, 1972, and employs more than 12,000 persons, mainly Palestine refugees. The Commissioner-General is assisted by an Advisory Commission consisting of representatives of the governments of:

Belgium	Lebanon	U.A.R.
France	Syrian Arab Republic	United Kingdom
Jordan	Turkey	U.S.A.

ACTIVITIES

Since 1950, UNRWA has fed and provided medical services to a refugee population which now numbers over 1,395,000 persons. It has established camps providing shelter for more than 500,000 people, served 125 million meals to young children and distributed over 10,000 tons of clothing. A simple but effective community health service has been built up with technical guidance from WHO and there has never been a major epidemic among the refugees in UNRWA's care. A whole new education system has been developed with technical advice and guidance from UNESCO. There are today more than 260,000 children receiving full-time education either in 466 schools operated by UNRWA or in government and private schools subsidized by UNRWA. UNRWA also operates nine well-equipped, residential centres for training young refugee men and women as teachers or in a variety of industrial and semi-professional skills, with the result that it has become one of the most important channels for this type of technical assistance in the Middle East. Construction has begun on a 50 per cent expansion of this programme.

THE UNITED NATIONS—(OTHER BODIES)

THE REFUGEES

For UNRWA's purposes, a bona fide Palestine refugee is one whose normal residence was in Palestine for a minimum of two years before the 1948 conflict and who, as a result of the hostilities, lost his home and means of livelihood. To be eligible for assistance, a refugee must reside in one of the "host" countries in which UNRWA operates, and be in need. Children and grandchildren who fulfil certain criteria are also eligible for some or all forms of UNRWA assistance. By June 30th, 1969, there were 1,395,074 refugees registered with UNRWA.

THE NEWLY DISPLACED

After the renewal of Arab-Israeli hostilities in the Middle East in June 1967, hundreds of thousands of people fled from the fighting and the occupied areas. UNRWA was additionally empowered by a UN General Assembly resolution to provide 'humanitarian assistance, as far as practicable, on an emergency basis and as a temporary measure' for those persons other than Palestine refugees who were newly displaced and in urgent need. In practice, UNRWA has lacked the funds to aid the other displaced persons and the main burden of supporting them has fallen on the Arab governments concerned.

117,500 people (17,500 of them Palestine refugees) fled from the Quneitra region of S W Syria. Of the displaced Palestine refugees, over 9,000 are living in UNRWA-administered tented camps near Damascus and at Dera's in southern Syria. The displaced Syrians are being looked after by the Syrian Government.

Some 130,000 Palestinian refugees are now estimated to be in east Jordan; in addition, the Jordanian Government has registered 246,000 displaced persons from these areas. Moving from the schools and public buildings where the first thousands of the newly homeless were originally accommodated in June 1967, they were taken to emergency tented camps near Jerash and Mafrag, to the north-east of Amman. Later the upland camps were moved to the Jordan Valley because of its milder winter climate.

Then, in mid-February 1968, renewed military action along the Jordan river prompted a further movement. Some 80,000 refugees and newly displaced persons, as well as East Jordan villagers, fled the valley to seek shelter in upland areas and six emergency tented camps, which now shelter 91,000 persons, were established for them by UNRWA in the Amman, Jerash and Irbid areas.

By December 1969, prefabricated one-room shelters financed by special donations had replaced two-thirds of the tents in these camps and construction of the remaining shelters needed had begun.

The U A R Government has estimated that 14,000 refugees and other persons were displaced from Gaza to the part of the U A R beyond the Suez Canal, including some 4,000 registered refugees.

FINANCE

UNRWA'S budget for 1970 is $42,978,000.

In recent years about 70 per cent of the total income has been contributed by the governments of the United States, the United Kingdom, Canada and France, the remainder being provided by some 75 other governments and from international voluntary agencies and private sources.

UNRWA's average expenditure per refugee per year is just $37, or ten cents per day.

UNITED NATIONS HIGH COMMISSIONER FOR REFUGEES— UNHCR

Palais des Nations, Geneva

Telephone: 34 60 11, 33 10 00, 33 20 00, 33 40 00.

The Office of the High Commissioner was set up in 1950 to provide international protection for refugees and to seek permanent solutions to their problems. In 1967 the mandate of UNHCR was extended until the end of 1973.

ORGANIZATION

HIGH COMMISSIONER

High Commissioner (1966-73): Prince SADRUDDIN AGA KHAN.

Deputy High Commissioner: (vacant).

The High Commissioner is elected by the United Nations General Assembly on the nomination of the Secretary-General, and is responsible to the General Assembly and to ECOSOC.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

The Executive Committee of the High Commissioner's Programme, established by ECOSOC, gives the High Commissioner policy directives, and advice at his request in the field of international protection. It meets once a year at Geneva, and special sessions may be called to consider urgent problems. Members: representatives of thirty-one states.

ADMINISTRATION

Headquarters includes Chef de Cabinet, Secretariat and the following divisions: Legal, Africa and Asia, Americas and Europe, Public Affairs, Administration and Finance. There are 30 Branch Offices, and 41 Correspondents or Special Representatives accredited to 69 countries throughout the world.

ACTIVITIES

The Office of the High Commissioner concerns itself with those refugees who have been determined on an individual basis to come within its mandate under the Statute, and with those refugees whom it is called upon to assist under the terms of the good offices resolutions adopted by the General Assembly of the UN. Refugees meeting these conditions are entitled to the protection of the Office of the High Commissioner irrespective of their geographical location. Refugees who are assisted by other United Nations agencies, or who have the same rights or obligations as nationals of their country of residence, are outside the mandate of UNHCR.

The main functions of the Office are to provide international protection, to seek permanent solutions to the problems of refugees, including voluntary repatriation, resettlement in other countries and integration into the country of present residence, as well as to provide supplementary aid and emergency relief to refugees as may be necessary. All activities are carried out on a humanitarian and non-political basis.

INTERNATIONAL PROTECTION

The main objective of international protection, which is the primary function of UNHCR, is to help refugees to cease being refugees through the acquisition of the nationality of the country of residence when voluntary repatriation is not applicable, and in the meantime to safeguard their rights and interests and improve their status. UNHCR pursues these objectives through seeking to facilitate naturalization of refugees, promoting the conclusion of inter-governmental legal instruments in favour of refugees and encouraging governments to adopt legal provisions for their benefit.

The main legal instruments concerning refugees are the 1951 Convention and 1967 Protocol relating to the Status of Refugees, which extends provisions of the Convention to new groups of refugees. The application of these two instruments is supervised by UNHCR.

Other legal instruments directly or indirectly affecting the refugees include the 1954 Convention on the Status of Stateless Persons, the United Nations Convention on the Reduction of Statelessness of 1961, the 1957 Agreement relating to Refugee Seamen and the European Agreement of 1959 on the Suppression of Visas for Refugees.

Three important new instruments are: the UN Declaration on Territorial Asylum, a resolution by the Committee of Ministers of the Council of Europe also concerning asylum, and the Convention by the Organization of African Unity concerning the Specific Aspects of the Problems of Refugees in Africa.

Among legal problems, the Office is called upon to devote special attention to the question of asylum, which is of crucial importance to refugees.

MATERIAL ASSISTANCE TO REFUGEES

EMERGENCY RELIEF AND SUPPLEMENTARY AID

Emergency relief is provided in the case of new refugee situations when food supplies and medical aid are required on a large scale at short notice. In recent years this has been the case many times in Africa where the World Food

Program has provided considerable food supplies for the refugees' subsistence pending their first harvest

Supplementary aid is provided for the neediest refugees and may take the form of supplementary feeding, medical aid, or clothing

VOLUNTARY REPATRIATION

The Office assists refugees wherever possible to overcome difficulties in the way of their repatriation. In cases where no funds are available for their transportation to their homeland, arrangements for payment of the cost involved may be made by UNHCR under its material assistance programmes

RESETTLEMENT

From its inception UNHCR has been actively engaged in the promotion of resettlement through emigration, in close co-operation with interested governments, the Inter-governmental Committee for European Migration (ICEM), the United States Refugee Program and voluntary agencies concerned with the resettlement of refugees. The task of UNHCR in this field is to negotiate with governments in an endeavour to obtain suitable resettlement opportunities for those refugees both able-bodied and handicapped who opt for this solution, to encourage governments to liberalize their criteria for the admission of refugees and to draw up special immigration schemes for them wherever possible.

INTEGRATION OF REFUGEES IN THEIR COUNTRY OF RESIDENCE

The object of local integration is to assist refugees to become self-supporting in their country of residence. In Europe, this is done either by granting refugees loans for establishment in agriculture, or by assisting them through vocational training or in other ways to learn a skill, or to establish themselves in gainful occupations. One major form of assistance to help refugees leave camps is to provide them with housing.

In addition there are projects for the settlement in institutions of the aged and the sick, rehabilitation projects for handicapped refugees, and counselling projects which are essential for the guidance of refugees in the choice of a solution to their problems

In accordance with the policy, whereby primary responsibility for aid to refugees falls upon their country of residence, arrangements for the provision of material assistance to refugees in various European countries are being increasingly taken over by governments, local authorities and social welfare agencies. UNHCR intervenes where it is necessary for the international community to provide additional aid.

The new groups of refugees in Africa and some of the refugees in Asia are mainly assisted through local settlement in agriculture. In Africa consolidation of the settlement of refugees is effected through close co-operation between UNHCR and other members of the UN system which provide development assistance to the areas concerned.

The increasing problem of needy individual refugees in urban areas of Africa, mainly without agricultural background, is requiring increasing attention. A Bureau for the Placement and Education of Refugees established within the Organization of African Unity in Addis Ababa, with the support of UNHCR and other members of the UN system is seeking solutions to the problems of these refugees through their resettlement in various countries in Africa

At its Nineteenth Session the Executive Committee of the High Commissioner's Programme approved the policy of including facilities for primary education in the High Commissioner's Regular Programmes. In addition, allocations amounting to approximately $1,300,000 from the Education Account have been foreseen for secondary, technical and higher education in 1968 and 1969. Close co-operation has been maintained in this field with UNESCO which has provided technical advice and services of experts

FINANCE

The UNHCR material assistance programmes are financed from voluntary contributions made by governments and also from private sources. The financial targets of the UNHCR current programmes for 1967, 1968 and 1969

Programme at its twentieth session held in Geneva in October 1969, in an amount of approximately $5.8 million

In addition there is a $500,000 Emergency Fund on which UNHCR can draw to meet emergency situations. Furthermore, assistance measures outside the current programme are financed from Special Trust Funds donated to or channelled through UNHCR

DEVELOPMENTS, 1967-69

The number of new refugees in Africa continues to increase and by the end of October 1969 had reached about one million, some of whom are receiving UNHCR assistance

The 1967 Protocol relating to the Status of Refugees came into force in October 1967. As of October 31st, 1969, 57 states were parties to the 1951 Convention relating to the Status of Refugees and 34 states had acceded to the 1967 Protocol. The Government of the Netherlands, as depositary of the 1957 Agreement relating to Refugee Seamen, has drawn up and submitted to UNHCR and the signatory governments a Protocol extending to refugee seamen the benefits of the 1967 Protocol.

The International Conference on Human Rights which met in Teheran from April 22nd to May 30th, 1968, adopted a resolution which called upon states to accede to the 1951 Convention and 1967 Protocol. At its 22nd Session the General Assembly adopted a Declaration on Territorial Asylum which lays down international principles in this regard UNHCR is devoting particular attention to the acquisition by refugees of the nationality of their country of residence.

The OAU Convention Governing the Specific Aspects of the Problem of Refugees in Africa was conceived in the spirit of the principles laid down in the United Nations Declaration on Territorial Asylum of 1967 and provides that the granting of asylum to refugees is a peaceful and humanitarian act and cannot be considered by any state as unfriendly. It further provides that no refugee can be subjected by a member state of the OAU to treatment which would compel him to return to or stay in a territory where he was in danger of persecution

THE UNITED NATIONS—(OTHER BODIES)

During 1968 some 235,000 refugees benefited from UNHCR material assistance programmes, the majority, i.e. some 218,000, in Africa. Progress has continued in the rural settlement of the refugees. Settlement projects have been consolidated with the generous support of governments and in close co-operation with other interested members of the United Nations system, including in particular, WFP, FAO, ILO, UNESCO, WHO and UNDP. In two countries, Burundi and the Central African Republic, refugee settlements are being included in integrated zonal development plans put into effect by the United Nations Development Programme.

In Europe the long-term major aid programmes to provide permanent solutions for the "old" European refugees, including in particular housing projects for refugees in Greece, are entering their final phase. Any new need for assistance which might arise among these refugees is met through the current UNHCR programme when the country of residence is not in a position to provide the assistance necessary.

Resettlement continues to play a major part in the solution of the problems of new European refugees of whom a larger number entered certain European countries in 1968 and 1969. The share taken by countries of asylum and of resettlement and the long established co-operation between UNHCR, ICEM and the United States Refugee Program contribute to prevent an accumulation of these refugees in reception centres.

STATUTE

CHAPTER I GENERAL PROVISIONS

1. The United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees, acting under the authority of the General Assembly, shall assume the function of providing international protection, under the auspices of the United Nations, to refugees who fall within the scope of the present Statute and of seeking permanent solutions for the problem of refugees by assisting governments and, subject to the approval of the governments concerned, private organizations to facilitate the voluntary repatriation of such refugees, or their assimilation within new national communities.

2. The work of the High Commissioner shall be of an entirely non-political character; it shall be humanitarian and social and shall relate, as a rule, to groups and categories of refugees.

3. The High Commissioner shall follow policy directives given him by the General Assembly or the Economic and Social Council.

4. Provisions for the establishment of an Executive Committee.

5. Provisions for the continuation of the Office.

CHAPTER II FUNCTIONS OF THE HIGH COMMISSIONER

6. The competence of the High Commissioner shall extend to any person who, owing to well-founded fear of being persecuted for reasons of race, religion, nationality or political opinion, is outside the country of his nationality and is unable or, owing to such fear or for reasons other than personal convenience, is unwilling to avail himself of the protection of that country; or who, not having a nationality and being outside the country of his former habitual residence, is unable or, owing to such fear or for reasons other than personal convenience, is unwilling to return to it.

Any other person who is outside the country of his nationality or, if he has no nationality, the country of his former habitual residence, because he has had well-founded fear of persecution by reason of his race, religion, nationality or political opinion and is unable or, because of such fear, is unwilling to avail himself of the protection of the government of the country of his nationality, or, if he has no nationality, to return to the country of his former habitual residence.

7. Refugees to whom the High Commissioner's competence shall not extend.

8. Means of providing protection for refugees.

9. The High Commissioner shall engage in such additional activities, including repatriation and resettlement, as the General Assembly may determine, within the limits of the resources placed at his disposal.

10. The High Commissioner shall administer any funds, public or private, which he receives for assistance to refugees, and shall distribute them among the private and, as appropriate, public agencies which he deems best qualified to administer such assistance.

11. Presentation of report to the Economic and Social Committee and to the General Assembly.

12. Co-operation with the various specialized agencies.

CHAPTER III ORGANIZATION AND FINANCE

13. Election of the High Commissioner.

14. Appointment of Deputy High Commissioner and other staff.

15-22. Organization and Finance.

ORGANIZATION

GENERAL CONFERENCE

Consists of representatives of all member states. It convenes each year to participate in the general debate on the Agency's policy and programme, to approve the budget and the annual report, to approve applications for membership, to elect new members to the Board of Governors and to consider all matters referred to it by the Board of Governors, and, every four years, to approve the appointment of a Director-General.

President (1969) Prof BÉCHIR TOKRI (Tunisia)

BOARD OF GOVERNORS

Consists of 25 member states, 13 designated by the Board of Governors and 12 elected by the General Conference. It has authority to carry out the functions of the Agency in accordance with the Statute and subject to its responsibilities to the General Conference. It meets four or five times a year to consider matters proposed to it by member states or the Director-General. It approves and submits the draft budget and the Agency's programme to the General Conference. Every fourth year it appoints a Director-General subject to approval by the General Conference.

Board Members (1969-70) Argentina, Australia, Brazil, Canada, Czechoslovakia, France, Hungary, India, Iran, Italy, Japan, Morocco, Nigeria, Pakistan, Portugal, Singapore, South Africa, Spain, Sweden, USSR, U.K., U.S.A., Uruguay, Venezuela, Vietnam.

Chairman (1969-70) Sir PHILIP BAXTER (Australia)

SECRETARIAT

Consists of approximately 325 professional staff and 700 general service staff. It is headed by the Director-General who is responsible for the administration and implementation of the Agency's programme. He is assisted by four Deputy Directors-General and an Inspector-General. The Secretariat is divided into five departments: Technical Assistance and Publications; Technical Operations; Research and Isotopes; Safeguards and Inspection; Administration.

Director-General (reappointed 1969 for a term of four years) Dr SIGVARD EKLUND (Sweden)

SCIENTIFIC ADVISORY COMMITTEE

The Committee was set up in 1958 to advise the Board of Governors and the Director-General upon scientific and technical matters. In June 1969, the following distinguished scientists were appointed for terms of three years:

Dr M. A. EL-GHABIELLY (U.A.R.), Dr BERTRAND GOLD SCHMIDT (France), Dr HANS KRONBERGER (U.K.), Dr W. B. LEWIS (Canada), Prof I. MALIK (Czechoslovakia), Prof S. MITSUI (Japan), Prof L. CINTIA DO PRADO (Brazil), Prof ISIDORE I. RABI (U.S.A.), Dr HOMI N. SERVA (India), Prof V. I. SPITSYN (U.S.S.R.)

ACTIVITIES

Technical Assistance and Training. Last year the IAEA provided 106 experts and visiting professors to developing countries, awarded 315 fellowships and arranged the loan of equipment valued at $749,000. Ten regional training courses and a visiting seminar provided instruction on beneficial uses of nuclear energy to 692 participants in 18 countries.

Food and Agriculture. In co-operation with FAO, the Agency programme covers research on the use of radiation and radioisotopes in six fields: plant improvement by radiation mutation, eradication of destructive insects by the sterile-male technique, improvement of livestock and preparation of animal vaccines, study of effect of insecticide residues; preservation of food by irradiation, improvement of the use of nitrogen and phosphate fertilizer. Over 200 projects are carried out annually in co-ordination with member states.

Life Sciences. The programme in life science includes nuclear medicine, radiation biology and dosimetry. Thirty-nine countries have undertaken research in nuclear medicine with Agency support on such topics as the use of radioisotopes in diagnosis and treatment of anaemia, goitre and malnutrition. Research in radiation biology with Agency support is being conducted in 27 countries. In collaboration with WHO the Agency prepared a manual on radiation haematology and one on basic dosimetry—the science of measurement of radiation doses.

Physical Sciences. The Agency's programme in physical sciences is designed to develop or disseminate basic knowledge that will eventually be of practical use. Regular international conferences on fission physics, neutron inelastic scattering, and controlled nuclear fusion are the primary means of world-wide communication in these research areas. Agency experts, in co-operation with UNESCO and FAO, have made use of isotope techniques to investigate water sources. A sub-regional co-operation plan in the Far East will study the upgrading of bagasse and other fibre boards by radiation for low cost housing. In mining, radioisotope X-ray fluorescence makes possible on-the-spot analysis of the mineral content of ore samples. This technique is being tested in India, the Philippines and Yugoslavia.

Nuclear Power and Reactors. To help developing countries the IAEA is stimulating research toward improved economy of small and medium-sized reactors. It has also sent missions to advise many developing countries in planning nuclear power programmes and on the siting of proposed nuclear power facilities. The IAEA is participating in a number of studies concerning dual-purpose reactors—to produce fresh water from the sea as well as to provide power and light. Developing countries have shown interest in the engineering possibilities of nuclear explosives. It is expected that nuclear energy can perform civil engineering feats beyond the range of ordinary explosives. To this end, the IAEA has expanded its programme to promote the exchange of relevant information. Three research reactor projects sponsored by the Agency are: NORA, based in Norway, pioneered in new measurements for light and heavy water lattices. The IPA (India/Philippines/Agency) project, completed in 1969, concentrated on solid state physics, and the NPY (Norway/Poland/Yugoslavia), to be completed in 1970, has enabled the three countries concerned to solve a number of problems in nuclear power physics.

Health Safety and Waste Management. In co-operation with other international organizations, the Agency has established basic standards and recommendations relating to all aspects of radiation safety under both normal and emergency conditions. Thirty publications concerning these standards and recommendations have been issued. IAEA regulations for the safe transport of radioactive materials by rail, road, sea and air have been adopted as legal standards by many governments and have been included in the conventions and recommendations of nearly all international organizations concerned with transport. In 1969 the revised codes of practice for the safe operation of nuclear power plants and research reactors and a series of recommendations on the use of ports by nuclear merchant ships were published.

Information and Technical Services. Ten to fifteen large international conferences and symposia are organized each year and some 40 smaller panels and meetings. Papers presented at these meetings are published by the Agency and distributed for sale all over the world. The headquarters library contains approximately 30,000 books, 100,000 reports and 1,000 films. The International Nuclear Information System (INIS), an information-handling scheme, will begin operations in 1970. Employing computer techniques for storage, correlation and retrieval, INIS will provide a world catalogue of technical information relating to the peaceful uses of nuclear energy. When in full operation, it is estimated that approximately 85,000 pieces of new literature will be catalogued annually by INIS. The Nuclear Data Unit is an international centre for neutron data basic for reactors. In co-operation with three other principal centres at Brookhaven (U.S.A.), Obninsk (U.S.S.R.) and the European Nuclear Energy Agency (ENEA) centre at Saclay (France), the world's neutron data are collected, processed by means of computers and distributed, free of charge.

Safeguards. At present, safeguards are applied by the Agency to 70 reactors and 37 other nuclear facilities. Mexico became the first country to request safeguards for all its nuclear activities under the terms of the Tlatelolco Treaty which creates a nuclear-free Latin America. At present a total of 40 agreements with 30 countries are in effect. By the terms of the Treaty for the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons, signatory countries which have no nuclear weapons agree to accept Agency safeguards. It is expected that when the Treaty comes into force it will significantly increase the Agency's responsibilities. In preparation, the Safeguards division has been reorganized. More attention is being given to safeguards research, including the use of instruments to simplify procedures and minimize manpower required. A list of 39 staff members available to serve as inspectors has been approved.

Laboratories. The IAEA operates three laboratories, one in Seibersdorf, Austria, one at the Agency's headquarters in Vienna and one in Monaco devoted to the study of marine radioactivity. The Seibersdorf and Headquarters Laboratories, working jointly, provide services for many of the Agency's programmes in physics, chemistry, hydrology, nuclear medicine and agriculture. This work involves the analysis of hundreds of samples of plant material in fertilizer research, the preparation and inter-comparison of labelled compounds for use in nuclear medicine and the analysis of water samples for isotope content. An agreement between the Agency, the Government of the Principality of Monaco and the Oceanographic Institute at Monaco established the IAEA International Laboratory on the Mediterranean coast. This agreement has just been extended until the end of 1974. The laboratory will concentrate on the study of health and safety aspects concerning radioactive pollution of the sea.

Centre for Theoretical Physics. One of IAEA's outstanding contributions in pure science has been the establishment, in 1964, of the International Centre for Theoretical Physics at Trieste, Italy. Generous support from the Italian Government and a number of other organizations has enabled the Centre to bring together in a working relationship scientists from both developed and developing countries. Eight Nobel laureates attended the four-week symposium held in June 1968 to review the entire field of contemporary physics. Recently, agreement was reached between the Agency and UNESCO to operate the Trieste Centre jointly.

Supplying Fissionable Materials. The Agency is empowered by its Statute to serve as an intermediary in arranging the delivery of special fissionable materials to member states. By June 1969, 65 transfers of such material, about half of them gifts, had been made to 15 recipient countries. All material supplied was for research reactors or other research purposes. Supplier states have been the U.S.S.R., U.K., U.S.A. and France. The fund of special fissionable material still available to the Agency for supply to its members is approximately 3,000 kilogrammes of uranium-235 contained in enriched uranium

BUDGET

The total budget estimate for 1970 amounts to $14,837,000 of which $2,000,000 is to be provided by voluntary contributions

SUMMARY OF THE STATUTE

(Adopted October 23rd, 1956)

The Agency is authorized

1. To encourage and assist research on, and development and practical application of, atomic energy for peaceful uses throughout the world, and, if requested to do so, to act as an intermediary for the purposes of securing the performance of services or the supplying of materials, equipment, or facilities by one member of the Agency for another; and to perform any operation or service useful in research on, or development or practical application of, atomic energy for peaceful purposes

2. To make provision, in accordance with this Statute for materials services, equipment, and facilities to meet the needs of research on, and development and practical application of, atomic energy for peaceful purposes, including the production of electric power, with due consideration for the needs of the under-developed areas of the world

3. To foster the exchange of scientific and technical information on peaceful uses of atomic energy

4. To encourage the exchange and training of scientists and experts in the field of peaceful uses of atomic energy

5. To establish and administer safeguards designed to ensure that special fissionable and other materials, services, equipment, facilities, and information made available by the Agency or at its request or under its supervision or control are not used in such a way as to further any military purpose, and to apply safeguards, at the request of the parties, to any bilateral or multilateral arrangement or, at the request of a State, to any of that State's activities in the field of atomic energy.

6. To establish or adopt, in consultation and, where appropriate, in collaboration with the competent organs of the United Nations and with the specialized agencies concerned, standards of safety for protection of health and minimization of danger to life and property (including such standards for labour conditions), and to provide for the application of these standards to its own operations as well as to the operations making use of materials, services, equipment, facilities, and information made available by the Agency or at its request or under its control or supervision, and to provide for the application of these standards, at the request of the parties, to operations under any bilateral or multilateral arrangement, or, at the request of a State, to any of that State's activities in the field of atomic energy.

7. To acquire or establish any facilities, plant and equipment useful in carrying out its authorized functions, whenever the facilities, plant, and equipment otherwise available to it in the area concerned are inadequate or available only on terms it deems unsatisfactory

General Conference. A General Conference consisting of representatives of all members shall meet in regular annual session and in such special sessions as shall be convened. The Conference may discuss any matters within the scope of this statute or relating to the powers and functions of any organs provided for in this Statute, and may make recommendations

The General Conference shall

1. Elect members of the Board of Governors

2. Approve statutes for membership

3. Consider the annual report of the Board.

4. Approve reports to be submitted to the United Nations

5. Approve any agreement or agreements between the Agency and the United Nations and other organizations

6. Approve rules and limitations regarding the exercise of borrowing powers

7. Approve amendments to the Statute.

8. Approve the appointment of the Director-General

Board of Governors. The Board of Governors is chosen by rules laid down in Article VI of the Statute

The Board shall have authority to carry out the functions of the Agency in accordance with the Statute, subject to its responsibilities to the General Conference. It shall meet at such times as it may determine and may establish such committees as it deems advisable

The Board shall prepare an annual report and any other reports the Agency is required to make. These shall be submitted to the General Conference

Staff. The staff of the Agency shall be headed by a Director-General. The Director-General shall be appointed by the Board of Governors with the approval of the General Conference for a term of four years. The Director-General shall be responsible for the appointment, organization, and functioning of the staff. The staff shall include such qualified scientific and technical and other personnel as may be required to fulfil the objectives and functions of the Agency. The Agency shall be guided by the principle that its permanent staff shall be kept to a minimum.

Information and Materials. Each member should make available such information as would, in the judgment of the member, be helpful to the Agency.

Members may make available to the Agency such quantities of special fissionable materials as they deem advisable and on such terms as shall be agreed with the Agency. On request of the Agency a member shall deliver to another member or group of members such quantities of such materials as the Agency may specify. The Agency shall be responsible for storing and protecting materials in its possession. It shall ensure that these materials shall be safeguarded against hazards of the weather, unauthorised removal or diversion, damage or destruction, including sabotage, and forcible seizure. In storing special fissionable materials in its possession, the Agency shall ensure the geographical distribution of these materials in such a way as not to allow concentration of large amounts of such materials in any one country or region of the world.

Projects and Safeguards. Any member or group of members of the Agency desiring to set up any research project for peaceful purposes may request the assistance of the Agency in securing special fissionable and other materials. For the purpose of considering the request, the Agency may send into the territory of the member or group persons qualified to examine the project.

With respect to any Agency project the Agency shall have the following rights and responsibilities:

1. To examine the design of specialised equipment and facilities, including nuclear reactors, and to approve it only from the viewpoint of assuring that it will not further any military purpose, that it complies with applicable health and safety standards.

2. To require the maintenance and production of operating records and progress reports.

3. To approve the means to be used for the chemical processing of irradiated materials solely to ensure that this chemical processing will not lend itself to diversion of materials for military purposes and will comply with applicable health and safety standards.

4. To send into the territory inspectors who shall have access at all times to all places and data and relevant persons.

Finance. The Board of Governors shall submit to the General Conference the annual budget estimates for the expenses of the Agency.

Expenditure shall be classified as:

1. Administrative expenses (including costs of staff and meetings and costs of implementing safeguards).

2. Expenses in connection with any materials, facilities, plant, and equipment acquired or established by the Agency.

The Board shall have the authority to exercise borrowing powers on behalf of the Agency.

Privileges and Immunities. The Agency shall enjoy in the territory of each member such legal capacity and such privileges and immunities as are necessary for the exercise of its functions.

Disputes. Any question or dispute concerning the interpretation or application of this Statute which is not settled by negotiation shall be referred to the International Court of Justice unless the parties concerned agree on another mode of settlement.

WORLD FOOD PROGRAM—WFP

Via delle Terme di Caracalla, Rome, Italy

Established 1963 for a three-year experimental period, and extended 1965, the WFP is a joint UN-FAO effort to provide emergency relief and to stimulate economic and social development through aid in the form of food.

ORGANIZATION

Intergovernmental Committee: 24 members, 12 elected by ECOSOC and 12 by FAO.

Joint UN-FAO Administrative Unit: carries out the day-to-day activities of the WFP.

Executive Director: FRANCISCO AQUINO.

ACTIVITIES

Member governments of the United Nations and FAO make voluntary contributions of commodities, cash, and services (particularly shipping) to WFP, which uses the food for emergency relief for victims of natural and man-made disasters and for support for economic and social development projects in the developing countries. The food is supplied, for example, as an incentive in development self-help schemes, as part wages in labour-intensive projects of many kinds, particularly in the rural economy, but also in the industrial field, and in support of institutional feeding schemes where the emphasis is mainly on enabling the beneficiaries to have an adequate and balanced diet. In some cases it is feed for livestock that is supplied, the introduction of modern feeding practices leading to increased production and thus to an improvement of the people's nutrition. Recipient governments are encouraged to take steps to replace the WFP aid as soon as each project, which may be for anything up to five years, comes to an end.

As at October 31st, 1969, 385 development projects had been approved since the beginning of the Programme's operations at a total cost to WFP of $792,652,475. Broken down by region in Latin America and the Caribbean 56 projects in 18 countries, in North Africa and the Near East, 99 projects in 11 countries, in West Africa, 70 projects in 21 countries, in Mediterranean Europe and East Africa, 59 projects in 13 countries, in Asia and the Far East, 101 projects in 15 countries. In addition, 96 emergency operations have been undertaken in 61 countries at a total cost to the Programme of $72,126,972.

THE UNITED NATIONS—(OTHER BODIES)

The biggest single project ever undertaken is for the development of the dairy industry in several areas of India at a total cost to the Programme of nearly $56 million.

RESOURCES

As at October 31st, 1969, the resources made available to the Programme through voluntary contributions by governments, including pledges for the period 1969-70, stood at a total of $537,198,234. $387,880,279 were in commodities and $149,317,955 in cash and services. A further $32,324,377 worth of food grains was made available to the Programme by signatories of the Food Aid Convention. The target set by the UN and FAO for the pledging period 1971-72 amounts to $300 million. In January 1970 a total of $215,423,580 was pledged by 49 countries.

UNITED NATIONS PEACE-KEEPING FORCE IN CYPRUS—UNFICYP

P.O. Box 1642, Nicosia, Cyprus

UNITED NATIONS CONFERENCE ON TRADE AND DEVELOPMENT—UNCTAD

Palais des Nations, Geneva

Telephone 34 60 11, 33 40 00, 33 20 00, 33 10 00.

Set up as an organ of the United Nations General Assembly by a resolution of December 1964 on the recommendation of the UN Conference on Trade and Development, held March-June 1964. Aims to promote international trade with a view to accelerating economic development.

ORGANIZATION

CONFERENCE

First session, Geneva, March 23rd-June 16th, 1964
Second session, New Delhi, February 1st-March 29th, 1968. Members 135 (end of 1969).

Secretary-General: MANUEL PÉREZ GUERRERO (Venezuela)
In March 1969 succeeded Dr. RAÚL PRIBERSON (Argentina).

TRADE AND DEVELOPMENT BOARD

UNCTAD's main executive organ, the Board carries out the functions of the Conference when the latter is not in session. Members 55 states elected by the Conference having regard to geographical distribution and continuing representation for the principal trading states, 31 members of the Board are developing countries. In 1969 the Board held its eighth and ninth sessions. The Board reviewed the recommendations made by its main committees and other subsidiary bodies, dealt with problems referred to it by the New Delhi Conference, considered UNCTAD's contribution to the second United Nations Development Decade and made arrangements to improve UNCTAD's methods of work and institutional machinery.

THE UNITED NATIONS—(OTHER BODIES)

President (1969) K. B. ASANTE (Ghana).

MAIN COMMITTEES

The Board has four main committees and an ad hoc Committee on Preferences.

Committee on Commodities: 55 members. Chairman (1969): UMARJADI NJOTOWIJONO (Indonesia). Fourth session, May 19th–31st, 1969. Reviewed the current international commodity situation and recommended international action with respect to specific commodities. Continued elaboration of an international commodity policy and carried forward various technical studies.

Permanent Group on Synthetics and Substitutes 21 members. Chairman (1969): FRANCO PONTI (Italy). Third session, October 27th–31st, 1969. Recommended measures to improve market conditions for natural products threatened by competition from synthetics, such as rubber, cotton and hard fibres.

Committee on Manufactures: 45 members. Chairman (1968):

HUSSEIN KHALLAH (United Arab Republic). (No session held in 1969.)

Special Committee on Preferences: open to all interested UNCTAD member countries. Chairman (1969): THIRU-MALRAYA SWAMINATHAN (India). Met from May 2nd–April 28th and from June 30th–July 3rd, 1969. Agreed on a procedure intended to lead as expeditiously as possible to the negotiation of a system of generalized, non-reciprocal and non-discriminatory preferences in favour of manufactured and semi-manufactured exports from developing countries to the markets of developed ones.

Committee on Invisibles and Financing related to Trade: 45 members. Chairman (1969): JOSÉ DE LA PUENTE (Peru). Third session, February 17th–March 1st, 1969. Concentrated on three basic and closely related issues, namely: how to increase the flow into developing countries of financial resources; how to intensify the mobilization of domestic resources; and how to liberalize the terms and conditions of foreign aid.

Committee on Shipping: 45 members. Chairman (1969): VASIL D. VALCHANOV (Bulgaria). Third session, April 9th–25th, 1969. Called for technical studies concerning terms of shipping conference practices, improvement of ports and freight rates. Also made arrangements for a training course in the economics and management of shipping and for work on international shipping legislation.

AIMS

The principal functions of UNCTAD are: to promote international trade, in order to accelerate economic development, particularly trade between countries at different stages of development, between developing countries and between countries with different systems of economic and social organization; to formulate principles and policies on international trade and related problems of economic development; to make proposals for putting these principles and policies into effect; to review and facilitate the co-ordination of activities of other UN bodies dealing with related problems; to initiate action for the negotiation and adoption of multilateral legal instruments in the field of trade; to harmonize trade and related policies of governments and regional economic groupings.

DEVELOPMENTS IN 1969

Reporting to the 24th UN General Assembly, the UNCTAD Secretary-General stressed that in 1969 the share of developing countries in international trade continued to decline and that transfers of resources for development financing were far from meeting the capital-flow targets. This unsatisfactory situation was partly the result of monetary and balance-of-payments difficulties in some developed countries and of political tensions in many parts of the world. The Board, therefore, encountered many difficulties in its efforts to pursue the tasks which had remained outstanding at the conclusion of the second Conference, in March 1968. However, progress had been achieved in certain important areas and there existed the determination to work hard towards the achievement of UNCTAD's objectives.

UNITED NATIONS INSTITUTE FOR TRAINING AND RESEARCH—UNITAR

801 United Nations Plaza, New York

Established 1965 as an autonomous body within the framework of the United Nations Provides training to personnel, particularly from developing countries, for national and international service, and conducts research and study related to the functions and objectives of the United Nations

ORGANIZATION

BOARD OF TRUSTEES

Composed of eighteen members appointed by the UN Secretary-General to serve for two years The UN Secretary-General and the Presidents of the General Assembly and ECOSOC, and the Executive Director of the Institute are ex-officio members Specialized agencies are represented appropriately at meetings The Board meets usually once a year and is responsible for determining basic policies of the Institute and for reviewing and adopting the annual budget

Subsidiary Committees Administrative and Financial, Research, Training

EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

The Executive Director is appointed by the Secretary-General, after consultation with the Board, and is responsible for the overall organization, direction and administration of the Institute

Executive Director: Chief S O ADEBO, C M A (Nigeria)

FUNCTIONS

The purpose of the Institute is to enhance, by training and research, "the effectiveness of the United Nations in achieving the major objectives of the Organization, in particular the maintenance of peace and security and the promotion of economic and social development". Training at various levels is provided to persons, particularly from the developing countries, for assignments with the UN or the specialized agencies and for assignments in their national services which are connected with the work of the UN The Institute also conducts research and study into problems which may concern the UN.

Training Programmes in 1970

- 1 UNITAR seminars on international organization and multilateral diplomacy in New York and Geneva
- 2 Basic training courses for new recruits and junior officers of the foreign service
- 3 Regional seminars on procedures and techniques of technical assistance

- 4 Seminar on major problems of technical and financial co-operation
- 5 Colloquium for senior officials in the United Nations system
- 6 United Nations/UNITAR fellowships in international law
- 7 Regional refresher training course in international law

Research Programmes in 1970

- 1 Relations between United Nations and regional organizations
- 2 Braindrain the international migration of professionals from developing to developed countries
- 3 Transfer of technology from enterprise to enterprise
- 4 New techniques and methods of training
- 5 Comparative study of measures against racial discrimination

UNITED NATIONS DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMME—UNDP

New York City

Established in 1965 to aid the developing countries in increasing the wealth-producing capabilities of their natural and human resources by supporting economic and social projects, with pre-investment, help and technical assistance. The UNDP came into effect in January 1966, bringing together the previous activities of the Expanded Programme of Technical Assistance and the UN Special Fund.

EXECUTING AGENCIES

FAO	ILO	UPU
IMCO	ITU	WHO
IAEA	UN	WMO
IBRD	UNESCO	AfDB
ICAO	UNIDO	IDB

ORGANIZATION

The UNDP functions under the authority of ECOSOC and of the General Assembly.

Governing Council: 37 mems., representing both developed and developing countries; the policy making body of the UNDP.

President (1969): AGHA SHAHI (Pakistan).

Administrator: PAUL G. HOFFMAN (U.S.A.).

Co-Administrator: C. V. NARASIMHAN.

Inter-Agency Consultative Board: composed of the UN Secretary-General and the Executive Heads of the Specialized Agencies and other bodies; provides guidance and advice.

ACTIVITIES

The United Nations Development Programme is carrying out over 3,000 pre-investment and technical assistance projects in support of national and regional development efforts, including: development planning, industrial productivity, agricultural productivity, public utilities, education, public health, major public and social services. In 1968, it provided the developing countries with the services of some 8,200 international experts, with about 7,100 fellowships awarded for study abroad, and with supporting equipment. The projects, which range in cost from a few thousand dollars to several million dollars each and from a few weeks to several years in duration, fall within these categories:

Surveys and feasibility studies: of natural and physical resources and their economic potential.

Centres for advanced education and training: in the effective use of domestic or regional manpower resources.

Applied Research Institutes: for bringing modern technology to bear on development needs.

Advisory and consultative services for assistance in a broad spectrum of fields: also, in special cases, provision of experts to fill executive or operational posts.

Fellowships: to provide advanced education, training and work experience abroad for nationals of developing countries.

Exchange of ideas, information and plans: convening of seminars of experts from many areas.

The results of UNDP assistance can be demonstrated, to some extent, by the number of persons trained by UNDP-assisted training institutes and by the amount of reported investment commitments related to UNDP-assisted pre-investment projects. By the end of 1968, some 300,000 persons had been trained or were in training in 260 large-scale UNDP-assisted institutes. By the end of 1968, 69 UNDP-assisted pre-investment projects had influenced, directly or otherwise, reported follow-up investment commitments of an estimated $2,800 million.

FINANCE

The Development Programme is financed by the voluntary contributions of members of the United Nations, the Specialized Agencies, and the IAEA. Contributions pledged for 1970 reached an estimated total of U.S. $238 million (as of October 1969). The cumulative total of contributions pledged by some 120 countries since the inception of activities (the Expanded Programme of Technical Assistance in 1950, and the UN Special Fund in 1959) to the end of 1970 is approximately $1,875 million.

UNITED NATIONS INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT ORGANIZATION— UNIDO

Felderhaus, Rathausplatz 2, A-1010 Vienna, Austria

Established January 1967 to promote industrial development by encouraging the mobilization of national and international resources, and to assist in, promote and accelerate the industrialization of the developing countries, with particular emphasis on the manufacturing sector.

ORGANIZATION

INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT BOARD

Composed of 45 members elected by the UN General Assembly from among the members of the UN or its related agencies for a term of three years. Both developed and developing countries are equitably represented. The principle functions and powers of the Board are to formulate principles and policies to achieve the purpose of the Organization, to consider and approve the programme of its activities and also to review and facilitate the co-ordination of activities within the United Nations system in the field of industrial development. The Board normally holds one session a year.

President (1969): CARLOS ORTIZ DE ROZAS (Argentina).

Secretary: ALMANY SYLLA.

SECRETARIAT

Has overall responsibility for administration and research programmes and is in charge of operational programmes, including activities executed by UNIDO as a participating organization of the UNDP. The Secretariat consists of the Office of the Executive Director, the Technical Co-operation Division, three Divisions of Industrial Technology, Industrial Policies and Programming and Industrial Services and Institutions, and a Division of Administration Conference and General Services.

Executive Director: IBRAHIM HELMI ABDEL-RAHMAN (U.A.R.).

FUNCTIONS

Operational Activities

Carrying out surveys of industrial development possibilities, formulation of industrial development plans and programmes, pre-investment and feasibility studies;

Advising at the various stages of implementation and follow-up of industrial projects;

Assistance in achieving the efficient utilization of new and existing industrial capacity, including the solution of technical and technological problems, and the improvement and control of quality, management and performance;

Assistance in developing and improving marketing and distribution techniques and the development of export-oriented industry;

Assistance in the training of technical and other appropriate categories of personnel, including such forms of training as management workshops and in-plant training;

Assistance in the dissemination of information on technological innovations and know-how, the development of systems of patents and industrial property, and the adaptation and application of existing technology to the needs of developing countries;

Assistance in promoting domestic financing and in obtaining external financing for specific industrial projects;

Assistance in establishing or strengthening institutions to deal with various aspects of industrial development, including planning and programming, project formulation and evaluation, engineering and design, training and management, applied research, standardization and quality control, marketing, small-scale industry, investment promotion and pilot plants.

Seminars, workshops and in-plant training: These are organized by UNIDO in various sectors of industry and mostly in industrialized countries for the training of personnel and the acceleration of the flow of technical know-how and skills from industrialized countries to developing countries. Participation in this activity is on a regional or interregional level and is open to all interested governments.

Studies and Research

Include, in particular, the compilation, analysis, publication and dissemination of data concerning various aspects of industrialization, such as industrial technology, investment, financing, production, management and planning.

UNIDD'S TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE ACTIVITIES IN 1969

As a participating and executing agency in the United Nations Development Programme, UNIDO was responsible in 1969 for the execution of 35 long-term pre-investment projects financed from the Special Fund component of UNDP. In addition UNIDO was associated in the implementation of 10 projects executed by another Agency including ILO, FAO, UNESCO and the United Nations. The total value of the 35 projects executed by UNIDO was about $85.6 million, of which $31.5 million were in UNDP allocations and $54.1 million in counterpart contributions by recipient governments. These costs cover both the services of experts engaged on the projects and the training of their counterparts as well as equipment used for the project.

The purpose of these projects which had a duration of three to five years is the establishment of industrial development and design centres, research and standards institutes, small industries and industrial estate and pilot plants in various fields of activity including metalworking, petrochemicals, fertilizers, asbestos, textiles, engineering and electrical industries.

UNIDO's participation in the Technical Assistance component of UNDP, which is devoted mainly to medium-term experts' services and fellowships, was in 1969 in the order of $2.5 million. This amount represented the cost of 168 fellowship posts and the services of 215 experts in all aspects of the manufacturing industry, development, policies and productivity, small-scale industries, promotion of export oriented industries, standardization, repair and maintenance. Experts were also attached to governmental planning, development or financial institutions active in the industrial field.

The Special Industrial Services programme provided as in previous years speedy short-term assistance in the rehabilitation of existing industries and the development of new ones, with about 220 new projects approved in 1969. In terms of expenditures on the implementation of projects financed under the Programme, these amounted in 1969 to $2.1 million.

Assistance provided under the programme was of the "trouble shooting" nature to solve technical and operational problems of manufacturing enterprises, preparation and implementation of industrial projects and practical assistance at different stages in the preparation of new projects until financing is assured, among others.

UNIDO's Regular Programme with 1969 resources of $r.5 million is utilized for short-term assistance not exceeding one year. A major part of the programme was devoted to the financing of fellowship posts for training in industrialized countries. The remainder of the funds were used in financing experts engaged on field projects as well as a number of regional advisers attached to the Regional Economic Commissions in Africa, the Americas and Asia and the UN Economic and Social Office in Beirut.

INTERNATIONAL SYMPOSIUM ON INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT

Convened by UNIDO in November-December 1967, in Athens, Greece, in order to initiate a dialogue between developed and developing countries on all major issues of industrialization and to stimulate further international co-operation in this field. The main items on the agenda were (1) a general survey of the recent evolution and characteristics of world industry, with emphasis on the developing countries, (2) a review of key industries, (3) policies and measures in developing countries, and (4) ways and means of international co-operation.

In addition to the above programmes of technical assistance UNIDO provided expert advice and service to a number of countries which deposited with the United Nations the funds for these projects. The value of expenditures from these Funds-in-Trust amounted in 1969 to almost $400,000.

In the field of training the number of individual fellowship posts established in 1969 under all UNIDO programmes amounted to 444 posts, representing 2,458 man-months. The largest number of these posts were in the field of mechanical and electrical engineering. Others included light industry, industrial programming and project planning. In addition, twenty programmes of group in-plant training programmes, seminars and symposia partly or wholly financed from UNDP/ITA funds were organized in 1969 with 229 fellowship holders from developing countries. The majority of these programmes were in the metalworking, mechanical, shoe manufacturing, food processing and pulp and paper industries.

FINANCE

Administrative and Research Budget: part of the regular budget of the UN, total (1969) U.S. $9,026,000.

Operational Programmes: financed from voluntary contributions by governments, from the UNDP, and from the UN regular programme of technical assistance.

Special Industrial Services (SIS): financed from voluntary contributions, these services provide, at short notice, assistance to governments wishing to rehabilitate existing industry or develop new industrial projects.

UNIDD General Trust Fund: financed from voluntary contributions made directly to UNIDO at its annual pledging conference, these funds are utilized in promoting UNIDO's technical assistance activities.

JUDICIAL SYSTEM

THE SUPREME COURT

First President: ZBIGNIEW RESICH.

The Supreme Court is the highest judicial organ and court of cassation, and is the court of revision for sentences passed by Voivodship Courts. The judges for this court are elected by the Council of State for a term of five years.

Voivodship and District Courts. Persons may appeal from the District Courts to the Voivodship (province) Courts. The District Courts consist of one professional magistrate and two laymen, and these try less serious cases. The Voivodship Courts try more serious cases; when acting as court of first instance they consist of one professional judge and two laymen, and when acting as court of second instance they consist only of professional judges.

The Public Prosecutor-General is appointed and recalled by the Council of State. He is especially charged with the protection of social property.

Prosecutor-General: K. KOSZTIRKO.

THE CONSTITUTION

Political Structure

Article 1—(1) The Polish People's Republic is a State of People's Democracy

(2) In the Polish People's Republic the power belongs to the working people of town and country

Article 2—(1) The working people wield State power through their representatives elected to the Sejm (Parliament) of the Polish People's Republic and to the People's Councils on the basis of universal, equal and direct suffrage by secret ballot

(2) The people's representatives in the Sejm of the Polish People's Republic, and in the People's Councils, are responsible to their constituents and may be recalled by them

*Article 3—*The Polish People's Republic

(1) safeguards the achievements of the Polish working people of town and country and protects their power and freedom against forces hostile to the people,

(2) secures the development and continuous growth of the productive forces of the country by industrialization and through elimination of economic technical and cultural backwardness,

(3) organizes a planned economy based on enterprise-constituting social property

(4) limits, ousts and abolishes those classes of society which live by exploiting the workers and peasants

(5) ensures a continual rise in the welfare, health and cultural level of the people,

(6) secures an all round development of national culture

Article 4—(1) The laws of the Polish People's Republic express the interests and the will of the working people

(2) Strict adherence to the laws of the Polish People's Republic is the fundamental duty of every organ of the State and of every citizen

(3) The functioning of all organs of State power and administration is based on the rule of law

*Article 5—*All organs of State power and administration are supported in their work by the conscious and active co-operation of the people, and they are bound

(1) to account to the nation for their work,

(2) to examine carefully and take into consideration, in accordance with existing legislation, reasonable proposals, complaints and wishes of the citizens,

(3) to explain to the working people the chief aims and guiding principles of the policy of the people's authority in the diverse fields of State, economic and cultural activity.

*Article 6—*The armed forces of the Polish People's Republic safeguard the sovereignty and independence of the Polish nation and its security and peace

Social and Economic Structure

Article 7—(1) The Polish People's Republic, on the basis of socialised means of production, trade, communications and of social and economic relations

(2) The State has the monopoly of foreign trade

(3) The principal aim of the planned economic policy of the Polish People's Republic is the constant development of the productive forces of the country, the continuous raising of the standard of living of the working people and the consolidation of the power, defence strength and independence of the country

*Article 8—*The national wealth—that is, the mineral deposits, waters, State forests, mines, roads, rail, water

Article 9—(1) The Polish People's Republic strengthens in a planned way the economic union between town and country founded on brotherly co-operation between workers and peasants

(2) For this purpose the Polish People's Republic secures a continuous increase in the production of State industry serving to meet the all round needs of the rural population both as producers and consumers, at the same time planning the constant growth of production of agricultural commodities, supplying industry with raw materials and the urban population with foodstuffs

Article 10—(1) The Polish People's Republic protects the individual farms of working peasants and assists them in order to protect them against capitalist exploitation, to increase production, raise the technical level of agriculture and improve their welfare

(2) The Polish People's Republic gives special support and all-round aid to co-operative farms set up, on the principle of voluntary membership as forms of collective economy. By applying methods of efficient collective cultivation and mechanised work, collective farming enables the working peasants to reach a turning point in production and contributes to the complete elimination of exploitation in the countryside and to a rapid and considerable rise in its welfare and culture

(3) The main forms of State support and help for co-operative farms are State machine stations which make possible the application of modern techniques, and State credits on easy terms

*Article 11—*The Polish People's Republic promotes the development of different forms of the co-operative movement in town and country and gives it every help in the fulfilment of its tasks. It also extends special care and protection to co-operative property as constituting social property

*Article 12—*The Polish People's Republic recognises and protects, on the basis of existing legislation, individual property and the right to inherit land, buildings and other means of production belonging to peasants, craftsmen and persons engaged in domestic handicrafts

*Article 13—*The Polish People's Republic guarantees to citizens full protection of personal property and the right to inherit it.

Article 14—(1) Work is the right and the duty of, and a matter of honour for every citizen. By their work, by the observance of work discipline, by work competition and the perfecting of methods of work, the working people of town and country increase the strength of the country, raise the level of well-being of the nation and hasten the full realisation of the socialist system

(2) Work champions enjoy the respect of the whole nation.

(3) The Polish People's Republic puts into practice, to an increasing degree, the principle: "From each according to his ability, to each according to his work".

The Supreme Organs of State Authority

Article 15—(1) The highest organ of State authority is the Sejm of the Polish People's Republic.

(2) The Sejm, which is the highest representative of the will of the working people of town and country, gives form to the sovereign rights of the nation.

(3) The Sejm passes laws and exercises control over the work of other organs of State authority and administration.

Article 16—(1) Deputies to the Sejm are elected by citizens in constituencies, in the proportion of one Deputy to 60,000 inhabitants.

(2) The validity of the election of a Deputy is confirmed by the Sejm.

(3) A Deputy may neither be brought before a Court, nor arrested, without the consent of the Sejm, and when the Sejm is not in session, without the consent of the Council of State.

Article 17—(1) The Sejm meets in sessions. The Council of State convokes a session of the Sejm at least twice a year. Likewise, on a written motion by one-third of the total number of Deputies, the Council of State is bound to convoke a session.

(2) The first session of a newly-elected Sejm must be convoked within a period of one month from the date of the elections.

Article 18—(1) The Sejm elects from among its members a Chairman, Deputy Chairmen, and Committees.

(2) The Chairman or his deputy presides over the debates and supervises the course of the work of the Sejm.

(3) The debates of the Sejm are open to the public. The Sejm may vote the holding of a secret session if this be required in the interests of the State.

(4) The order of work of the Sejm, the kind and number of committees, are defined by rules of procedure adopted by the Sejm.

Article 19—(1) The Sejm adopts the national economic plans for a period of several years.

(2) The Sejm adopts every year the State budget.

Article 20—(1) The right to propose legislation is vested in the Council of State, the Government and the Deputies.

(2) Laws passed by the Sejm are signed by the President and Secretary of the Council of State. Orders for the promulgation of laws contained in the Journal of Laws are issued by the President of the Council of State.

*Article 21—*The Sejm may appoint a Committee to examine a specified matter. The terms of reference and procedure of the Committee are established by the Sejm.

*Article 22—*The Chairman of the Council of Ministers or individual Ministers are bound to answer, within seven days, a question put by a Deputy.

Article 23—(1) The Sejm is elected for a term of four years.

(2) The decision to hold elections to the Sejm is adopted by the Council of State not later than one month before the expiry of the term of office of the Sejm, the polling day to be fixed on a day free from work within two months after the expiry of the term of office of the Sejm.

Article 24—(1) At its first sitting, the Sejm elects a Council of State composed of the President of the Council of State, four Deputy Presidents, the Secretary of the Council of State, and nine Members.

(2) The Chairman and Deputy-Chairman may be elected to the Council of State as Deputy Presidents or as Members.

(3) After the expiry of the term of office of the Sejm, the Council of State acts until the election of a Council of State by the newly-elected Sejm.

Article 25—(1) The following functions are vested in the Council of State:

(i) the ordering of elections to the Sejm;

(ii) the convocation of sessions of the Sejm;

(iii) the establishment of universally binding interpretation of laws;

(iv) the issuing of decrees with the force of law;

(v) the appointment and recall of plenipotentiary representatives of the Polish People's Republic in other States;

(vi) the acceptance of letters of credence and of recall of diplomatic representatives of other States accredited to the Council of State;

(vii) the ratification and denouncing of international treaties;

(viii) the appointment to civilian and military posts specified by law;

(ix) the awarding of orders, decorations and titles of honour;

(x) the exercise of the right to grant pardon;

(xi) the exercise of other functions vested in the Council of State by the Constitution or assigned to it by special laws.

(2) The Council of State is accountable to the Sejm for all its activities.

(3) The Council of State acts as a body.

(4) The Council of State is represented by the President or his deputy.

Article 26—(1) In the intervals between the sessions of the Sejm, the Council of State issues decrees with force of law. The Council of State submits the decrees to the Sejm at its next session for approval.

(2) Decrees issued by the Council of State are signed by the President of the Council of State and its Secretary. Decrees are published in the Journal of Laws by order of the President of the Council of State.

Article 27—(1) The Council of State exercises ultimate supervision over the local People's Councils. The specific powers of the Council of State in this matter are determined by law.

Article 28—(1) A declaration concerning a state of war can be issued only in the event of armed aggression having been committed against the Polish People's Republic, or if, in pursuance of international agreements, the necessity should arise of common defence against aggression. Such a declaration is voted by the Sejm or, if the Sejm is not in session, by the Council of State.

(2) The Council of State may introduce martial law in parts or in the entire territory of the Polish People's Republic should this be required by considerations of the defence or security of the State. For the same reasons, the Council of State may proclaim partial or general mobilization.

Article 28a—(1) The Supreme Board of Control is appointed to supervise the economic, financial and organisational-administrative activities of the central and local organs of State administration, and of units subordinate to them, as regards lawfulness, efficiency, propriety and fair dealing.

(2) The Supreme Board of Control may also supervise State-aided and municipally-aided bodies and institutions, and non-socialised economic units, as regards the targets set them by the State, and in other cases as established by statute.

THE UNITED NATIONS—(OTHER BODIES)

UNITED NATIONS CAPITAL DEVELOPMENT FUND

United Nations, New York

Established by the UN General Assembly in December 1966, the Capital Development Fund was due to begin operations in January 1968.

ORGANIZATION

Owing to initial lack of financial resources, it has not yet been possible to give full effect to the institutional arrangement described below.

EXECUTIVE BOARD

Composed of twenty-four representatives elected by the UN General Assembly for a term of three years from among members of the UN or its related intergovernmental agencies. There is equitable representation of developed and developing countries. The Board exercises control of the policies and operations of the Capital Development Fund and is the final authority for the approval of grants and loans submitted to it by the Managing Director. The Board meets at least once a year.

The functions of the Board will provisionally be performed by the Governing Council of UNDP.

MANAGING DIRECTOR

Chief executive officer; exercises his functions under general direction of Executive Board; has overall responsibility for the operations of the Capital Fund; submits, with his recommendations, requests for grants and loans to Executive Board. Appointed by the UN Secretary-General for a period of four years.

Managing Director: The Administrator of UNDP (pro tem.).

FUNCTIONS

Assists developing countries in the development of their economies by supplementing existing sources of capital assistance by means of grants and loans, particularly long-term loans made free of interest or at low rates of interest.

Assistance is directed towards the achievement of the accelerated and self-sustained growth of the economies of those countries and is orientated towards the diversification of their economies, with due regard to the need for industrial development as a basis for economic and social progress.

Assistance is given to a Member Government of the UN or of its related intergovernmental organizations or to a group of such States or to an authorized entity within such a State.

Assistance may be given to support general development plans or to meet general development requirements, and is not necessarily limited to specific projects.

Assistance is co-ordinated with aid from other sources. Close liaison is maintained with the Regional Economic Commissions, UNIDO, UNDP, the UN intergovernmental organizations and the regional development banks.

FINANCE

Administrative Activities: financed by the regular budget of the UN.

Operational Activities: financed by voluntary contributions, in cash or kind, from governments or other sources. The First Pledging Conference, held in October 1967, was attended by representatives of 64 countries. $1,319,910 was pledged by governments of 21 developing countries. At the Second Pledging Conference, held in November 1968, $1,356,716 was pledged by the governments of 31 countries. Of the 135 countries invited to attend by the Secretary-General of the UN, 74 were not represented at the Conference. These included most of the developed countries of Western Europe and the socialist countries.

At the Third Pledging Conference held in October 1969 and attended by representatives of 45 countries, the equivalent of $775,335 was pledged, mostly in local currencies, by the governments of 26 developing countries.

UNITED NATIONS MIDDLE EAST MISSION—UNMEM

P.O.B. 2324, Nicosia, Cyprus

Established by the UN Security Council in November 1967 to form and maintain contacts with the States concerned in the 1967 Arab-Israeli conflict, in order to assist efforts to achieve a peaceful and acceptable settlement in the area.

ORGANIZATION

Secretary-General's Special Representative: GUNNAR V. JARRING (Sweden).

THE UNITED NATIONS

CHARTER OF THE UNITED NATIONS

We the peoples of the United Nations determined to save succeeding generations from the scourge of war, which twice in our lifetime has brought untold sorrow to mankind, and to reaffirm faith in fundamental human rights, in the dignity and worth of the human person, in the equal rights of men and women and of nations large and small,

and to establish conditions under which justice and respect for the obligations arising from treaties and other sources of international law can be maintained, and to promote social progress and better standards of life in larger freedom,

and for these ends

to practice tolerance and live together in peace with one another as good neighbours, and to unite our strength to maintain international peace and security, and to ensure, by the acceptance of principles and the institution of methods, that armed force shall not be used, save in the common interest, and to employ international machinery for the promotion of the economic and social advancement of all peoples,

Have resolved to combine our efforts to accomplish these aims.

Accordingly, our respective Governments, through representatives assembled in the city of San Francisco, who have exhibited their full powers found to be in good and due form, have agreed to the present Charter of the United Nations and do hereby establish an international organization to be known as the United Nations

CHAPTER I PURPOSES AND PRINCIPLES

Article 1

The Purposes of the United Nations are

1. To maintain international peace and security, and to that end to take effective collective measures for the prevention and removal of threats to the peace, and for the suppression of acts of aggression or other breaches of the peace, and to bring about by peaceful means, and in conformity with the principles of justice and international law, adjustment or settlement of international disputes or to strengthen universal peace,

3 To achieve international co-operation in solving international problems of an economic, social, cultural, or humanitarian character, and in promoting and encouraging respect for human rights and for fundamental freedoms for all without distinction as to race, sex, language, or religion,
and

4 To be a centre for harmonizing the accusations of nations in the attainment of these common ends

Article 2

The Organization and its Members, in pursuit of the Purposes stated in Article 1, shall act in accordance with the following Principles

1. The Organization is based on the principle of the sovereign equality of all its Members

2 All Members, in order to ensure to all of them the rights and benefits resulting from membership, shall fulfil in good faith the obligations assumed by them in accordance with the present Charter

3 All Members shall settle their international disputes by peaceful means in such a manner that international peace and security, and justice, are not endangered

4 All Members shall refrain in their international relations from the threat or use of force against the territorial integrity or political independence of any state, or in any other manner inconsistent with the Purposes of the United Nations

5. All Members shall give the United Nations every assistance in any action it takes in accordance with the present Charter, and shall refrain from giving assistance to any state against which the United Nations is taking preventive or enforcement action

6. The Organization shall ensure that states which are not Members of the United Nations act in accordance with these Principles so far as may be necessary for the maintenance of international peace and security.

7. Nothing contained in the present Charter shall authorize the United Nations to intervene in matters which are essentially within the domestic jurisdiction of any state or shall require the Members to submit such matters to settlement under the present Charter, but this principle shall not prejudice the application of enforcement measures under Chapter VII

CHAPTER II MEMBERSHIP

Article 3

The original Members of the United Nations shall be the states which, having participated in the United Nations Conference on International Organization at San Francisco, or having previously signed the Declaration by United Nations of January 1, 1942, sign the present Charter and ratify it in accordance with Article 110

Article 4

1 Membership in the United Nations is open to all other peace-loving states which accept the obligations contained in the present Charter and, in the judgment of the Organization, are able and willing to carry out these obligations

2 The admission of any such state to membership in the United Nations will be effected by a decision of the General Assembly upon the recommendation of the Security Council

Article 5

A Member of the United Nations against which preventive or enforcement action has been taken by the Security Council may be suspended from the exercise of the rights and privileges of membership by the General Assembly upon the recommendation of the Security Council. The exercise of these rights and privileges may be restored by the Security Council.

Article 6

A Member of the Organization which has violated the Principles of the Charter may be expelled from the Assembly upon the recommendation of the Security

income tax rates. Working conditions are supervised and inspected regularly by labour inspectors from The Central Labour Inspection Office and, in addition, a social labour inspector is appointed by each trade union works' council. Disputes are regulated by Arbitration Commissions composed of representatives of the trade unions and of the administration. The industrial health service is under the control of the unions which run health centres and sanatoria for their members. Sociological research is also carried out by the unions and the results used in decisions of policy on wages, housing and general welfare.

The trade unions provide cultural facilities on a large scale in the form of houses of culture, clubs, recreation rooms, and libraries; they support drama and musical enterprises, and help further members' education by running evening courses, trade courses and workers' universities. The Working People's Holiday Fund is directly controlled by the unions which arrange holidays for members at a cost proportional to their earnings.

There is close co-operation between the Polish Trade Unions and those in other countries as well as with the World Federation of Trade Unions and International bodies such as UNESCO.

INLAND WATERWAYS

Poland has 6,855 km. of waterways, of which 4,615 km. are navigable for passenger transport. The main rivers are the Vistula (1,068 km.), Oder (866 km.), Bug (776 km.), Warta (808 km.), San, Narew, Noteć, Pilica, Wieprz, and the Dunajec. There are some 5,000 lakes, the largest being the Śniardwy, Mamry, Łebsko and Miedwie.

In addition, there is a network of canals (approximately 1,215 km.). The most important of these are:

Kanał Elblaski (Elbląg Canal) connects the Drwęca River with the Wisłany lagoon (159 km.).

Kanał Górnynotecki (Upper Noteć Canal) connects the Bydgoszcz Canal with Lake Gopło (114 km.).

Międzyzjeziorne Kanaly Mazurskie (Mazurian Lakes Canals) connect Lake Mamry with River Pisa (86.8 km.).

CULTURE

Poland's history has been dominated by a series of wars to defend her territory against encroachment and annexation from all sides, and yet the Polish cultural identity and traditions have developed and persisted even in subjugation and exile.

Cultural development in Poland came to a virtual standstill during the German occupation in the Second World War, when printing and publishing houses, theatres, cinemas, museums and art galleries were shut down or destroyed. Since the war the State has been the patron of the arts. Development has been in some new directions there has been a regular government subsidy for theatres and particular interest centres on films and filming, with many clubs forming part of a technical basis for a mass culture. Amateur artistic effort is encouraged. Art schools also enjoy much popular support.

The Ministry of Culture and Art is the principal body concerned with organizing the arts, and there are a number of local People's Councils. Other organizing bodies include:

Central Office of Cinematography: in 1966 there were 3,836 state-owned cinemas and also many in Cultural Institutes, The Central Film Archives, the Polish Federation of Film Discussion Clubs, which had c. 50,000 members in 2,000 clubs.

General Committee for Sport and Tourism: coordinates the activities of the sport federations and the physical education and tourist organizations, which have some 3.5 million participants.

Palace of Culture and Science: houses many scientific institutions and has cultural and entertainment facilities.

There are 69 theatres, 24 concert halls, nine opera houses, 19 philharmonic and symphony orchestras and two song and dance ensembles in Poland.

economic and financial organization are contained in six chapters, under Título VII of the present Constitution.

Religious freedom, habeas corpus, freedom of expression and of education are guaranteed by Article 7. Special laws aimed at preventing the perversion of public opinion, and at safeguarding the moral integrity of individuals, regulate freedom of expression.

The State favours such private enterprise as is productive and not prejudicial to the welfare of society or of small domestic industries. It promotes the formation and development of a corporative national economy. Only authorised corporations may make, with the assistance of the State, collective labour contracts. Strikes and lock-outs with retaliatory aims are forbidden.

Primary education is compulsory, and may be provided by the State or privately. Religious education in private schools need not have official authorisation. Such schools, which may be subsidised by the State and authorised to grant official diplomas, are subject to official inspection.

The Catholic Church is separated from the State and its juridical personality is recognised. Freedom is granted other religious bodies excepting those whose doctrines are contrary to the established social order. The activities of non-Catholic bodies are subject to regulation by the law.

Sovereignty is vested in the President of the Republic, the National Assembly, the Cabinet, and the Courts.

THE PRESIDENT

The President of the Republic, who must be at least 35 years of age, is chosen by an electoral college composed of members of the National Assembly and the Corporative Chamber, and municipal representatives from each metropolitan district and overseas province, and holds office for seven years. He appoints the premier, and also the ministers and sub-secretaries of state proposed by the premier.

Legislation passed by the National Assembly receives his assent, and he is then responsible for its being carried out. He has the power to dissolve the National Assembly or to convolve extraordinary sessions.

The President is advised by a Council of State composed of the following members:

1. The Chairman of the Council of Ministers (Cabinet)
2. The President of the National Assembly.
3. The President of the Corporative Chamber.

4. The President of the Supreme Court of Justice
5. The Attorney-General of the Republic.
6. Ten public men of superior competence appointed for life by the President of the Republic.

The Council is consulted by the President when giving constituent powers to the National Assembly, convoking

The President acts as the representative of the nation in the negotiation of foreign treaties and pacts, though drafts have to be submitted to the National Assembly for approval before being signed.

THE NATIONAL ASSEMBLY

The Assembly consists of 130 members elected by direct vote every four years. Electors vote for party lists. No member of the National Assembly may be at the same time a member of the Corporative Chamber. On dissolution new elections must be held within 60 days, and the new Assembly must meet within a further 30 days. (The period of 60 days may be extended to 6 months if necessary.)

Voting is restricted to literate men and women over the age of 21 and who are registered voters. In the 1966 Legislative election 20 per cent of the population were eligible to vote.

The Assembly initiates legislation and must pass other measures proposed by the Council of Ministers or the President before they can be put into practice. It considers the national accounts and those of the Overseas Territories presented to it by the Accounts Tribunal, authorizes the collection and expenditure of revenues, authorizes the President to declare war and make peace, and approves international agreements. It may declare a state of siege with total or partial suspension of constitutional guarantees. The Assembly also has the power to modify the Constitution every ten years or by special authorization of the President.

THE CORPORATIVE CHAMBER

The Chamber is attached to the National Assembly, and is composed of representatives of local authorities and leaders in the fields of economics, philosophy and culture. The manner of selecting members of the Chamber and their term of office are determined by law.

The Chamber reports and advises within 30 days, or within any period fixed by the Government or the Assembly, on all legislative proposals before they are submitted to the Assembly.

The Chamber is in session simultaneously with the National Assembly and is divided into specialized sections. It may sit in plenary session or by sections and sub-sections. The meetings of sections and sub-sections are not public.

THE COUNCIL OF MINISTERS

(THE CABINET)

The Council of Ministers consists of the Premier, who is appointed by the President, and his nominees, who have to be approved by the President.

The Premier, acting as President of the Council, is responsible only to the Chairman of the Republic for the general policy of his Cabinet. The Cabinet has the right to nominate, transfer or remove by decree the President of

PORTUGAL

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

Portugal is a republic situated on the Atlantic side of the Iberian peninsula bordered by Spain to the north and east. The climate is mild and temperate with an annual mean temperature of 16°C (61°F). In the interior the weather is drier and hotter. The language is Portuguese. Roman Catholicism is the religion of the majority of the people. The flag carries two vertical bands of green and red, the green occupying two-fifths of the total area. The capital is Lisbon.

Recent History

Dr. António Salazar ruled Portugal from 1932 to 1968. The country remained neutral in the Second World War. In 1955 she was admitted to membership of the United Nations. In 1961 the Overseas Province of Goa, south of Bombay, was occupied by India. Since early in 1961 there has been fighting in Northern Angola between African nationalists and Portuguese forces. Owing to serious illness, Dr. Salazar was succeeded in September 1968 by Dr. Marcello Caetano. Press censorship has been relaxed, a universal national minimum wage has been announced, and syndicates are permitted free elections of officials. The return from exile of the Socialist Democratic leader Mario Soares indicated the permitted revival of a limited non-Communist Opposition but only prior to the elections. A General Election was held on October 26th, 1969, in which the União Nacional Party won all 130 seats. The União Nacional became the Accao Nacional Popular in February 1970.

Government

The Head of State is elected by the National Assembly and the Corporative Chamber. The National Assembly is elected by direct suffrage every four years. It initiates legislation and approves measures submitted to it by the Council of Ministers. The Corporative Chamber, which sits jointly with the National Assembly, is made up of representatives of the professions and reports on all legislative measures which it examines. The Council of Ministers consists of the Prime Minister and his nominees.

Defence

Military service is compulsory and lasts eighteen months. Portugal is a member of the NATO alliance. Total strength of the Armed Forces is 144,700. The defence estimates for 1969 totalled 9,263 million escudos.

Economic Affairs

Approximately 35 per cent of the working population is engaged in agriculture, which is however responsible for less than 17 per cent of Gross National Product. Portugal is the world's third greatest exporter of olive oil. Other important exports are Port wine, sardines and cork. Industry serves these products by way of canning, bottling and bottle manufacture. Textiles are also produced.

Portugal has some coal and copper and small quantities of other minerals. The country maintains a large merchant fleet, her best customer being the Portuguese Overseas Provinces, chiefly Angola and Mozambique in Africa. In January 1964 duties on goods entering Portugal from Overseas Provinces were abolished. In 1964 Portugal signed an agreement for mutual economic co-operation with South Africa.

Portugal is undergoing a phase of accelerated economic development and industrialization; important are her membership of EFTA and the current five-year development plan, introduced in 1968 and totalling 122,197 million escudos (nearly £2,000 millions). The Margueira shipyard, the largest in Europe, is in the final stages of completion (January 1970) and is already partially in use. Overseas investment in Portuguese industry is encouraged, with Federal Germany the leading contributor.

Transport and Communications

There are an estimated 30,000 kilometres of roads. A suspension bridge was inaugurated across the Tagus at Lisbon in 1966. Railways cover 3,592 kilometres and are jointly operated by the state and private bodies. There is a merchant marine with a total tonnage of 642,949 tons. Regular air services connect Lisbon with European and African capitals.

Social Welfare

A state Social Welfare Fund was established in 1964. There is a state levy upon employers and some places of entertainment to subsidize public works for the relief of unemployment. Health services are usually covered by private insurance bodies and employers' insurance.

Education

Education is free and compulsory between the ages of 7 and 14, and consists of four years of primary school followed by two years of continuation classes. Secondary education, including secondary technical schools, is voluntary and fees are charged. State fees are low and scholarships are provided. Much has been done in the past decade to reduce illiteracy, including the setting up of adult schools providing intensive elementary courses. There are three universities and one technical university.

Tourism

Portugal is popular with visitors because of its mild and clement weather. Apart from Lisbon and Estoril on the mainland, Madeira and the Azores are much favoured as winter resorts. In 1968, 2,510,700 tourists visited Portugal, Madeira and the Azores.

Nationals of the following countries do not require a visa to enter Portugal: Austria, Belgium, Denmark, Finland, France, Germany (Federal Republic), Greece, Iceland, Ireland, Italy, Luxembourg, Malta, Monaco, Netherlands, Norway, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, U.K., U.S.A.

PORTUGAL—(THE CONSTITUTION, THE GOVERNMENT)

the Supreme Court of Justice, the Attorney-General of the Republic, diplomatic and consular agents, and governors of the Overseas Provinces. The life of the Cabinet is exclusively dependent on the confidence of the President of the Republic, and does not depend on the result of any vote in the Assembly or on the fate of any legislative proposals. Individual ministers are responsible politically to the Premier, and civilly and criminally for the acts legalised or committed by them.

The Cabinet may propose legislation to the National Assembly or, in particular cases, issue decrees.

REVISION OF THE CONSTITUTION

The Constitution may be revised every ten years, the National Assembly at the time of revision acquiring constituent powers which will cease when the amending law is published. The period of ten years may be reduced to five if approved by two-thirds of the members of the Assembly. The President of the Republic may, in the public interest and after consultation with the Council of State, confer constituent powers on a National Assembly enabling it to revise the Constitution in specific matters.

A number of articles were revised in 1961.

POLITICAL ORGANIZATION

Açção Nacional Popular (formerly União Nacional): Pres. Central Committee Dr. MARCELLO CAETANO.

The party system in the generally accepted sense does not operate in Portugal and the Açcao Nacional Popular is the sole legally constituted political organization. It replaced the União Nacional in February 1970. In the Presidential Election of June 1958 there were originally three candidates, Admiral Américo Thomaz, the Government candidate, General Humberto Delgado, standing as an Independent Liberal and Dr. Arlindo Vicente who described himself as a Republican Liberal Democrat; midway during the campaign Dr. Vicente withdrew and pledged his support to General Delgado. According to the official returns Admiral Thomaz received 758,998 votes (77 per cent) and General Delgado 236,528 (23 per cent). Admiral Thomaz was returned unopposed by the Electoral Body at the Presidential Election of July 1965.

The Communist Party, founded in 1921 and proscribed in 1926, has remained active. It has an estimated strength of 20,000 members and publishes a newspaper, Avante.

General Election October 26th, 1969

Opposition groups were allowed to form for the purposes of the election only (at all other times they are illegal) the two groups formed were:

The United Democratic Electoral Commission (CEUD): Social Democratic; Leader Dr. MÁRIO SOARES.

The Democratic Electoral Commission (CDE): Liberal; Leader Prof. FRANCISCO PEREIRA DE MOURA.

The poll was boycotted by the Democratic and Social Action Group, the Monarchists and the Communists. The official result of the election showed that the União Nacional won 88 per cent of all votes cast (980,000) and all 130 seats. The Opposition won 12 per cent of the votes (134,046) and no seats.

JUDICIAL SYSTEM

The Supreme Court: Lisbon; consisting of a president and 15 judges; has jurisdiction over all Portuguese territories, including the overseas provinces; Pres. Dr. JOSÉ OSÓRIO DE ALBUQUERQUE.

Courts of Appeal: there are five courts of appeal, each corresponding to a judicial district, (three in Metropolitan Portugal and two in the overseas provinces), that in Lisbon consists of a president and 20 magistrates; in Oporto, of a president and 14 magistrates; and in Coimbra, of a president and 8 magistrates.

District Courts: There are ordinary and special courts, the latter have exclusive jurisdiction in certain matters (i.e. fiscal, military, labour etc.).

The State in Metropolitan Portugal and the overseas provinces, is represented in the courts by the Public Prosecutor and his regional representatives.

The principle of habeas corpus is recognized, and persons illegally detained may appeal to the Supreme Court.

Judges of the ordinary courts are appointed for life and are irremovable. Conditions of appointment, service, dismissal, pension and transfer are governed by law. They may take no other office of profit under the Government, except service on permanent or temporary commissions.

Public Prosecutor: ANTÓNIO FURTADO DOS SANTOS.

RELIGION

The dominant religion is Roman Catholicism. There is freedom of worship, and some Protestant Churches have been established.

THE UNITED NATIONS

CHAPTER III ORGANS

Article 7

1. There are established as the principal organs of the United Nations; a General Assembly, a Security Council, an Economic and Social Council, a Trusteeship Council, an International Court of Justice, and a Secretariat.

2. Such subsidiary organs as may be found necessary may be established in accordance with the present Charter.

Article 8

The United Nations shall place no restrictions on the eligibility of men and women to participate in any capacity and under conditions of equality in its principal and subsidiary organs.

CHAPTER IV THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY

Composition

Article 9

1. The General Assembly shall consist of all the Members of the United Nations.

2. Each Member shall have not more than five representatives in the General Assembly.

Functions and Powers

Article 10

The General Assembly may discuss any questions or any matters within the scope of the present Charter or relating to the powers and functions of any organs provided for in the present Charter, and, except as provided in Article 12, may make recommendations to the Members of the United Nations or to the Security Council or to both on any such questions or matters.

Article 11

1. The General Assembly may consider the general principles of co-operation in the maintenance of international peace and security, including the principles governing disarmament and the regulation of armaments, and may make recommendations with regard to such principles to the Members or to the Security Council or to both.

2. The General Assembly may discuss any questions relating to the maintenance of international peace and security brought before it by any Member of the United Nations, or by the Security Council, or by a state which is not a Member of the United Nations in accordance with Article 35, paragraph 2, and, except as provided in Article 12, may make recommendations with regard to any such question to the state or states concerned or to the Security Council or to both. Any such question on which action is necessary shall be referred to the Security Council by the General Assembly either before or after discussion.

3. The General Assembly may call the attention of the Security Council to situations which are likely to endanger international peace and security.

4. The powers of the General Assembly set forth in this Article shall not limit the general scope of Article 10.

Article 12

1. While the Security Council is exercising in respect of any dispute or situation the functions assigned to it in the present Charter, the General Assembly shall not make any recommendations with regard to that dispute or situation unless the Security Council so requests.

2. The Secretary-General, with the consent of the Security Council, shall notify the General Assembly at each session of any matters relative to the maintenance of international peace and security which are being dealt with by the Security Council and shall similarly notify the General Assembly, or the Members of the United Nations if the General Assembly is not in session, immediately the Security Council ceases to deal with such matters.

Article 13

1. The General Assembly shall initiate studies and make recommendations for the purpose of:

(a) promoting international co-operation in the political field and encouraging the progressive development of international law and its codification;

(b) promoting international co-operation in the economic, social, cultural, educational, and health fields, and assisting in the realization of human rights and fundamental freedoms for all without distinction as to race, sex, language, or religion.

2. The further responsibilities, functions and powers of the General Assembly with respect to matters mentioned in paragraph 1(b) above are set forth in Chapters IX and X.

Article 14

Subject to the provision of Article 12, the General Assembly may recommend measures for the peaceful adjustment of any situation, regardless of origin, which it deems likely to impair the general welfare or friendly relations among nations, including situations resulting from a violation of the provisions of the present Charter setting forth the Purposes and Principles of the United Nations.

Article 15

1. The General Assembly shall receive and consider annual and special reports from the Security Council; these reports shall include an account of the measures that the Security Council has decided upon or taken to maintain international peace and security.

2. The General Assembly shall receive and consider reports from the other organs of the United Nations.

Article 16

The General Assembly shall perform such functions with respect to the international trusteeship system as are assigned to it under Chapters XII and XIII, including the approval of the trusteeship agreements for areas not designated as strategic.

Article 17

1. The General Assembly shall consider and approve the budget of the Organization.

2. The expenses of the Organization shall be borne by the Members as apportioned by the General Assembly.

3. The General Assembly shall consider and approve any financial and budgetary arrangements with specialized agencies referred to in Article 57 and shall examine the administrative budgets of such specialized agencies with a view to making recommendations to the agencies concerned.

Voting

Article 18

1. Each member of the General Assembly shall have one vote.

2. Decisions of the General Assembly on important questions shall be made by a two-thirds majority of the members present and voting. These questions shall include: recommendations with respect to the maintenance of international peace and security, the election of the non-permanent members of the Security Council, the election of the members of the Economic and Social Council, the election of members of the Trusteeship Council in accordance with paragraph 1(c) of Article 86 the admission of new Members to the United Nations, the suspension of the rights and privileges of membership, the expulsion of Members, questions relating to the operation of the trusteeship system, and budgetary questions.

THE UNITED NATIONS

3 Decisions on other questions, including the determination of additional categories of questions to be decided by a two-thirds majority, shall be made by a majority of the members present and voting

Article 19

A Member of the United Nations which is in arrears in the payment of its financial contributions to the Organization shall have no vote in the General Assembly if the amount of its arrears equals or exceeds the amount of the contributions due from it for the preceding two full years. The General Assembly may, nevertheless, permit such a Member to vote if it is satisfied that the failure to pay is due to conditions beyond the control of the Member

Procedure

Article 20

The General Assembly shall meet in regular annual sessions and in such special sessions as occasion may require. Special sessions shall be convoked by the Secretary-General at the request of the Security Council or of a majority of the Members of the United Nations

Article 21

The General Assembly shall adopt its own rules of procedure. It shall elect its President for each session

Article 22

The General Assembly may establish such subsidiary organs as it deems necessary for the performance of its functions

CHAPTER V

THE SECURITY COUNCIL

Composition

Article 23

States of America shall be permanent members of the Security Council. The General Assembly shall elect six other Members of the United Nations to be non-permanent members of the Security Council, due regard being specially paid, in the first instance to the contribution of Members of the United Nations to the maintenance of international peace and security and to the other purposes of the Organization, and also to equitable geographical distribution

2 The non-permanent members of the Security Council shall be elected for a term of two years. In the first election of the non-permanent members, however, three shall be chosen for a term of one year. A retiring member shall not be eligible for immediate re-election

3 Each member of the Security Council shall have one representative

Functions and Powers

Article 24

1 In order to ensure prompt and effective action by the United Nations, the Security Council shall act on behalf of the United Nations in all matters relating to the maintenance of international peace and security and to the other purposes of the Organization, and shall exercise such powers and perform such functions as are conferred upon it by the Charter of the United Nations and by the General Assembly of the United Nations a l

C

3 The Security Council shall submit annual and, when necessary, special reports to the General Assembly for its consideration

Article 25

The Members of the United Nations agree to accept and carry out the decisions of the Security Council in accordance with the present Charter

Article 26

In order to promote the establishment and maintenance of international peace and security with the least diversion for armaments of the world's human and economic resources, the Security Council shall be responsible for formulating, with the assistance of the Military Staff Committee referred to in Article 47, plans to be submitted to the Members of the United Nations for the establishment of a system for the regulation of armaments,

Voting

Article 27

1 Each member of the Security Council shall have one vote

2 Decisions of the Security Council on procedural matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of seven members

3 Decisions of the Security Council on all other matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of seven members including the concurring votes of the permanent members, provided that, in decisions under Chapter VI, and under paragraph 3 of Article 52, a party to a dispute shall abstain from voting

Procedure

Article 28

1 The Security Council shall be so organized as to be able to function at all times, and shall hold regular meetings at which each of its members may, if it so desires, be represented by a member of the government or by some other specially designated representative

3 The Security Council may hold meetings at such places other than the seat of the Organization as in its judgment will best facilitate its work

Article 29

The Security Council may establish such subsidiary organs as it deems necessary for the performance of its functions

Article 30

The Security Council shall adopt its own rules of procedure, including the method of selecting its President

Article 31

Any Member of the United Nations which is not a member of the Security Council may participate, without vote, in the discussion of any question brought before the Security Council whenever the latter considers that the interests of that Member are specially affected

Article 32

Any Member of the United Nations which is not a member of the Security Council or any state which is not a Member of the United Nations, if it is a party to a dispute under consideration by the Security Council, shall be invited to participate, without vote, in the discussion relating to the dispute. The Security Council shall lay down such conditions as it deems just for the participation of a state which is not a Member of the United Nations.

THE CONSTITUTION

(Adopted in August 1965)

The Socialist Republic of Romania

Article 1 Romania is a socialist republic

The Socialist Republic of Romania is a sovereign, independent and unitary state of the working people of the towns and villages. Its territory is inalienable and indivisible.

Article 2. The whole power in the Socialist Republic of Romania belongs to the people, free and masters of their destiny.

People's power is based on the worker-peasant alliance. In close union, the working class—the leading class of society—the peasantry, the intelligentsia and the other categories of working people, regardless of nationality, build the socialist system, creating the conditions for transition to communism.

Article 3 In the Socialist Republic of Romania, the leading political force of the whole of society is the Romanian Communist Party.

Article 4 The sovereign holder of power, the people exercise this power through the Grand National Assembly and the People's Councils, bodies elected by universal, equal, direct and secret vote.

The Grand National Assembly and the People's Councils are the basis of the whole system of state bodies.

The Grand National Assembly is the supreme body of state power, under whose conduct and control all the other state bodies carry on their activities.

Article 5 The national economy of Romania is a socialist economy, based on the socialist ownership of the means of production.

In the Socialist Republic of Romania, man's exploitation by man has been abolished for ever and the socialist principle of distribution according to the quantity and quality of work is implemented.

Work is a duty of honour for each citizen of the country.

Article 6 Socialist ownership of the means of production is either state property—goods belonging to the whole people, or co-operative property—goods belonging to each co-operative organization.

Article 7 The wealth of the subsoil, whatever its nature, the mines, the state land, the forests, waters, sources of natural power, the factories and mills, the banks, the state farms, the machine-and-tractor stations, the means of communication, the state means of transport and telecommunication, the state buildings and dwellings, the material basis of state socio-cultural institutions belong to the whole people and are state property.

Article 8 Foreign trade is a state monopoly.

Article 9 The land of the agricultural production co-operatives, the animals, implements, installations and buildings belonging to them are co-operative property.

The plot of land which according to the rules of the agricultural production co-operatives is being used by the family household of the co-operative farmers, is co-operative property.

The dwelling and the ancillary farm buildings, the land on which they stand and, according to the rules of the agricultural production co-operatives, the productive livestock and small agricultural dead stock are the personal property of the co-operative farmers.

The tools, machines, installations and constructions of the handicraft co-operatives and of the consumer co-operatives are co-operative property.

Article 10 The agricultural production co-operatives, a socialist form of agricultural organization, secure the conditions for the intensive cultivation of the land and the application of advanced science and contribute, by increasing output, to the development of the national economy, to the continuous raising of the living standard of the peasantry and of the whole people.

The state gives support to the agricultural production co-operatives and protects their property. The state also gives support to the other co-operative organizations and protects their property.

Article 11. In the conditions of co-operativized agriculture, the state guarantees to the peasants who cannot associate themselves in agricultural production co-operatives, ownership of the land which they themselves and their families are working, of the implements they use with this purpose, as well as ownership of the animals they use for work and for production.

The handicraftsmen are also guaranteed ownership of their own workshops.

Article 12 Land and buildings can be expropriated only for work of public interest and on payment of an equitable compensation.

Article 13 In the Socialist Republic of Romania the whole state activity has as its purpose the development of the socialist system and the prosperity of the nation, the continuous growth of the people's living standard and cultural level, the ensuring of the freedom and dignity of man, the many-sided affirmation of the human person.

For this purpose, the Romanian socialist state organizes, plans and conducts the national economy, defends the socialist property, guarantees the full exercise of citizen rights, assures socialist legality and defends the rule of law, develops education at all levels, ensures the conditions for the development of science, the arts and culture, carries out public health protection, ensures defence of the country and organizes its armed forces, organizes relations with other states.

Article 14 The Socialist Republic of Romania maintains and develops relations of friendship and fraternal collaboration with the socialist countries in the spirit of socialist internationalism, promotes relations of collaboration with countries having other socio-political systems, activates in international organizations with a view to ensuring peace and understanding among the peoples.

The foreign relations of the Socialist Republic of Romania are based on the principles of observance of sovereignty and national independence, equal rights and mutual advantage, non-interference in internal affairs.

Article 15 The territory of the Socialist Republic of Romania is organized in territorial-administrative units: district, town and village.

The capital of the Socialist Republic of Romania is the municipality of Bucharest, which is organized in town districts.

The most important towns can be organized as municipalities.

ROMANIA—(THE CONSTITUTION)

Article 16. Romanian citizenship is acquired and lost according to the law.

The Fundamental Rights and Duties of the Citizens

Article 17. The citizens of the Socialist Republic of Romania, irrespective of nationality, race, sex or religion, have equal rights in all fields of economic, political, juridical, social and cultural life.

The state guarantees the equal rights of the citizens. No restriction of these rights and no difference in their exercise on the grounds of nationality, race, sex or religion are permitted.

Any expression aiming to establish such restrictions, nationalist-chauvinist propaganda, the fanning of racial or national hatred are punished by the law.

Article 18. In the Socialist Republic of Romania, the citizens have the right to work. Each citizen is given the possibility to carry on, according to his training, an activity in the economic, administrative, social or cultural field and is remunerated according to its quantity and quality. For equal work there is equal pay.

The law establishes the measures for the protection and safety of labour as well as special measures for the protection of the work of women and young people.

Article 19. The citizens of the Socialist Republic of Romania have the right to leisure.

The right to leisure is guaranteed to those who work by the establishment of the maximum duration of the working day at eight hours, of weekly rest and of annual paid holidays.

In the sectors of arduous and very arduous work, the working day is reduced to less than eight hours, without any reduction in pay.

Article 20. The citizens of the Socialist Republic of Romania have the right to material security in case of old age, sickness or incapacity to work.

The right to material security is implemented for factory and office workers through pensions and sickness benefits paid by the state social insurance system, and for the members of the co-operative organizations or of other public organizations through the forms of insurance organized by these organizations. The state ensures medical assistance through its health units.

Paid maternity leave is guaranteed.

Article 21. The citizens of the Socialist Republic of Romania have the right to education.

The right to education is ensured by compulsory general education, by the fact that education at all levels is free and by the system of state scholarships.

Education in the Socialist Republic of Romania is state education.

Article 22. In the Socialist Republic of Romania the co-inhabiting nationalities are ensured the free utilization of their native language as well as books, papers, magazines, theatres and education at all levels in their own language. In districts also inhabited by a population of non-Romanian nationality, all the bodies and institutions use the language of the respective nationality in speech and in writing and appoint officials from its ranks or from the ranks of other citizens who know the language and way of life of the local population.

Article 23. In the Socialist Republic of Romania women have equal rights with men.

The state protects marriage and the family and defends the interests of mother and child.

Article 24. The Socialist Republic of Romania ensures to young people the conditions required for the development of their physical and intellectual aptitudes.

Article 25. The citizens of the Socialist Republic of Romania have the right to elect and to be elected to the Grand National Assembly and the People's Councils.

The vote is universal, equal, direct and secret. All citizens who have reached the age of 18 years have the right to vote.

Citizens with the right to vote who have reached the age of 23 years can be elected as deputies to the Grand National Assembly and to the People's Councils.

The right to nominate candidates is ensured to all organizations of the working people: the organizations of the Romanian Communist Party, the trade unions, the co-operatives, the youth and women's organizations, the cultural associations and other mass and public organizations.

The electors have the right to recall their deputy at any time, according to the same procedure under which he has been nominated and elected.

Mentally alienated and mentally defective people have no right to elect and to be elected, also persons deprived of these rights during the period laid down by a court of law in its sentence.

Article 26. The most advanced and conscious citizens from the ranks of the workers, peasants, intellectuals and other categories of working people unite in the Romanian Communist Party, the highest form of organization of the working class, its vanguard detachment.

The Romanian Communist Party expresses and loyally serves the aspirations and vital interests of the people, implements the role of leader in all the fields of socialist construction, and directs the activity of the mass and public organizations and of the state bodies.

Article 27. The citizens of the Socialist Republic of Romania have the right to associate themselves in trade union, co-operative, youth, women's and socio-cultural organizations, in creative unions, scientific, technical, sports associations and other public organizations.

The state gives support to the activity of the mass and public organizations, creates conditions for the development of the material basis of these organizations and defends their property.

The mass and public organizations ensure the large participation of the mass of the people in the political, economic, social and cultural life of the Socialist Republic of Romania and in the exercise of public control—an expression of the democratic spirit of the socialist system. Through the mass and public organizations the Romanian Communist Party achieves an organized link with the working class, the peasantry, the intelligentsia and the other categories of working people, mobilizes them in the struggle for the completion of the building of socialism.

Article 28. The citizens of the Socialist Republic of Romania are guaranteed freedom of speech, of the Press, of reunion, of meeting and demonstration.

Article 29. The freedom of speech, of the Press, reunion, meeting and demonstration cannot be used for aims hostile to the socialist system and to the interests of the working people.

Any association of a fascist or anti-democratic character is prohibited. Participation in such associations and propaganda of a fascist or anti-democratic character are punished by the law.

Article 30. Freedom of conscience is guaranteed to all the citizens of the Socialist Republic of Romania.

Anybody is free to share or not to share a religious belief. The freedom of exercising a religious cult is guaranteed. The religious cults organize and function freely. The way of organization and functioning of the religious cults is regulated by law.

The school is separated from the Church. No religious confession, congregation or community can open or maintain any other teaching establishments than special schools for the training of servants of the Church.

ROMANIA—(THE CONSTITUTION)

Article 31. The citizens of the Socialist Republic of Romania are guaranteed inviolability of their person.

No person can be detained or arrested if there are no well-grounded proofs or indications that he has committed a deed listed and punished by the law. The organs of inquiry can order the detention of a person for a maximum of 24 hours. No one can be arrested except on the basis of an order of arrest issued by a court or the Procurator. The right to defence is guaranteed throughout the lawsuit.

Article 32. The domicile is inviolable. No one can enter the dwelling of a person without the latter's consent, except in the cases and conditions specially laid down by the law.

Article 33. The secret of correspondence and of telephone conversations is guaranteed.

Article 34. The right to petition is guaranteed. The state bodies have the obligation to resolve the petitions of the citizens concerning personal or public rights and interests.

Article 35. Those harmed in a right of theirs by an illegal act of a state body can ask the competent bodies, in the conditions provided by the law, to annul the act and repair the damage.

Article 36. The right to personal property is protected by the law.

Objects of the right to personal property can be income and savings derived from work, the dwelling house, the household around it and the land on which they stand, as well as the goods of personal use and comfort.

Article 37. The right to inheritance is protected by the law.

Article 38. The Socialist Republic of Romania grants the right of refuge to foreign citizens persecuted for their activity in defence of the interests of the working people, for their participation in the fight for national liberation or in defence of peace.

Article 39. Every citizen of the Socialist Republic of Romania is bound to respect the Constitution and the laws, to defend socialist property, to contribute to the strengthening and development of the socialist system.

Article 40. Military service in the ranks of the Armed Forces of the Socialist Republic of Romania is compulsory and is a duty of honour of the citizens of the Socialist Republic of Romania.

Article 41. To defend the homeland is the sacred duty of each citizen of the Socialist Republic of Romania. Violation of the military oath, treason to the homeland, desertion to the enemy, prejudice to the defensive capacity of the state are the greatest crimes against the people and are punished by the law with the utmost severity.

The Supreme Bodies of State Power

THE GRAND NATIONAL ASSEMBLY

Article 42. The Grand National Assembly, the supreme body of state power, is the sole legislative body of the Socialist Republic of Romania.

Article 43. The Grand National Assembly has the following main attributions:

- (1) it adopts and amends the Constitution of the Socialist Republic of Romania;
- (2) it regulates the electoral system;
- (3) it adopts the State Plan of the National Economy, the State Budget and the general final account of the budgetary exercise;

ROMANIA—(THE CONSTITUTION)

Article 51. The Chairman of the Grand National Assembly conducts the proceedings of the sessions of the Grand National Assembly.

The Chairman of the Grand National Assembly can designate any one of the four Vice-Chairmen to fulfil some of his attributions.

Article 52. The Grand National Assembly elects standing commissions from among the deputies.

The standing commissions examine and debate on the draft of laws, draft of decrees, draft of decisions, or other documents which are to be adopted, as well as any other matters, sent to them for study by the Grand National Assembly or the State Council.

In keeping with their competence, the standing commissions also can hear reports—periodically or according to problems—presented by the leaders of any body of the state administration, of the Procurator's Office and of the Supreme Court, on the activities of these bodies, as well as of the chairman of the Executive Committees of the People's Councils, on the activities of these councils, and examine the way the mentioned bodies carry out the policy of the Romanian Communist Party and ensure the application of laws.

The standing commissions draw up reports, opinions, or proposals regarding all the problems mentioned in the paragraphs 2 and 3, which they submit to the Grand National Assembly or to the State Council.

The Grand National Assembly can elect temporary commissions for any problem or field of activity, establishing the authority and mode of activity for each of these commissions.

All the state bodies and officials are obliged to put the requested information and documents at the disposal of the commissions of the Grand National Assembly.

Article 53. In exercising the control of the constitutionality of the laws, the Grand National Assembly elects a Constitutional Commission for the duration of the legislature.

Experts who are not deputies can be elected to the Constitutional Commission; their number must not exceed one-third of the total membership of the Commission.

The Commission presents to the Grand National Assembly reports and opinions at its own initiative, or at the intimation of the bodies provided for by the rules of the Grand National Assembly.

At the request of the Bureau of the Grand National Assembly, the Constitutional Commission draws up and presents reports on the draft of laws as well. At the request of the State Council it also draws up and presents to the latter reports on the draft of decrees containing rules with power of law.

Article 54. The Grand National Assembly works in sessions.

Ordinary sessions of the Grand National Assembly are convened twice a year.

The Grand National Assembly is convened, whenever necessary, in special sessions, at the initiative of the State Council or of at least one-third of the total number of deputies.

Article 55. The Grand National Assembly works only if at least one half plus one of the total number of deputies are present.

Article 56. The Grand National Assembly adopts laws and decisions.

The laws and decisions are adopted by a majority vote of the deputies to the Grand National Assembly.

The Constitution is adopted and amended by the vote of at least two-thirds of the total number of deputies to the Grand National Assembly.

The laws and decisions of the Grand National Assembly are signed by the Chairman or Vice-Chairman of the Grand National Assembly who conducted the meeting.

Article 57. After their adoption by the Grand National Assembly, the laws are published in the Official Bulletin of the Socialist Republic of Romania within a maximum of ten days, signed by the President of the State Council.

Article 58. Every deputy to the Grand National Assembly has the right to put questions and address interpellations to the Council of Ministers or to any of its members.

Within the framework of the control exercised by the Grand National Assembly, a deputy can put questions and address interpellations to the president of the Supreme Court and to the Procurator General.

The person to whom a question or interpellation has been put is obliged to reply orally or in writing in a maximum of three days, and in any case during the same session.

Article 59. In preparation of the discussions of the Grand National Assembly or of interpellations the deputy has the right to ask for the necessary information from any state body applying for this purpose to the Bureau of the Grand National Assembly.

Article 60. Every deputy is obliged to periodically report to the electorate on his activity and on that of the Grand National Assembly.

Article 61. No deputy to the Grand National Assembly can be detained, arrested or sent for penal trial without the previous consent of the Grand National Assembly during session and of the State Council between sessions.

Only in case of flagrant infraction can a deputy be detained without this consent.

THE STATE COUNCIL

Article 62. The State Council of the Socialist Republic of Romania is the supreme body of state power with a permanent activity; it is subordinated to the Grand National Assembly.

Article 63. The State Council permanently exercises the following main attributions:

(1) it establishes the date of elections to the Grand National Assembly and People's Councils;

(2) it appoints and recalls the heads of central bodies of state administration who are not on the Council of Ministers;

(3) it establishes the military ranks; it grants the ranks of general, admiral and marshal;

(4) it institutes and confers decorations and honorary titles; it authorizes the wearing of decorations conferred by other states;

(5) it grants pardon;

(6) it grants citizenship, approves renunciation of citizenship and withdraws the Romanian citizenship;

(7) it grants the right of refuge;

(8) it ratifies and denounces international treaties with the exception of those whose ratification and denouncement is within the competence of the Grand National Assembly;

(9) it establishes the ranks of diplomatic missions, appoints and recalls diplomatic representatives of the Socialist Republic of Romania;

(10) it receives letters of credence and of recall of diplomatic representatives of other states;

(11) in international relations the State Council, through its President, represents the Socialist Republic of Romania.

Article 64. The State Council exercises, in the interval between the sessions of the Grand National Assembly, the following main attributions:

(1) it convenes the sessions of the Grand National Assembly;

ROMANIA

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

The Socialist Republic of Romania lies in south-east Europe between 44° and 48° north latitude and 20° and 30° east longitude. It is bounded to the north and north-east by the U.S.S.R., to the north-west by Hungary, to the south-west by Yugoslavia and to the south by Bulgaria. The south-east coast is washed by the Black Sea. It has a climate of hot summers and cold winters with a moderate rainfall. The average summer temperature is 70°F (21°C) and the winter average 28°F (-2°C). The language is Romanian. Most Romanians are members of the Romanian Orthodox Church. The flag consists of three vertical stripes, blue, yellow and red, the middle stripe bearing the national emblem. The capital is Bucharest.

Recent History

Following the armed insurrection of August 1944, Romania allied herself with the U.S.S.R. and the Western Allies against Germany. After King Michael's abdication in 1947, Romania became a People's Democracy and, under the constitution of 1965, became a Socialist Republic. Romania is a member of the East European Mutual Assistance Treaty (The Warsaw Pact), the Council for Mutual Economic Assistance (CMEA) and the United Nations Organization (U.N.O). Romania established diplomatic relations with the German Federal Republic in January 1967.

Government

The new Constitution, adopted in August 1965, vests supreme executive, legislative and judicial authority in the Grand National Assembly, elected for a four-year period, and consisting of 465 members. The State Council elected by the Grand National Assembly from among its members, is the permanent executive body and is subordinated to the Assembly. State administration is the responsibility of the Council of Ministers.

Defence

Military service is compulsory and lasts for one year in the Army, two years in the Navy and two years in the Air Force. Total regular forces are estimated at 193,000, comprising Army 170,000, Navy 8,000 and Air Force 15,000. Defence estimates for 1969 were 5,395 million lei.

Economic Affairs

In the last twenty years radical changes have been made in the Romanian economy. Formerly based on agriculture, forestry and oil, the economy now draws most of its wealth from industry. The whole of industry, mines, banks, telecommunications, transport, external trade are nationalized enterprises regulated by a Five-Year Plan (1966-70), which envisages an industrial development rate of 10.5 per cent annually. According to provisional estimates for 1968, the majority of the plan indices have been over-fulfilled and national income has grown some 7 per cent. Industrial output went up by some 11.6 per cent and has exceeded by 4,600 million lei the planned value.

Apart from traditional products—oil, timber, wine and fruit—Romania is exporting an ever-increasing quantity of industrial products. Agriculture still plays an important part in the Romanian economy, between 1950 and 1968 more than 84,000 million lei were invested in agriculture, of which 27,000 million lei were invested during the first three years of the current Five Year Plan. In 1969 there was an estimated record harvest of 795,000 tons of sunflower seed, which has been used for home requirements and export to the German Federal Republic, Italy, Japan and Morocco, among other countries. Owing to the development of plantations and vineyards, Romania is now the sixth largest wine-producing country in the world.

Although most trade is done with the U.S.S.R. and Eastern Europe, Romania has also developed important trade relations with Western countries, having trade agreements with France (1962), U.K. (1963) (1968-73), U.S.A. (1964), German Federal Republic (1965), Italy, Austria and other countries. In November 1968 Romania made formal application for full membership of GATT.

Transport and Communications

There are 11,016 kilometres of State railways and 77,019 kilometres of national roads of which 10,021 kilometres have been modernized. Inland air transport is organized by TAROM (Romanian Air Transport) which ensures daily flights between the capital and chief towns. TAROM and other European airlines cater for international flights. Navigation on the Danube is open to shipping of all nations. The joint Romanian-Yugoslav Iron Gates power and navigation system on the Danube is under construction. The chief ports, Constantza, Galati, Braila, Giurgiu have been modernized.

Social Welfare

Romania has a comprehensive state insurance scheme premiums being paid by enterprises and institutions employing the wage earners. In 1968 over 23.3 per cent of the state budget was assigned to social and cultural expenditure.

Education

The present system of education in Romania is comparatively new and more changes in this system are likely in the future. Education is free and compulsory for eight years between the ages of 7 and 15 years. Before this age children may attend crèches (crese), and kindergartens (grădinițe de copii). Between the ages of 7 and 15 years children attend the general educational school (școala de bază de cultură generală de opt ani). Compulsory education ends with the eight-year school, but the majority of pupils continue with their studies in secondary schools. Other than special schools these are of two types, the general secondary school (școala medie de cultură generală), for which a candidate must take an entrance examination and which will provide him with a specialized education suitable for entering college or university. Vocational secondary schools (școli profesionale de ucenici) train pupils for a particular industry or for agriculture, etc. A general syllabus is not provided in this type of school. In 1968-69 there were more than 3.7 million pupils enrolled in 16,500

ROMANIA—(THE CONSTITUTION)

(2) it establishes, without being able to change the Constitution, norms with the power of law. The norms with the power of law are tabled, at the first session, for discussion to the Grand National Assembly according to the procedure for the adoption of laws. The State Plan of the National Economy, the State Budget as well as the general final account of the budgetary exercise can be adopted by the State Council if the Grand National Assembly cannot meet due to exceptional circumstances,

ROMANIA—(THE CONSTITUTION)

Article 76. The ministries and the other central bodies of state administration implement the state policy in the branches or fields of activity for which they have been set up.

They manage, guide and control the enterprises, economic organizations and state institutions subordinated to them.

Article 77. The ministers and the heads of the other central bodies of state administration issue, on the basis and in view of applying the laws and the decisions of the Council of Ministers, instructions and orders as well as other acts provided for by law; their acts of a normative character are published in the Official Bulletin of the Socialist Republic of Romania.

Article 78. The ministers and the other heads of central bodies of state administration are responsible to the Council of Ministers for the activity of the body which they lead.

The Local Bodies of State Power and the Local Bodies of State Administration

Article 79. The People's Councils are the local bodies of state power in the territorial-administrative districts to which they have been elected.

The People's Councils conduct the local activity, securing the economic, socio-cultural and administrative development of the territorial-administrative units in which they have been elected, the defence of socialist property, the maintaining of public order, socialist legality and the protection of citizen rights.

The People's Councils organize the participation of the citizens in the solution of state and public affairs on the local level.

Article 80. The People's Council exercises the following main attributions:

- (1) it adopts the local budget and economic plan, approves the final account of the budgetary exercise;
- (2) it elects and recalls its Executive Committee;
- (3) it establishes enterprises, economic organizations and state institutions of local interest;
- (4) it conducts, directs and controls the activity of its Executive Committee, of the local specialized bodies of the state administration, of the subordinated economic organizations, enterprises and institutions;
- (5) it controls the acts of hierarchically inferior People's Councils.
- (6) it elects and recalls, according to the law, the judges, the people's jurors and the Chief Procurator of the district, or of the municipality of Bucharest.

Article 81. The People's Councils are formed of deputies elected by the constituencies, one deputy being elected for each constituency.

The constituencies formed for the election of the deputies to a People's Council have the same number of inhabitants.

The mandate of the People's Council is of four years, reckoned from the date of the end of the mandate of the preceding People's Council.

The new elections are held on one of the non-working days during the last month of the mandate of the People's Council.

Article 82. The People's Councils elect from among the deputies standing commissions which help them in the fulfilment of their tasks.

Article 83. The People's Councils work in sessions; the convocation of sessions is made by the Executive Committee of the People's Council.

Special sessions are called whenever necessary at the initiative of the Executive Committee or at the demand of at least one-third of the total number of deputies.

Article 84. The People's Councils work in the presence of at least one half plus one member of the total number of deputies.

Article 85. Each deputy is obliged to periodically present to the electorate reports on his activity and on that of the People's Council to which he has been elected.

Article 86. The People's Councils adopt decisions. A decision is adopted if it receives the vote of the majority of the People's Council deputies.

Decisions of a normative character are communicated to the citizens in the forms provided for by the law.

Article 87. The Executive Committee of the People's Council is the local body of state administration with general competence in the territorial-administrative unit in which the People's Council has been elected.

Article 88. The Executive Committee of the People's Council has the following principal attributions:

- (1) it carries out the laws, decrees and decisions of the Council of Ministers and the other acts of the superior bodies;
- (2) it applies the decisions of the People's Council which has elected it;
- (3) it works out the drafts of the local budget and economic plan;
- (4) it carries out the local budget and economic plan, elaborates the report concerning the implementation of the local economic plan, as well as the final account of the budgetary exercise;
- (5) it conducts, directs and controls the activity of the local specialized sections of state administration;
- (6) it conducts, directs and controls the activity of the subordinate economic organizations, enterprises and institutions.
- (7) it conducts, directs and controls the activity of the Executive Committee of the People's Councils which are hierarchically inferior to the People's Council which has elected it.

In the interval between the sessions of the People's Council, the Executive Committee fulfils also its attributions, with the exceptions of those stipulated in Article 80, paragraphs 1, 2, 4, 5 and 6; it submits the decisions adopted for ratification to the People's Council in its first session.

Article 89. The Executive Committee is elected by the People's Council from among its deputies at the first session after the elections for the duration of the mandate of the People's Council.

After the expiry of the mandate of the People's Council the Executive Committee continues to function up to the election of the new Executive Committee.

Article 90. The Executive Committee of the People's Council is formed of a Chairman, Vice-Chairmen, of whom one can be first Vice-Chairman, and a number of members established by the law.

Article 91. In the exercise of its attributions, the Executive Committee of the People's Council issues decisions on the basis of and with a view to the implementation of the law.

Decisions of a normative character are communicated to the citizens in the forms provided for by the law.

Article 92. The Executive Committee carries on its activity according to the principle of collective leadership.

The Executive Committee as a whole and each of its members are responsible to the People's Council which has elected them, as well as to the Executive Committee of the hierarchically superior People's Council, and to the Council of Ministers.

Each member of the Executive Committee is responsible both for his own activity and for the whole activity of the body he belongs to.

ROMANIA—(THE CONSTITUTION)

Article 93 The People's Council organizes, in accordance with the law, attached to their Executive Committees, local specialized bodies of state administration. The local specialized bodies of the state administration are subordinate to the People's Council and the Executive Committee, they are also subordinate to the hierarchically superior local and central bodies of the state administration

The Courts

Article 94 In the Socialist Republic of Romania the law is administered by the Supreme Court, district courts, county courts as well as military courts established according to the law

Article 95 By their judiciary activity, the courts defend the socialist system and the rights of persons, educating the citizens in the spirit of respect for the law

In applying penal sanctions, the courts aim to reform and re-educate infractors and to prevent the commission of new infractions

Article 96 The courts try civil, penal and any other cases in their competence

In the cases provided for by the law, the courts exercise control over the decisions of administrative or public bodies having a jurisdictional activity

The courts try the demands of those harmed in their rights by administrative acts and can, in the conditions provided for by the law, also give their views on the legality of these acts.

Article 97 The Supreme Court exercises general control over the judicial activity of all the courts. The way of exercising this control is established by law

With a view to the uniform application of the laws in judicial activity, the Supreme Court, in its plenum, issues decisions of direction.

Article 98 The Supreme Court is elected by the Grand National Assembly for the duration of the legislature in its first session.

The Supreme Court functions up to the election of the new Supreme Court in the following legislature.

Article 99 The Supreme Court is responsible for its activity to the Grand National Assembly, and between sessions to the State Council Article 100 The organization of the courts, their competence and judicial procedure are established by law.

Cases in the first instance at the country courts, the district courts and the military courts are tried with the participation of people's jurors, unless otherwise provided for by law

Article 101 Judges and people's jurors are elected in accordance with the procedure established by law

Article 102 In the Socialist Republic of Romania judicial procedure is in the Romanian language and, in the regions and districts inhabited by a population of another nationality than Romanian, the use of the mother tongue of that population is assured.

Article 103 Trials are held in public sessions, unless otherwise provided for by law

Article 104 In their judicial activity the judges and the people's jurors are independent and only subject to the law

The Organs of the Procurator's Office

Article 105 The Procurator's Office of the Socialist Republic of Romania exercises the supervision of the the conditions provided for by law

Article 106 The Procurator's Office is conducted by the Procurator General. The organs of the Procurator's Office are the Procurator General's Office, the Procurator's district and local offices and the Procurator's military office

The organs of the Procurator's Office are hierarchically subordinated

Article 107 The Procurator General is elected by the Grand National Assembly for the duration of the legislature in its first session and functions up to the election of the new Procurator General in the first session of the following legislature

The procurators are appointed according to the law, with the exception of those specified in Article 80, paragraph 6

Article 108 The Procurator General is responsible to the Grand National Assembly for the activity of the Procurator's Office, and between sessions to the State Council

The Insignia of the Socialist Republic of Romania

Article 109 The emblem of the Socialist Republic of Romania represents wooded mountains over which the sun is rising. In the left part of the emblem there is an oil derrick. The emblem is surrounded by a wreath of wheat ears. The emblem is surmounted by a five-pointed star. At the base of the emblem the sheaves are bound with a tricolour ribbon bearing the words "Republica Socialistă România"

Article 110 The State Seal bears the country's emblem, around which are the words "REPUBLICA SOCIALISTĂ ROMÂNIA"

Article 111 The flag of the Socialist Republic of Romania bears the colours red, yellow and blue, placed vertically, with the blue stripe next to the flagstaff. The emblem of the Socialist Republic of Romania is placed in the centre

Article 112 The Anthem of the Socialist Republic of Romania is approved by the Grand National Assembly

Final Provisions

Article 113 The present Constitution comes into force on the date of its adoption

Article 114 The Constitution of September 24, 1952 and any provisions of laws, decrees and other normative acts that are contrary to the provisions of the present Constitution are abrogated on the same date

THE UNITED NATIONS

CHAPTER VI PACIFIC SETTLEMENT OF DISPUTES

Article 33

1. The parties to any dispute, the continuance of which is likely to endanger the maintenance of international peace and security, shall, first of all, seek a solution by negotiation, enquiry, mediation, conciliation, arbitration, judicial settlement, resort to regional agencies or arrangements, or other peaceful means of their own choice.

2. The Security Council shall, when it deems necessary, call upon the parties to settle their disputes by such means.

Article 34

The Security Council may investigate any dispute, or any situation which might lead to international friction or give rise to a dispute, in order to determine whether the continuance of the dispute or situation is likely to endanger the maintenance of international peace and security.

Article 35

1. Any Member of the United Nations may bring any dispute, or any situation of the nature referred to in Article 34, to the attention of the Security Council or of the General Assembly.

2. A state which is not a Member of the United Nations may bring to the attention of the Security Council or of the General Assembly any dispute to which it is a party if it accepts in advance, for the purposes of the dispute, the obligations of pacific settlement provided in the present Charter.

3. The proceedings of the General Assembly in respect of matters brought to its attention under this Article will be subject to the provisions of Articles 11 and 12.

Article 36

1. The Security Council may, at any stage of a dispute of the nature referred to in Article 33 or of a situation of like nature, recommend appropriate procedures or methods of adjustment.

2. The Security Council should take into consideration any procedures for the settlement of the dispute which have already been adopted by the parties.

3. In making recommendations under this Article the Security Council should also take into consideration that legal disputes should as a general rule be referred by the parties to the International Court of Justice in accordance with the provisions of the Statute of the Court.

Article 37

1. Should the parties to a dispute of the nature referred to in Article 33 fail to settle it by the means indicated in that Article, they shall refer it to the Security Council.

2. If the Security Council deems that the continuance of the dispute is in fact likely to endanger the maintenance of international peace and security, it shall decide whether to take action under Article 36 or to recommend such terms of settlement as it may consider appropriate.

Article 38

Without prejudice to the provisions of Articles 33 to 37, the Security Council may, if all the parties to any dispute so request, make recommendations to the parties with a view to a pacific settlement of the dispute.

CHAPTER VII ACTION WITH RESPECT TO THREATS TO THE PEACE, BREACHES OF THE PEACE, AND ACTS OF AGGRESSION

Article 39

The Security Council shall determine the existence of any threat to the peace, breach of the peace, or act of aggression and shall make recommendations, or decide what measures shall be taken in accordance with Articles 41 and 42, to maintain or restore international peace and security.

Article 40

In order to prevent an aggravation of the situation, the Security Council may, before making the recommendations or deciding upon the measures provided for in Article 39, call upon the parties concerned to comply with such provisional measures as it deems necessary or desirable. Such provisional measures shall be without prejudice to the rights, claims, or position of the parties concerned. The Security Council shall duly take account of failure to comply with such provisional measures.

Article 41

The Security Council may decide what measures not involving the use of armed force are to be employed to give effect to its decisions, and it may call upon the Members of the United Nations to apply such measures. These may include complete or partial interruption of economic relations and of rail, sea, air, postal, telegraphic, radio, and other means of communication, and the severance of diplomatic relations.

Article 42

Should the Security Council consider that measures provided for in Article 41 would be inadequate or have proved to be inadequate, it may take such action by air, sea, or land forces as may be necessary to maintain or restore international peace and security. Such action may include demonstrations, blockade, and other operations by air, sea, or land forces of Members of the United Nations.

Article 43

1. All Members of the United Nations, in order to contribute to the maintenance of international peace and security, undertake to make available to the Security Council, on its call and in accordance with a special agreement or agreements, armed forces, assistance, and facilities, including rights of passage, necessary for the purpose of maintaining international peace and security.

2. Such agreement or agreements shall govern the numbers and types of forces, their degree of readiness and general location, and the nature of the facilities and assistance to be provided.

3. The agreement or agreements shall be negotiated as soon as possible on the initiative of the Security Council. They shall be concluded between the Security Council and Members or between the Security Council and groups of Members and shall be subject to ratification by the signatory states in accordance with their respective constitutional processes.

Article 44

When the Security Council has decided to use force it shall, before calling upon a Member not represented on it to provide armed forces in fulfilment of the obligations assumed under Article 43, invite that Member, if the Member so desires, to participate in the decisions of the Security Council concerning the employment of contingents of that Member's armed forces.

Article 45

In order to enable the United Nations to take urgent military measures, Members shall hold immediately available national air-force contingents for combined international enforcement action. The strength and degree of readiness of these contingents and plans for their combined action shall be determined, within the limits laid down in the special agreement and agreements referred to in Article 43, by the Security Council with the assistance of the Military Staff Committee.

THE UNITED NATIONS

Article 46

Plans for the application of armed force shall be made by the Security Council with the assistance of the Military Staff Committee.

Article 47

1. Chiefs of Staff of the permanent members of the Security Council or their representatives. Any Member of the United Nations not permanently represented on the Committee shall be invited by the Committee to be associated with it when the efficient discharge of the Committee's responsibilities requires the participation of that Member in its work.

2. The Military Staff Committee shall be responsible under the Security Council for the strategic direction of any armed forces placed at the disposal of the Security Council. Questions relating to the command of such forces shall be worked out subsequently.

3. The Military Staff Committee, with the authorization of the Security Council and after consultation with appropriate regional agencies, may establish regional sub-committees.

Article 48

1. The action required to carry out the decisions of the Security Council for the maintenance of international peace and security shall be taken by all the Members of the United Nations or by some of them, as the Security Council may determine.

2. Such decisions shall be carried out by the Members of the United Nations directly and through their action in the appropriate international agencies of which they are members.

Article 49

The Members of the United Nations shall join in affording mutual assistance in carrying out the measures decided upon by the Security Council.

Article 50

If preventive or enforcement measures against any state are taken by the Security Council, any other state, whether a Member of the United Nations or not, which finds itself confronted with special economic problems arising from the carrying out of those measures shall have the right to consult the Security Council with regard to a solution of those problems.

Article 51

1. Nothing in the present Charter precludes the existence of regional arrangements or agencies for dealing with such matters relating to the maintenance of international peace and security as may require their action.

CHAPTER VIII

REGIONAL ARRANGEMENTS

Article 52

1. Nothing in the present Charter precludes the existence of regional arrangements or agencies for dealing with such matters relating to the maintenance of international peace and security as may require their action.

and security as are appropriate for regional action, provided that such arrangements or agencies and their activities are consistent with the Purposes and Principles of the United Nations.

2. The Members of the United Nations entering into such arrangements or constituting such agencies shall make every effort to achieve pacific settlement of local disputes through such regional agencies before referring them to the Security Council.

3. The Security Council shall encourage the development of pacific settlement of local disputes through such regional arrangements or by such regional agencies either on the initiative of the states concerned or by reference from the Security Council.

4. This Article in no way impairs the application of Articles 34 and 35.

Article 53

1. The Security Council shall, where appropriate, utilize such regional arrangements or agencies for enforcement action under its authority. But no enforcement action shall be taken under regional arrangements or by regional agencies without the authorization of the Security Council, with the exception of measures against any enemy state, as defined in paragraph 2 of this Article, provided for pursuant to Article 107 or in regional arrangements directed against renewal of aggressive policy on the part of any such state, until such time as the Organization may, on request of the Governments concerned, be charged with the responsibility for preventing further aggression by such a state.

2. The term enemy state as used in paragraph 1 of this Article applies to any state which during the Second World War has been an enemy of any signatory of the present Charter.

Article 54

The Security Council shall at all times be kept fully informed of activities undertaken or in contemplation under regional arrangements or by regional agencies for the maintenance of international peace and security.

CHAPTER IX

INTERNATIONAL ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL CO-OPERATION

Article 55

With a view to the creation of conditions of stability and well-being which are necessary for peaceful and friendly relations among nations based on respect for the principle of equal rights and self-determination of peoples, the United Nations shall promote:

- higher standards of living, full employment, and conditions of economic and social progress and development;
- solutions of international economic, social, health, and related problems; and international cultural and educational co-operation; and
- universal respect for, and observance of, human rights and fundamental freedoms for all without distinction as to race, sex, language, or religion.

Article 56

All Members pledge themselves to take joint and separate action in co-operation with the Organization for the achievement of the purposes set forth in Article 55.

Article 57

1. The various specialized agencies, established by intergovernmental agreement and having wide international responsibilities, as defined in their basic instruments, in economic, social, cultural, educational, health,

GRAND NATIONAL ASSEMBLY

Grand National Assembly: elected for a four-year term and consisting of 465 deputies. Last General Election March 2nd, 1969.

Chairman of the Bureau of the Grand National Assembly: ȘTEFAN VOITEC.

Vice-Chairmen: ILIE MURGULESCU, GHEORGHE NECULA, GYÖRGY KOVÁCS, MARIA GROZA.

POLITICAL PARTY

Romanian Communist Party: created 1921; merged in 1948 with the Socialist-Democratic Party to form the Romanian Workers' Party; name changed to present title in July 1965; supreme body is the Party Congress which elects the Central Committee; the Central Committee elects the Executive Committee, the Permanent Presidium and the Secretariat; 1,924,000 mems. (1969); Gen. Sec. of the Romanian Communist Party NICOLAE CEAUȘESCU; publs. Scînteia (The Spark) daily; Lupta de Clasă (The Class Struggle) monthly.

POLITICAL ORGANIZATION

The Socialist Unity Front: Bucharest; f. 1968; an organization set up by the government, and in which industrial and farm workers, professional bodies of all sorts and national minorities are all to be represented with the Communist Party. It will discuss questions of both foreign and internal policy; Chair. NICOLAE CEAUȘESCU.

JUDICIAL SYSTEM

SUPREME COURT

Chairman: EMILIAN NUCESCU.

There is one Supreme Court, whose main functions are: to judge, as an appeal instance, the sentences pronounced by higher tribunals; to judge, as fundamental instance, certain requests; to exercise general control of the judiciary activity carried on by all tribunals. The members of the Supreme Court are professional magistrates elected by the Grand National Assembly during the legislation of the latter.

DISTRICT COURTS

Under the new territorial-administrative divisions of Romania (February 1968) there are 39 district courts and the municipal court of Bucharest (with the status of district court). In all the towns in the country there are country courts subordinate to the district courts, and in Bucharest there are eight sectional courts. The panel of judges consists of one professional magistrate and of people's jurors.

MILITARY COURTS

Court Martial does not exist. Military courts judge as fundamental and as appeal instances contraventions of the law by servicemen and, in certain circumstances, by civilians. The panel of judges consists of professional magistrates and of people's jurors.

BODY OF ATTORNEYS

Procurator-General: ALEXA AUGUSTIN.

The Procurator-General of the Republic and the subordinate attorneys represent the body which supervises the strict observance of the laws of the Republic, in the field of judicial activity as well as in the State administration. The Procurator-General is appointed by the Grand National Assembly and is responsible to it. Between Assembly sessions he is responsible to the State Council.

(For more details on the Judicial system see the Constitution.)

RELIGION

According to Article 30 of the Constitution, religious groups are organized and carry on their activities on an autonomous basis, regulated by law. There are fifteen sects and denominations, more than 80 per cent of believers belonging to the Romanian Orthodox Church.

ROMANIAN ORTHODOX CHURCH

The Romanian Orthodox Church has approximately 14 million followers and is organized as an autocephalous patriarchate, being led by the Holy Synod headed by Patriarch Justinian who was elected in 1948. The Patriarchate consists of 5 metropolitanates and 7 bishoprics.

Patriarch: JUSTINIAN MARINA (residence in Bucharest).

Patriarchal Vicar-General: Bishop ANTIM NICA TARGOVISTEANUL.

Bishop of Vad, Feleac and Cluj: TEOFIL HERINEANU (residence in Cluj).

Bishop of Oradea: VALERIAN ZAHARIA.

SPAIN—(INTRODUCTORY

Education

Education is compulsory and free from the age of 6 to 14. Primary Education lasts four years, after which pupils can continue at primary school to complete their compulsory education, or enter secondary schools. Secondary Education consists of state schools (Institutos Nacionales de Enseñanza Media) or private and denominational schools (Colegios de Enseñanza Secundaria). Both provide a six-year course leading to the Bachiller Superior. A further pre-university year with a qualifying examination is required for entry to university or higher technical school.

Higher Education: There are twelve state universities and two independent universities. Autonomous universities are also being started in Madrid, Barcelona and Bilbao. The degree course leads to a Licenciatura and lasts five years; the doctorate is usually a two-year course by examination and thesis. Higher Technical Studies in engineering and architecture are followed at Escuelas Técnicas de Grado Medio and Escuelas Técnicas de Grado Superior. The new Spanish Educational Reforms will increase educational opportunity at all levels. New universities are to be created and grants will be provided where necessary.

Tourism

Tourism makes an important contribution to the country's economy. Spanish resorts have become increasingly popular with foreigners, 19 million visiting Spain in 1968. The Costa Brava, the Costa del Sol, the Balearic Islands and the Canary Islands all attract many visitors. Others tour the old towns of Spain—Seville, Cordoba, Granada, Toledo—and the modern cities of Madrid and Barcelona. Winter sports resorts are being developed in the Pyrenees.

Nationals of the following countries do not require visas to enter Spain: Algeria, Australia, Austria, Belgium,

THE CONSTITUTION

THERE is no written Constitution of the Spanish State, whose legal foundation is formed by a number of fundamental laws and charters. These are the Fuero de los Españoles (Spaniards' Charter), the Fuero del Trabajo (Labour Charter), the Ley Constitutiva de las Cortes (Parliament Law), the Ley de Sucesión (Law of Succession), the Ley de Referendum Nacional (National Referendum Law), the Ley de Los Principios Fundamentales del Movimiento Nacional and The Organic Law of the Spanish State.

THE SPANIARDS' CHARTER

As early as 1937, the political parties fighting on the National side were unified by decree into a single movement which adopted the name of Falange Española Tradicionalista y de las Juntas de Ofensiva Nacional-Sindicalista (F.E.T. y de las J.O.N.S.) and set out to provide a social organization for Spain on corporative or "national-syndicalist" lines. The aims of the party were summarised in the Spaniards' Charter, published in 1937.

(1) The Spanish State proclaims as the main principle of its acts, respect for the dignity, integrity and liberty of the individual, acknowledging man as the bearer of eternal values and member of a national community, endowed with duties and rights, the exercise of which guarantees the common good.

CHAPTER I

(2) Spaniards owe faithful service to their Motherland, loyalty to the Head of the State and obedience to the laws.

(3) The Law protects equally the rights of all Spaniards without class distinction or discrimination between persons.

(4) Spaniards are entitled to respect concerning their personal or family honour. Whoever insults them, regardless of his social status, will incur liability.

(5) All Spaniards have a right to receive knowledge and education and a duty to acquire them, either at home or in private or public centres, according to their free choice. The State will ensure that no talent is wasted for want of financial means.

(6) The profession and practice of the Catholic religion, which is that of the Spanish State, will enjoy official protection.

The State will assume the protection of religious freedom, which will be guaranteed by effective judicial protection and which, in turn, will safeguard morals and public order.

(7) Service to the Motherland in a military capacity confers an honourable status on Spanish citizens.

All Spaniards must accept military service when called up, according to the law.

(8) By means of laws, and always in a general manner, personal contribution can be asked for, in case of national interest or public necessity.

(9) Every citizen must contribute to the public expenditure according to his means. No one can be compelled to pay taxes which are not established in accordance with the appropriate law voted by the Cortes.

(10) All Spaniards have the right to undertake public functions of political representative character, through the family, the Municipality and the Syndicate, without this preventing their being elected to other legally established representative bodies.

(11) All Spaniards may hold public positions and offices according to their merit and capacity.

*(12) Every Spaniard is allowed to express his opinions freely so long as they are not directed against the fundamental principles of the State.

(13) Inside the national territory the State guarantees the liberty and secrecy of correspondence.

*(14) Spaniards have the right to set up residence freely inside the national territory. (By virtue of Art. 35 suspended for 2 years, May 1962-May 1964.)

*(15) No one may enter the home of a Spaniard or carry out any search in it without his consent, unless empowered with a warrant from the competent Authority, and in the cases and manner established by the laws.

*(16) Spaniards may meet and associate freely for lawful purposes and according to the rules established by the laws.

The State may create and maintain organizations which it considers necessary to the fulfilment of its purposes. The established rules, which will take the form of Law, will co-ordinate the operation of this right with the one acknowledged in the preceding paragraph.

(17) Spaniards are entitled to legal security. All the organs of the State will operate according to a pre-established social order of rules which cannot be arbitrarily interpreted or altered.

*(18) No Spaniard may be detained except for reasons and in the manner prescribed by the Laws.

After a time-limit of seventy-two hours, any detained person must be set free or handed over to the judicial Authority.

(19) No one may be sentenced otherwise than by virtue of a Law existing prior to the offence and by decision of the competent Tribunal after the hearing and defence of the person concerned.

(20) No Spaniard may be deprived of his nationality except for the crime of treason, defined in the penal laws, for enrolling in the army or for accepting public office in a foreign country in defiance of the express prohibition of the Head of the State.

(21) Spaniards may address individual petitions to the Head of the State, to the Cortes and to the Authorities.

Corporations, civil servants and members of the armed forces and Institutes can only exercise this right in accordance with the regulations governing their callings.

* These articles were suspended during the State of Emergency (January-March 1969).

CHAPTER II

(22) The State acknowledges and protects the family as a natural and fundamental institution of society, with rights and duties having precedence and superiority over all positive human laws.

Marriage can be only one and indissoluble.

The State will give special protection to large families.

(23) Fathers are under obligation to feed, bring up and educate their children. The State can suspend or deprive of their paternal authority those who do not exercise it in a worthy manner and transfer the guardianship and upbringing of minors to those who can legally take charge of them.

CHAPTER III

(24) All Spaniards have the right to work and the duty to contribute to some useful social activity.

(25) Work, because of its essentially human nature, cannot be relegated to the material concept of trading, nor be

SPAIN

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

Spain, in south-west Europe, forms more than four-fifths of the Iberian peninsula. It is bounded to the north by France and to the west by Portugal. To the east is the Mediterranean and, twenty miles to the south, Africa. The climate is less temperate than in most of western Europe, with hot summers and, in the hilly interior, cold winters. The language is Spanish. Roman Catholicism is the established religion. The flag carries three horizontal bands of red, yellow and red. The capital is Madrid.

Recent History

General Franco has ruled Spain as Chief of State and Commander-in-Chief of the Armed Forces since 1939. In 1951, Spain moved towards joining the Western alliance by entering defence talks with the U.S.A. The two countries subsequently agreed to the building of military bases on Spanish soil. In 1955, Spain was admitted to the United Nations. In 1962 she applied for Associate Membership of the European Economic Community but though some progress was made during the negotiations of 1967, no agreement has yet been reached. In 1963 Spain granted local autonomy to the African provinces of Ruo Muni and Fernando Poo (Spanish Guinea) and in 1969 ceded the enclave of Ifni to Morocco. The Spanish border with Gibraltar at La Linea was closed in June 1969. The agreement over the three American air bases and one naval base in Spain was extended for 18 months from March 1969.

In 1966 a new Organic Law of the State was endorsed by a National Referendum. Regulations concerning the Council of the Realm (see Constitution) were passed by the Cortes in May 1967. In October 1967 a total of 104 deputies were elected as family representatives for the Cortes in Spain's first popular elections since the Civil War. Following student riots and workers strikes, General Franco declared a state of emergency at the end of January 1969, and the suspension of five articles of the constitution until March 21st. On March 28th, 1969, General Franco declared a total amnesty for all crimes committed during the Civil War. General Franco named Prince Juan Carlos de Bourbon as his successor (July 1969) and the Cortes approved it by 491 votes for and 19 against.

Government

The Law of Succession drawn up in 1947 and amended in 1966 defines Spain as traditionally a monarchy and states that General Franco will be succeeded by a king. Legislation is initiated by the Council of Ministers and General Franco, as Head of State, has the power of veto. The Council of State, a partly elected, partly nominated body, is the supreme consultative organ advising the Head of State on all matters within his competence. The Cortes, also partly elected and partly nominated, discusses and proposes legislation.

Defence

Spain maintains an army, navy and air force. Military service is compulsory and lasts two years. The defence pact between the United States and Spain provides a network of air and naval bases under Spanish sovereignty and used by the armed forces of both sides. Fifteen per cent of the budget is allocated to defence.

Economic Affairs

Spain is mainly an agricultural country but much of the land is arid and of little value. The most important products are olives, olive oil, cereals, grapes, fortified and unfortified wines, citrus and other fruit, and vegetables. There are valuable deposits of iron, coal and other minerals. Oil has been discovered in North Spain. There are also valuable deposits of uranium. An oil refinery is to be built at Bilbao to treat five million tons of oil per annum. Textiles are important, their manufacture being concentrated in and around Barcelona. A second Four-Year Development Plan 1968-71, envisaging the expenditure of more than 500,000 million pesetas, aims to continue the annual increase in national income of 6 per cent, to increase the Gross National Product by 24 per cent, and to provide one million more jobs. It provides for the creation of new industries, better transport, agrarian reform, regional development and increased productivity. In 1967 a Bill was passed giving large tax concessions to Spanish companies willing to merge or associate in more competitive groups. In 1964 the joint Portuguese-Spanish Douro River Hydro Electric Project was inaugurated when the Aldeadávila Dam came into operation. Tourism is an important source of income, and remittances from Spaniards working abroad are also valuable.

A navigable canal is to be constructed by 1970 linking Seville with the Atlantic at Bonanza. By providing a quicker outlet the canal is hoped to contribute to the development of industrialization in Andalusia. Several irrigation schemes are being developed particularly in the drier areas of the south.

Transport and Communications

There are some 13,700 kilometres of railways in the country and a vast ten-year modernization plan costing £400 million is in progress. There are 133,700 kilometres of roads, a great deal of work is being done on road improvements and in 1964 the first stretch of motorway was opened. A 600-ft tunnel link from the Salazar Valley to Ory in France was opened in 1967. IBERIA, the Spanish airline, maintains external and internal services. The merchant fleet consists of more than 2,600 vessels of 2,653,000 gross tons.

Social Welfare

National Insurance is compulsory for all employed or self-employed Spaniards. The National Insurance Scheme covers temporary incapacity to work, accident insurance, assistance to dependants, permanent incapacity, widows' pensions, old-age pensions, unemployment. Contributions are paid jointly by the employer (42 per cent) and the employee (8 per cent).

During the absence of the Head of State, the Heir to the Crown (if over 30) or the Council of Regency will assume his functions. The guardian of royal minors will be approved by the Cortes and may not be the President of the Government or the President of the Cortes; he must be Spanish and by religion a Catholic.

THE GOVERNMENT OF THE NATION (Art. 13-20)

The Head of State controls the government by means of the Council of Ministers. The Head of State is to share executive powers with the President, who is to be chosen by the Head of State from a list of three names submitted by the Council of the Realm. The President's term of office will be five years, although he may be removed earlier by the Head of State or the Council of the Realm. A new President must be elected within a period of ten days. The other members of the government will be appointed by the Head of State on the recommendation of the President.

THE NATIONAL COUNCIL (Art. 21-28)

The President of the Government in his capacity as National Leader of the Movement is President of the National Council, assisted by the permanent Secretary-General. The Council consists of 70 other members and one elected councillor from each province. The Council promotes mainly the Principles of the Movement and other Fundamental Laws of the Kingdom.

THE JUDICIARY (Art. 29-36)

The President of the Supreme Court supervises the Judiciary which includes military, ecclesiastical and civil courts. Legal aid is granted. The Attorney-General liaises between the Government and the Courts of Justice. The President of the Supreme Court is elected for six years (Art. 58).

THE ARMED FORCES (Art. 37-39)

The National Defence Board, consisting of the Heads of the Armed Forces, relevant ministries and the President of the Government, will be responsible for security and national defence. A Supreme General Staff will co-ordinate the activities of the three General Staffs.

ADMINISTRATION OF THE STATE (Art. 40-44)

The Council of State is the highest consultative body in matters of government and administration, and takes precedence, after the Council of Ministers, over all other bodies.

It consists of a President, a Secretary-General, an undefined number of permanent Councillors appointed by the Head of State and the following eight ex-officio Councillors: the Primate of Spain, the Vice-Secretary-General of the Falange, the Combined Chiefs of Staffs, the Solicitor-General, the Director-General of Litigation, the Rector of the University of Madrid, the Director of the Institute of

(29) The State will maintain public assistance institutions, and protect and give support to those created by the Church, the Corporations and private persons.

(30) Private property, as a natural means of fulfilling individual, family or social purposes is recognised and protected by the State.

All forms of property are subordinated to the necessities of the State and of the common good.

Riches must not remain inactive, nor be dissipated unworthily, nor be used for illicit purposes.

(31) The State will facilitate for all Spaniards access to the kinds of property most intimately connected with the human person: home, land, working equipment and goods in everyday use.

(32) In no case may the penalty of confiscation of property be imposed.

No one may be expropriated except in case of public necessity or social interest, and provided that the appropriate compensation has been paid in accordance with the provisions of the Laws.

(33) The exercise of the rights acknowledged in this Charter cannot be allowed to threaten the spiritual, national and social unity of Spain.

(34) The Cortes shall vote the necessary laws for the exercise of the rights acknowledged in this Charter.

(35) The operation of the articles 12, 13, 14, 15, 16 and 18 can be temporarily suspended by the Government, totally or partially, by virtue of a Decree-Law which will determine the limit, extent and duration of the measure.

(36) Any violation against any of the rights proclaimed in this Charter will be examined by the laws, which will determine what action can be taken in their defence before the appropriate judicial organ.

Given in the Pardo on the seventeenth of July, nineteen forty-five, and modified in nineteen sixty-six.

On November 22nd, 1966, General Franco proposed a New Organic Law of the State, which was approved by the Cortes and by the electorate in a National Referendum on December 14th, 1966. A summary of the provisional Organic Law is given below. In July 1969 the Cortes approved Prince Juan Carlos de Bourbon as General Franco's successor by 491 votes for, 9 against and 9 abstentions.

THE HEAD OF THE STATE (Art. 1-12)

The Spanish State is legally a monarchy based on the principles of the National Movement promulgated in the Fundamental Law of 1958.

Article 62

1. The Economic and Social Council may make or initiate studies and reports with respect to international economic, social, cultural, educational, health, and related matters and may make recommendations with respect to any such matters to the General Assembly, to the Members of the United Nations, and to the specialized agencies concerned.

2. It may make recommendations for the purpose of promoting respect for, and observance of, human rights and fundamental freedoms for all.

3. It may prepare draft conventions for submission to the General Assembly, with respect to matters falling within its competence.

4. It may call, in accordance with the rules prescribed by the United Nations, international conferences on matters falling within its competence.

Article 63

1. The Economic and Social Council may enter into agreements with any of the agencies referred to in Article 57, defining the terms on which the agency concerned shall be brought into relationship with the United Nations. Such agreements shall be subject to approval by the General Assembly.

2. It may co-ordinate the activities of the specialized agencies through consultation with and recommendations to such agencies and through recommendations to the General Assembly and to the Members of the United Nations.

Article 64

1. The Economic and Social Council may take appropriate steps to obtain regular reports from the specialized agencies. It may make arrangements with the Members of the United Nations and with specialized agencies to obtain reports on the steps taken to give effect to its own recommendations and to recommendations on matters falling within its competence made by the General Assembly.

2. It may communicate its observations on these reports to the General Assembly.

Article 65

The Economic and Social Council may furnish information to the Security Council and shall assist the Security Council upon its request.

Article 66

1. The Economic and Social Council shall perform such functions as fall within its competence in connection with the carrying out of the recommendations of the General Assembly.

2. It may, with the approval of the General Assembly, perform services at the request of Members of the United Nations and at the request of specialized agencies.

3. It shall perform such other functions as are specified elsewhere in the present Charter or as may be assigned to it by the General Assembly.

Voting

Article 67

1. Each member of the Economic and Social Council shall have one vote.

2. Decisions of the Economic and Social Council shall be made by a majority of the members present and voting.

Procedure

Article 68

The Economic and Social Council shall set up commissions in economic and social fields and for the promotion of human rights, and such other commissions as may be required for the performance of its functions.

Article 69

The Economic and Social Council shall invite any Member of the United Nations to participate, without vote, in its deliberations on any matter of particular concern to that Member.

Article 70

The Economic and Social Council may make arrangements for representatives of the specialized agencies to participate, without vote, in its deliberations and in those of the commissions established by it, and for its representatives to participate in the deliberations of the specialized agencies.

Article 71

The Economic and Social Council may make suitable arrangements for consultation with non-governmental organizations which are concerned with matters within its competence. Such arrangements may be made with international organizations and, where appropriate, with national organizations after consultation with the Member of the United Nations concerned.

THE UNITED NATIONS

Article 72

1. The Economic and Social Council shall adopt its own rules of procedure, including the method of selecting its President.

2. The Economic and Social Council shall meet as required in accordance with its rules, which shall include provision for the convening of meetings on the request of a majority of its members.

CHAPTER XI NON-SELF-GOVERNING TERRITORIES

Article 73

Members of the United Nations which have or assume responsibilities for the administration of territories whose peoples have not yet attained a full measure of self-government recognize the principle that the interests of the inhabitants of these territories are paramount, and accept as a sacred trust the obligation to promote to the utmost, within the system of international peace and security established by the present Charter, the well-being of the inhabitants of these territories, and, to this end

- (a) to ensure, with due respect for the culture of the peoples concerned, their political, economic, social, and educational advancement, their just treatment, and their protection against abuses;
- (b) to develop self government, to take due account of the political aspirations of the peoples, and to assist them in the progressive development of their free political institutions, according to the particular circumstances of each territory and its peoples and their varying stages of advancement;
- (c) to further international peace and security;
- (d) to promote constructive measures of development, to encourage research, and to co-operate with one another and, when and where appropriate, with specialized international bodies with a view to the practical achievement of the social, economic, and scientific purposes set forth in this Article, and
- (e) to transmit regularly to the Secretary-General for information purposes, subject to such limitations as security and constitutional considerations may require, statistical and other information of a technical nature relating to economic, social, and educational conditions in the territories for which they are respectively responsible other than those territories to which Chapters XII and XIII apply.

Article 74

Members of the United Nations also agree that their policy in respect of the territories to which this Chapter commercial matters

CHAPTER XII INTERNATIONAL TRUSTEESHIP SYSTEM

Article 75

The United Nations shall establish under its authority an international trusteeship system for the administration and supervision of such territories as may be placed thereunder by subsequent individual agreements. These territories are hereinafter referred to as trust territories.

Article 76

The basic objectives of the trusteeship system, in accordance with the Purposes of the United Nations laid down in Article 1 of the present Charter, shall be:

- (a) to further international peace and security;

- (b) to promote the political, economic, social, and wishes of the peoples concerned, and as may be provided by the terms of each trusteeship agreement,

- (c) to encourage respect for human rights and for fundamental freedoms for all without distinction as to race, sex, language, or religion, and to encourage recognition of the interdependence of the peoples of the world, and
- (d) to ensure equal treatment in social, economic, and commercial matters for all Members of the United Nations and their nationals, and also equal treatment for the latter in the administration of justice, without prejudice to the attainment of the foregoing objectives and subject to the provisions of Article 80.

Article 77

1. The trusteeship system shall apply to such territories in the following categories as may be placed thereunder by means of trusteeship agreements:

- (a) territories now held under mandate,
- (b) territories which may be detached from enemy states as a result of the Second World War; and
- (c) territories voluntarily placed under the system by states responsible for their administration.

2. It will be a matter for subsequent agreement as to which territories in the foregoing categories will be brought under the trusteeship system and upon what terms.

Article 78

The trusteeship system shall not apply to territories which have become Members of the United Nations, relationship among which shall be based on respect for the principle of sovereign equality.

Article 79

The terms of trusteeship for each territory to be placed

Nations, and shall be approved as provided for in Articles 83 and 85.

Article 80

1. Except as may be agreed upon in individual trusteeship agreements, made under Articles 77, 79, and 81, placing each territory under the trusteeship system, and until such agreements have been concluded, nothing in this Chapter shall be construed in or of itself to alter in any as giving grounds for delay or postponement of the negotiation and conclusion of agreements for placing mandated and other territories under the trusteeship system as provided for in Article 77.

Article 81

The trusteeship agreement shall in each case include the terms under which the trust territory will be administered and designate the authority which will exercise the administration of the trust territory. Such authority, hereinafter called the administering authority, may be one or more states or the Organization itself.

SPAIN—(THE CONSTITUTION)

Political Studies and a National Delegate of the Syndicates. The President of the Council of State is elected for six years (Art. 58).

The National Economic Council is the consultative, advisory and technical body dealing with matters affecting the national economy. The President of the National Economic Council is elected for six years (Art. 58).

The Court of Exchequer of the Kingdom deals with acts and laws of a fiscal nature, and audits the accounts of official organisms receiving aid from the State. The President of the Court of Exchequer of the Kingdom is elected for six years (Art. 58).

LOCAL ADMINISTRATION (Art. 45-48)

The Municipalities and Provinces are empowered to carry out their respective aims under the conditions stated in the law. Municipal and provincial corporations will be elected by articulate suffrage. State aid will be provided to encourage the development of municipal and provincial life.

RELATIONS BETWEEN SUPREME BODIES OF STATE (Art. 49-58)

The Cortes will be immediately informed of the appointment of a new government and settle questions of the Succession. The President of the Government and the Ministers will inform the Cortes of measures taken by them. The Government will submit the accounts of the State for approval by the Cortes, and the Court of Exchequer of the Kingdom will keep both organisms informed. The Head of State alone can seek the opinion of the Council of the Realm, and settle disputes within the judiciary.

THE APPEAL OF "CONTRAFUERO" (Art. 59-66)

A "Contrafuero" is any legislative act or general disposition of the Government which contravenes the principles of the National Movement or the other Fundamental Laws of the Realm. Appeal, which must be lodged within two months, may be lodged by the National Council and the Cortes to the Head of State. The resolution which annuls the "Contrafuero" will immediately be published in the Boletín Oficial del Estado. A special law will establish the conditions, the form and the terms in which the procedure, arising from the appeal of "Contrafuero" must be promoted and carried out.

THE LAW OF SUCCESSION

In a broadcast to the nation on March 31st, 1947, General Franco outlined the Law of Succession that was later submitted and approved by the Cortes (on June 7th) and by the electorate in a National Referendum (on July 6th, 1947). This law was amended in The Organic Law of the State of November 24th, 1966.

This law states that Spain, as a political union, forms a Catholic and Social State, and is by tradition a monarchy. The Head of the State during his lifetime is the Caudillo, Commander-in-Chief of the Army, Don Francisco Franco,

A Regency Council will assume power on the vacancy of the Head of the State, its rulings needing a majority vote of two-thirds to be valid.

The Head of State may at any time nominate to the Cortes his successor, who will bear the title of King or Regent. (The Head of the State may revoke a nomination previously put forward by himself and approved by the Cortes.) If the death or declared incapacity of the Head of the State occurs before his successor has been nominated, the Regency Council shall convoke the Government and the Council of the Realm within three days, and they shall agree by at least a two-thirds majority on the nomination of the successor who must be a person of royal lineage.

If no man is acceptable a Regent shall be agreed and appointed for a length of time specified by the Cortes.

In order to be the Head of the State, King, or Regent, the nominee must be a Spaniard, a man over thirty, a Catholic, and swear to obey the fundamental laws of the nation which are the "Spaniards' Charter", the Labour Charter, the Constitutional Law of the Cortes, the Law of Referendum, and the present Law of Succession. He must also be loyal to the principles of the Movimiento Nacional. (Modifications of this law require a national referendum as well as the agreement of the Cortes.) The monarchy having been re-established, the order of succession shall be by primogeniture.

Should the incapacity of the Head of the State be recognised by a majority of not less than two-thirds of the Government it is to be communicated to the Council of the Realm, who are to act in accordance with this Law of Succession.

THE COUNCIL OF THE REALM

The Council of the Realm assists the Head of State in those tasks of government that are exclusively his. He takes the advice of the Council when a law approved by the Cortes has to be reconsidered by them, with regard to declarations of peace or war and on the question of the nomination of a successor.

The Council is presided over by the President of the Cortes, and consists also of the senior dignitary of the Church with a seat in the Cortes, the senior Captain General on active service, the senior Chief of Staff of the Armed Forces, the Presidents of the Council of State, the Supreme Court of Justice and the Institute of Spain; two Councillors elected by each of the following groups in the Cortes: the Syndicates, Local Government, National Councillors, representatives of the Family; one Councillor from the University Rectors and the Professional Colleges and three Councillors appointed by the Head of State.

THE REGENCY COUNCIL

The Regency Council would consist of the President of the Cortes (who would preside), the senior dignitary of the Church and the senior Chief of Staff of the Armed Forces.

THE COUNCIL OF STATE

The Council of State is the highest consultative body in matters of government and administration, and takes precedence, after the Council of Ministers, over all other bodies.

It consists of a President, a Secretary-General, an undefined number of permanent Councillors appointed by the Head of State and the following eight ex-officio Councillors: the Primate of Spain, the Vice-Secretary-General of the Falange, the Combined Chief of Staffs, the Solicitor-General, the Director-General of Litigation, the Rector of the University of Madrid, the Director of the Institute of Political Studies and a National Delegate of the Syndicates.

THE CORTES ESPAÑOLAS (Parliament)

By the Law of July 17th and the Decrees of October 15th, 1942, establishing the new Cortes, the chief mission of the Cortes is the preparation and elaboration of the laws without prejudice to the powers exercised by the Chief of State. The 570 members of the Cortes are called "procuradores", and are partly ex-officio members and partly so by appointment, together with some elected members. Under the new Organic Law of the State of November 24th, 1966, 104 members will be elected by heads of families and their wives.

SPAIN—(THE CONSTITUTION, THE GOVERNMENT)

Members must be Spanish, have attained their majority, be in full use of all civil rights with no political disability. Nominations by the Head of the State can be revoked, the remainder hold office for four years and may be re-elected. The President, two Vice-Presidents, and four Secretaries are elected by the Plenum of the Cortes. The Committees are appointed by the President of the Cortes with the approval of the Government. The President is elected for six years, the other above-named officials are elected for each term of the legislature.

Laws falling under the usual headings, and any others, as also motions and agreements not having the force of law, are submitted to a full session of the Cortes. Committees deliberate on anything not included in the foregoing, draft laws, and submit proposals. In war or emergencies the Government may act through decree-laws to be ratified by the Cortes later. The ratification of international treaties or agreements that affect the full sovereignty or the territorial integrity of Spain, will be the subject of a Law passed by the plenary session of the Cortes. The full Cortes or the Committees consider the ratification of treaties on matters within their competence. There is no provision for introducing new laws through individual members, and no law is promulgated without the approval of the Head of the State, to whom the President of the Cortes submits the draft laws approved by the Cortes.

THE TRADE UNIONS

As participants in work and production, all Spaniards constitute the Trade Union Organization which is divided into syndicates. Within the legal form there will be autonomous associations of employers, technical experts, workers and members of legislative councils. The Unions represent the interests of the national community, and will collaborate in the study of production problems and may propose solutions and take part in the drafting of regulations, and the supervision and fulfilment of working conditions. They may create and maintain organizations for research, moral, cultural and occupational training, health insurance and other items of a social nature that may be of interest to those who participate in production.

SPAIN—(JUDICIAL SYSTEM, RELIGION)

deal mainly with criminal cases but since September 1968 they have also dealt with some civil cases. The provincial courts that do not form a chamber of the territorial courts are located in Madrid, Albacete, Alicante, Almería, Avila, Badajoz, Barcelona, Bilbao, Burgos, Cáceres, Cádiz, Castellon, Ciudad Real, Córdoba, Coruña, Cuenca, Gerona, Granada, Guadalajara, Huelva, Huesca, Jaén, Las Palmas, Leon, Lérida, Logroño, Lugo, Málaga, Murcia, Orense, Oviedo, Palencia, Palma, Pamplona, Pontevedra, Salamanca, San Sebastián, Santa Cruz de Tenerife, Santander, Segovia, Sevilla, Soria, Tarragona, Teruel, Toledo, Valencia, Valladolid, Vitoria, Zamora, Zaragoza.

Juzgados de Primera Instancia e Instrucción (Courts of Primary Jurisdiction and Proceedings): The task of these courts is to hear more important civil cases and prepare indictments for criminal cases. They are located in the capitals of the judicial districts known as Partidos Judiciales. There are thirty-three of these courts in Madrid and twenty-four in Barcelona.

Juzgados Municipales (Municipal Courts): administer justice in localities with a population of up to 30,000 inhabitants. They have civil and criminal jurisdiction. There are thirty-three of these courts in Madrid and twenty-four in Barcelona.

Juzgados Comarcales y de Paz (Regional Courts and Justices) administer justice in less important cases in districts where the courts mentioned above do not function. Justices are freely appointed and do not belong to the legal profession.

Consejo Superior de Protección de Menores (Higher Council for the Protection of Juveniles): A Commission of the Council forms a Court of Appeal against the judgments of the Provincial Juvenile Courts. The Commission is composed of a president, a vice-president, two permanent members, two substitutes, and a secretary, all of whom must be trained in the law; Pres. VICENTE SEGRELLOS CHILLIDA.

RELIGION

The population of Spain is overwhelmingly Roman Catholic, and there are some 61,000 churches, with about 500 persons in each parish.

In 1967 there were 306 Protestant churches with a practising congregation of 30,000. Barcelona has 38 of these churches and Madrid has 15. In addition there are two Protestant seminaries, one in Madrid and the other in Barcelona. The enforcement of the partial regulations of the law on religious liberty concerning denominational associations called for applications to be made to the Ministry of Justice and a register to be kept of church members and church accounts, before May 31, 1969.

THE PRESS

The Press Law of 1938 gave the state full control over the appointment of editors, the profession of journalism, the function and distribution of publications, and censorship of their contents. Furthermore, since 1941 the State Security Law has placed heavy penalties on press material likely to foster activities against the security of the state, or to compromise the authority of the state or the interests of the nation. A new Press Law was passed in 1966 which put an end to censorship, gave far greater freedom of discussion to editors, and reduced the penalties for offences against morality and the principles of the Movimiento to six months' imprisonment. But in April 1967 the Cortes increased the penalties to six years' imprisonment for exceeding the 1966 definition of press freedom, and to twelve years' for publishing insults to the nation or propaganda against the Fundamental Laws. Restrictions were further increased by the Official Secrets Act of April 1968. According to figures issued by the Ministry of Information and Tourism, between March 18th, 1966, when the new Press Law came into force, and March 18th, 1968, proceedings were initiated against the Press in 339 cases and fines were imposed in 180 cases. Suspension of publication, which like a fine, could become effective before consideration in a court, was also used as a penalty for infringements of the press laws. Thus Madrid was prohibited from publication for two consecutive periods of two months in 1968, in addition to being fined.

With the declaration of the state of emergency on January 24th, 1969, freedom of expression was abolished and total pre-publication censorship, enforced through the Ministry of Information, was re-introduced during that period.

The Government closely supervises the selection and training of journalists, who must be graduates of one of the two official schools in Madrid or of the independent school in Navarra. The Ministry of Information controls EFE, the national news agency which monopolises the distribution of foreign news, through the Press Syndicate, the Government also has influence over the distribution of newsprint.

Problems—Madrid newspapers may take up to a day to reach provincial centres—and in part by regional loyalties. The low circulation of newspapers (few exceed 10,000 copies) must be seen in the context of a 20 per cent illiteracy rate, moreover, Spanish is the only language used in the daily press, despite the predominance in speech of regional languages such as Catalan.

Most towns have a single Monday paper (Hoja del Lunes), and in a town with more than one daily the publishers combine to produce this edition. There are 2,652 weekly papers and periodicals, of which about 300 are general interest magazines.

The space devoted to news reports in the newspaper press is relatively small—usually less than half that given to cultural features and entertainments. Most papers are tabloid in format. The majority of daily and weekly papers belong to political, religious, or commercial organizations and associations. One-third of them are published by organs of the Movimiento. The major ownership groups are as follows:

Prensa del Movimiento: the principal press group

RADIO AND TELEVISION

Dirección General de Radiodifusión y Televisión: the agency of the Ministry of Information and Tourism which controls all sound and vision broadcasting in Spain. All stations, both official and commercial, relay the nation-wide news service ("Diarios Hablados") of Radio Nacional de España. The rest of the programmes of the commercial stations is independent. Advertising is permitted, but is restricted to five minutes in each hour.

THE UNITED NATIONS

Article 82

There may be designated, in any trusteeship agreement, a strategic area or areas which may include part or all of the trust territory to which the agreement applies, without prejudice to any special agreement or agreements made under Article 43.

Article 83

1. All functions of the United Nations relating to strategic areas, including the approval of the terms of the trusteeship agreements and of their alteration or amendment, shall be exercised by the Security Council.

2. The basic objectives set forth in Article 76 shall be applicable to the people of each strategic area.

3. The Security Council shall, subject to the provisions of the trusteeship agreements and without prejudice to security considerations, avail itself of the assistance of the Trusteeship Council to perform those functions of the United Nations under the trusteeship system relating to political, economic, social, and educational matters in the strategic areas.

Article 84

It shall be the duty of the administering authority to ensure that the trust territory shall play its part in the maintenance of international peace and security. To this end the administering authority may make use of volunteer forces, facilities, and assistance from the trust territory in carrying out the obligations towards the Security Council undertaken in this regard by the administering authority, as well as for local defence and the maintenance of law and order within the trust territory.

Article 85

1. The functions of the United Nations with regard to trusteeship agreements for all areas not designated as strategic, including the approval of the terms of the trusteeship agreements and of their alteration or amendment, shall be exercised by the General Assembly.

2. The Trusteeship Council, operating under the authority of the General Assembly, shall assist the General Assembly in carrying out these functions.

CHAPTER XIII THE TRUSTEESHIP COUNCIL

Composition

Article 86

1. The Trusteeship Council shall consist of the following Members of the United Nations:

- (a) those Members administering trust territories;
- (b) such of those Members mentioned by name in Article 23 as are not administering trust territories; and
- (c) as many other Members elected for three-year terms by the General Assembly as may be necessary to ensure that the total number of members of the Trusteeship Council is equally divided between those Members of the United Nations which administer trust territories and those which do not.

2. Each member of the Trusteeship Council shall designate one specially qualified person to represent it therein.

Functions and Powers

Article 87

The General Assembly and, under its authority, the Trusteeship Council, in carrying out their functions, may:

- (a) consider reports submitted by the administering authority;
- (b) accept petitions and examine them in consultation with the administering authority;

(c) provide for periodic visits to the respective trust territories at times agreed upon with the administering authority; and

(d) take these and other actions in conformity with the terms of the trusteeship agreements.

Article 88

The Trusteeship Council shall formulate a questionnaire on the political, economic, social, and educational advancement of the inhabitants of each trust territory, and the administering authority for each trust territory within the competence of the General Assembly shall make an annual report to the General Assembly upon the basis of such questionnaire.

Voting

Article 89

1. Each member of the Trusteeship Council shall have one vote.

2. Decisions of the Trusteeship Council shall be made by a majority of the members present and voting.

Procedure

Article 90

1. The Trusteeship Council shall adopt its own rules of procedure, including the method of selecting its President.

2. The Trusteeship Council shall meet as required in accordance with its rules, which shall include provision for the convening of meetings on the request of a majority of its members.

Article 91

The Trusteeship Council shall, when appropriate, avail itself of the assistance of the Economic and Social Council and of the specialized agencies in regard to matters with which they are respectively concerned.

CHAPTER XIV THE INTERNATIONAL COURT OF JUSTICE

Article 92

The International Court of Justice shall be the principal judicial organ of the United Nations. It shall function in accordance with the annexed Statute, which is based upon the Statute of the Permanent Court of International Justice and forms an integral part of the present Charter.

Article 93

1. All Members of the United Nations are ipso facto parties to the Statute of the International Court of Justice.

2. A state which is not a Member of the United Nations may become a party to the Statute of the International Court of Justice on condition to be determined in each case by the General Assembly upon the recommendation of the Security Council.

Article 94

1. Each Member of the United Nations undertakes to comply with the decision of the International Court of Justice in any case to which it is a party.

2. If any party to a case fails to perform the obligations incumbent upon it under a judgment rendered by the Court, the other party may have recourse to the Security Council, which may, if it deems necessary, make recommendations or decide upon measures to be taken to give effect to the judgement.

Article 95

Nothing in the present Charter shall prevent Members of the United Nations from entrusting the solution of their differences to other tribunals by virtue of agreements already in existence or which may be concluded in the future.

THE UNITED NATIONS

Article 96

1. The General Assembly or the Security Council may request the International Court of Justice to give an advisory opinion on any legal question.

2. Other organs of the United Nations and specialized agencies, which may at any time be so authorized by the General Assembly, may also request advisory opinions of the Court on legal questions arising within the scope of their activities.

CHAPTER XV THE SECRETARIAT

Article 97

Article 98

The Secretary-General shall act in that capacity in all meetings of the General Assembly, of the Security Council, of the Economic and Social Council, and of the Trusteeship Council, and shall perform such other functions as are entrusted to him by these organs. The Secretary-General shall make an annual report to the General Assembly on the work of the Organization.

Article 99

The Secretary-General may bring to the attention of the Security Council any matter which in his opinion may threaten the maintenance of international peace and security.

Article 100

1. In the performance of their duties the Secretary-General and the staff shall not seek or receive instructions from any government or other authority external to the Organization.

2. They shall not be liable for any action taken by them in the performance of their duties.

3. They shall respect the exclusively international character of the responsibilities of the Secretary-General and the staff and not to seek to influence them in the discharge of their responsibilities.

Article 101

1. The staff shall be appointed by the Secretary-General under regulations established by the General Assembly.

2. Appropriate staffs shall be permanently assigned to the Economic and Social Council, the Trusteeship Council, and, as required, to other organs of the United Nations. These staffs shall form a part of the Secretariat.

3. The paramount consideration in the employment of the staff and in the determination of the conditions of service shall be the necessity of securing the highest standards of efficiency, competence, and integrity. Due regard shall be paid to the importance of recruiting the staff on as wide a geographical basis as possible.

CHAPTER XVI MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS

Article 102

1. Every treaty and every international agreement entered into by any Member of the United Nations after the present Charter comes into force shall as soon as possible be registered with the Secretariat and published by it.

Article 103

prevail.

Article 104

The Organization shall enjoy in the territory of each of its Members such legal capacity as may be necessary for the exercise of its functions and the fulfilment of its purposes.

Article 105

1. The Organization shall enjoy in the territory of each of its Members such privileges and immunities as are necessary for the fulfilment of its purposes.

2. Representatives of the Members of the United Nations and officials of the Organization shall similarly enjoy such privileges and immunities as are necessary for the independent exercise of their functions in connection with the Organization.

3. The General Assembly may make recommendations with a view to determining the details of the application of paragraphs 1 and 2 of this Article or may propose conventions to the Members of the United Nations for this purpose.

CHAPTER XVII TRANSITIONAL SECURITY ARRANGEMENTS

Article 106

Pending the coming into force of such special agreements referred to in Article 43, the Security Council shall Declaration, consult with one another and as occasion requires with other Members of the United Nations with a view to such joint action on behalf of the Organization as may be necessary for the purpose of maintaining international peace and security.

Article 107

Nothing in the present Charter shall invalidate or preclude action in relation to any state which during the Second World War has been an enemy of any signatory to the present Charter, taken or authorized as a result of that war by the Governments having responsibility for such action.

CHAPTER XVIII AMENDMENTS

Article 108

Amendments to the present Charter shall come into force for all Members of the United Nations when they have been adopted by a vote of two-thirds of the members of the General Assembly and ratified in accordance with their respective constitutional processes by two-thirds of the Members of the United Nations, including all the permanent members of the Security Council.

Article 109

1. A General Conference of the Members of the United Nations for the purpose of reviewing the present Charter may be held at a date and place to be fixed by a two-thirds

Track 13,686 km. (broad gauge, 1 668 metres)

The direct Madrid-Burgos railway was inaugurated in July 1968. Its length is 282 km. Sixty-two thousand million pesetas will be spent on a comprehensive modernization plan for the railways, in two stages, 1964-67 and 1968-73. A variable-axle train that can adjust from the broader Spanish gauge to the narrower European one enables passengers to travel direct between Barcelona and Geneva, and Madrid and Paris; the service started in 1969.

NARROW-GAUGE RAILWAYS

The Government also controls 1,189 km of narrow-gauge railways, which includes 17 km of 1.06 m gauge, 1.032 km of 1.00 m gauge, 21 km of 0.75 m gauge, and 109 km of 0.915 m gauge, 10 km of 1.44 m gauge. Of this total 350 km. are electrified.

The organization is the:

Ferrocarriles de Via Estrecha (F.E.V.E.): Nuevos Ministerios, Agustín de Bethencourt 4, Madrid; f. 1965; Pres. JESÚS SANTOS REIN, Dir. EUGENIO DE LA SAL CRESPO. The organization controls 21 lines.

Thirty-one of the narrow-gauge railway companies have not been nationalised, the privately owned companies retaining their individuality.

THE CONSTITUTION

The Constitution of the Kingdom of Sweden dates from 1809. Sweden is an hereditary monarchy, the Government, however, operates on a democratic and parliamentary basis. There are four fundamental laws: the Instrument of Government, the Act of Succession, the Riksdag Act and the Freedom of the Press Act.

In accordance with the balance of power established by the Constitution of 1809, the executive authority is in the hands of the King in Council, or the Government; the legislative authority is vested in the King and Riksdag (Parliament), both having an absolute veto while the right to impose taxes is the exclusive prerogative of the Riksdag. The judicial authority is vested in independent courts but appeal in the final instance may be lodged with the two Supreme Courts, which decide in the name of the King. The day-to-day administration is not carried out by the Ministries, headed by a member of the Government, but by independent Administrative Boards working under the supervision of the King in Council.

As the Riksdag has the right, through one of its Committees, to examine the records of the Cabinet and to impeach its members, it exercises a certain control over the government of the country. The King, who must be a member of the Swedish State Church (Lutheran), conducts foreign policy on the advice of the Government. On and information relating to the case. Further, all foreign agreements of importance are now submitted to the Riksdag for ratification.

Legislative measures of any importance always emanate from the Government. A bill becomes law when, after having passed through both Chambers, it receives the Royal assent. The right of amendment is used in both Chambers in regard to Government proposals as well as to private members' bills.

With regard to taxation and questions concerning the Budget generally, the Riksdag alone has the power of decision, although the King in Council has the right of initiative. If the two Chambers of the Riksdag cannot agree concerning a financial question, it is decided by a majority of votes given in a joint division. In this way the more numerous Second (Lower) Chamber is ensured a certain preponderance in financial questions. The estimates are split up into numerous items, which are voted on separately. By this means, and through the control of its auditors, the Riksdag has gained a great influence in the sphere of administration. Other institutions whereby the Riksdag exercises control over the administration are the 'Justitieombudsman' and the 'Militieombudsman' officials appointed by the Riksdag and before whom citizens may lay complaints of unjust treatment by civil or military officials. Two important financial institutions, the Bank of Sweden and the National Debt Office, are also under the immediate control of the Riksdag.

In August 1922 a new piece of constitutional machinery, the Advisory Referendum, was specially introduced with a view to its application on the question of the total prohibition of the liquor traffic. In 1954 a Bill was introduced by the Government to enable a minority of Riksdag members to initiate such a Referendum. This Bill is now under reconsideration.

In March 1967 far-reaching proposals for a reform of the Swedish Constitution were agreed upon by the four major political parties. The new proposals are intended to create a system more suitable to modern society and include the introduction of a single-chamber Riksdag with a membership of 350. General elections would be held every third year and would coincide with the municipal and county elections. These reforms have been approved by the Riksdag and the revised Constitution comes into effect on January 1st 1971.

THE RIKSDAG

The Riksdag is divided into two chambers, which in all questions have equal competence and authority. The First (Upper) Chamber has 151 members, who are elected by the County Councils (Landstingen), and in cities which are not represented in the County Councils, by the City Councils. Members are elected for a period of 8 years. There are 19 electoral areas, divided into 8 groups of which 1 each year elects members for the succeeding period of 8 years. Men or women of not less than 23 years of age and entitled to vote in municipal elections are eligible for election. The elections are conducted on a system of proportional representation. The Second (Lower) Chamber Second Chamber. Here too, the elections are conducted on a system of proportional representation.

The Chambers are presided over by Speakers, who are chosen by the Chambers themselves. There are one Speaker and two Deputy Speakers in each Chamber, who are chosen by consent so that all the leading parties are represented by at least one Speaker (in all six Speakerships are distributed among four parties).

THE COMMITTEE SYSTEM

In accordance with old tradition the work of the Swedish Riksdag is to a great extent, carried on in a non-partisan atmosphere. This is largely the result of the thorough attention given to all questions by numerous standing committees elected on a basis of proportional representation. Besides the 'Utrikesnämnden' mentioned above (the members of which also form the Standing Committee on Foreign Affairs) and Special Committees there are Standing Committees to deal with Foreign Affairs ('Utrikesutskottet', 16 members), the Constitution ('Konstitutionsutskottet', 26 members), Supply ('Statsutskottet', 30 members), Ways and Means ('Bevillingsutskottet', 20 members), the Banking ('Bankoutskottet', 10 members), Legislation ('Lagutskottet', 3 each of 16 members), Agriculture ('Jordbruksutskottet', 20 members), and Miscellaneous Affairs ('24 members). The number of members is in every case half from each Chamber.

The Constitution Committee has to examine the minutes of the Cabinet and to deal with or to initiate proposals concerning alterations of the fundamental law and of laws regulating local government. The Supply Committee, which deals with the majority of financial questions, has, through this function become the most important and most influential of the Committees.

The Committees play an important part in the Swedish Riksdag, owing among other things, to the fact that the members of both Chambers work together side by side—a feature peculiar to the Swedish Parliament. If the Chambers come to different decisions on any subject which has to be dealt with by an ordinary Committee, this body must, if possible, put forward proposals for a compromise. In order that a bill may be finally carried, it is necessary to have an identical decision from both Chambers (except on financial questions, see above).

SWEDEN

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

Sweden lies in north-west Europe, occupying half the Scandinavian peninsula. It is bordered by Finland to the north-east and Norway to the north-west and west. The Baltic Sea and the Gulf of Bothnia are to the east, the Skagerrak and Kattegat to the south-west. Winters are cold and summers mild. Average summer temperature in Stockholm is 16.9°C (61°F) and winter temperature -2.5°C (29°F). The language is Swedish. The predominant faith is Lutheran Protestantism. The flag is light blue with a yellow cross. The capital is Stockholm.

Recent History

Sweden remained neutral in the Second World War and has not joined any post-war military alliance. It has played a leading part in the United Nations and is a member of the European Free Trade Association, the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development, the Council of Europe and many other international organizations. In 1967 Sweden applied for membership of the Common Market, although no further moves have yet been made. After 23 years in office, the Prime Minister, Mr. Tag Erlander, resigned in September 1969 and was succeeded by Mr. Olof Palme. The Social Democrats have been in power since 1932, except for the period 1930-1945 when there was a coalition government. In 1969 Sweden became the first West European country to grant North Vietnam diplomatic recognition. The government's intention to provide financial aid for North Vietnam provoked an unofficial embargo on Swedish ships entering ports in the United States during the autumn of 1969.

Government

Sweden is a constitutional monarchy. The King acts through a Council of State (Statsråd), responsible to the Diet (Riksdag) or parliament. The Diet consists of two chambers elected by proportional representation. The First Chamber (Första Kammaren) has 151 members who are elected for 8 years by the County Councils (landstingen) and the Councils of six large towns (stadsfullmäktige). The Second Chamber (Andra Kammaren) has 233 members who are elected for four years by universal suffrage. In 1967 far-reaching proposals for a reform of the Swedish Constitution, including the introduction of a unicameral system, were agreed by the four major political parties. The unicameral Parliament of 350 seats will be introduced immediately after the General Elections in 1970, and a comprehensive revision of the Constitution comes into force on January 1st, 1971. The country is divided into 24 counties and Stockholm.

Defence

A Supreme Commander, under the King, is in charge of the three services, assisted by a Defence Staff. The Defence Forces comprise regular and short-term servicemen, liability to serve extending from the age of 18 to 47 for a period of 9-15 months. Total mobilized strength is about 750,000. A permanent force of 1,600 men at the disposal of the United Nations was established in 1964. Sweden's defence expenditure for the budget year 1969-70 will be the largest on record at 6,100 million kronor.

Economic Affairs

About 6 per cent of the population are employed in agriculture, forestry and fisheries. Agriculture is mainly in the southern region, the chief crops being oats, wheat, rye, barley and potatoes. Dairy produce accounts for 50 per cent of farming output. Half the country is covered by forests, providing timber, pitch, fuel and tar, and supplies for the paper and rayon industries. Sweden is rich in mineral resources. There are large deposits of iron ore, also lead, zinc, sulphur, manganese and low-grade uranium ore. Forty per cent of the population are employed in mining, manufacturing and construction. Industrial products include machinery, vehicles, electronics, telecommunications, and shipping. Swedish furniture, porcelain and glass have an international reputation. Labour relations are among the most stable in the world.

Transport and Communications

Sweden has an excellent railway system. Of the 12,148 km. of nationalized railways, almost 50 per cent is electrified. Swedish State Railways operate ferry services to Denmark and the German Democratic Republic (East Germany). Roads extend for 331,130 km. In September 1967 driving was transferred from the left to the right-hand side of the road. The ocean-going fleet totals 4,455,000 gross tons. The Swedish Airlines own a three-sevenths share in the Scandinavian consortium SAS (Scandinavian Airlines System).

Social Welfare

There is a highly advanced system of social security schemes covering old age and family pensions, sickness, unemployment and disability benefits based on a National Pension Fund. Expenditure on the social services absorbs a considerable part of the national income. In late 1969 the State took over the pharmaceutical industry as part of the socialization of the Health Scheme. A centralized computer system is being introduced, initially in Stockholm but eventually to cover the whole country, whereby complete medical records of all citizens are immediately available to doctors. Sweden is preparing a large hospital-building plan, and can already boast probably the highest ratio of hospital beds to population in the world at 80 beds per 1,000 inhabitants.

Education

Basic education, which is compulsory, extends for nine years, starting at the age of 7, and is received at a State Comprehensive School (Grundskolan). At the end of this period, the pupil may receive a further two years at a Continuation School (Fackskolan), or enter a High School (Gymnasium) of which there are three types; general, technical, and commercial. Gymnasium education lasts for three or four years, and is a necessary prerequisite for entrance to one of the five state universities or three technical universities. On reaching their fourth grade at the Compre-

In the General Election in September, 1970, the new Parliament, with only one chamber of 350 seats, will be appointed.

POLITICAL PARTIES

Socialdemokratiska Arbetarepartiet (Social Democratic Labour Party): 10560 Stockholm. The Social Democratic labour movement dates back to the 'eighties. The party has 890,000 members and 204 out of the 384 members in the Riksdag (1969). Its programme is one of socialist economic reform and support of the United Nations. Chair. OLOF PALME; Sec. STEN ANDERSSON. Publ. Tiden, Aktuell.

Folkpartiet (The Liberal Party): Ad. Fredriks Kyrkogata 12, Stockholm. The Liberal Party as a country-wide organisation was constituted in 1902. Chair. SVEN WEDÉN; Chair. in First Chamber OLLE DAHLÉN; in Second Chamber B. ÖHLIN; Political Sec. DAVID WIRMARK; Organising Sec. JENS ADOLFSSON.

Centerpartiet (The Centre Party): Bergsgatan 7B, Stockholm. Constituted in 1922, through the coalition of two smaller parties formed in 1913 and 1915 respectively. Its aim is a social and progressive development in the nation. Chair. GUNNAR HEDLUND; Sec. GUSTAF JONNERGÅRD.

Högerpartiet (Conservative Party): Stockholm, Karduansmakaregatan 9. The Party was constituted in 1904, but derives its origin from conservative tendencies during the latter part of the 19th century. The chief points in its programme are strong national defence, and in home affairs social and economic progress on traditional Swedish lines. Chair. YNGVE HOLMBERG.

Vänsterpartiet Koministerna (The Left Party (Communists)): Kungsgatan 84, Stockholm. The party was formed in 1917 as Left Social Democratic Party of Sweden, affiliated to the Communist International 1919. At the Congress in March 1921 it was renamed the Communist Party; in 1967 the party was renamed The Left Party (Communists). The policy of the Communist Party is based on the principles of Marxism; Chair. CARL-HENRIK HERMANSSON.

Kristen Demokratisk Samling—KDS (Christian Democratic Union): Rörstrandsg. 17, Box 21044, 10031 Stockholm 21. Formed in 1964 to promote emphasis on Christian values in political life. The party has about 14,000 members and 73,000 voters. Chair. BIRGER EKSTEDT. Publ. Samhällsgemenskap (monthly).

Citizens' Front was an association formed to fight the election of 1964.

JUDICIAL SYSTEM

In Sweden the judiciary and the executive are separate. Judges are appointed by the Government and cannot be removed except by judicial sentence.

There are state officers with some control over the judicial system as well as the administrative authorities. The Justitiekansler (Chancellor of Justice) and the three Justitieombudsmen supervise the general administration and the courts of law and also have powers in military matters. The Justitiekansler performs his functions on behalf of the Government. The Justitieombudsmen are appointed by and act on behalf of Parliament.

COURTS OF FIRST INSTANCE

Rådhusrätt (Borough Court): The Court of First Instance in towns. The Borough Court is, in civil cases, usually conducted by three lawyers, of whom one is often the Mayor. (Sometimes there is only one member.) In criminal cases the court consists of one judge and seven to nine jurors (in less serious cases only three). In petty cases the court consists of the judge only. In larger towns the court is often in divisions.

Häradsrätt (District Court): The Court of First Instance in the country. Small towns with no court of their own come under the District Court. The District Court is composed of one judge and seven to nine jurors. In less serious cases the number of jurors is only three and in petty cases the court consists of the judge only. In both Borough and District Courts the jurors are elected for a period of six years. They take part in decisions with the judge. The vote of the judge is decisive, except in the case of a contrary vote of seven of the jurors.

APPEAL COURTS

Hovrätt (Court of Appeal) The Court of Second Instance, consisting of a president, judges of appeal and assessors. The work is apportioned between various divisions, each of which has four or five members. There are six Courts of Appeal.

Svea Hovrätt in Stockholm; Pres S. RUDHOLM.

Göta Hovrätt in Jönköping; Pres E. ÅGVIK.

Hovrätten över Skåne och Blekinge in Malmö; Pres B. KJELLIN.

Special Courts exist for certain cases, such as Water Rights, etc.

THE OMBUDSMAN

For many years, Sweden's "Chancellor of Justice" officially protected the citizen from undue interference, negligence or errors caused by government officials. Furthermore, the ordinance of 1766 proclaimed that all documents from which government officials make their decisions were to be made public. By the beginning of the 19th century however, the Chancellor of Justice was considered not sufficiently independent of the government, and in 1809 the post of "Justitieombudsman" was created to supervise the manner in which judges, government officials and other civil servants observe the laws, and to prosecute those who act illegally, misuse their position or neglect their duties. The Ombudsman is allowed access to all documents and information and has the power to prosecute, although the latter is seldom practised as a public reprimand or criticism usually suffices. Unlike Norway or Denmark, government ministers in Sweden are not responsible to the Ombudsman. In 1941 the term of office was extended from one to four years. In 1968 there were 2,636 complaints addressed to the Ombudsman, resulting in 5 prosecutions, 9 official criticisms, 642 cases dismissed, and 577 pending judgment.

Ombudsman: ALFRED BENELIUS.

RELIGION

Svenska Kyrkan (Church of Sweden) Of the Evangelical Lutheran Faith. The State controls its property, and the King must profess the pure evangelical creed. The Church consists of 13 dioceses, 2,563 parishes which are united into 1,146 rectors' districts (pastorates), and 179 rural deaneries. The number of active clergy is 3,011 (including missionaries in the mission fields). The administrative authority of the diocese is the chapter, the president of which is the Bishop. Since 1164 the Archbishop of Uppsala has been head of the Church. The relations between the Church of Sweden and other religious denominations are regulated by the Act of Religious Freedom, 1951, publi Vår Kyrka, Svensk Kyrkohandling, Svensk Pastoraltidskrift (all weekly).

THE PRESS

The 1949 Constitutional Act relating to the freedom of the Press reaffirms Sweden's long-standing tradition of press freedom, which dates from the law of 1766, and embodies the whole of the press law in the Constitution. This Act guarantees the right to print and disseminate ideas; protects those supplying information by forbidding editors to disclose sources under any circumstances; authorizes all public documents to be publicly available, official secrets being the only exception; and contains provision for defamation. Press offences are to be referred to common law; and all cases against the Press must be heard by jury.

In response to the economic situation in the newspaper world which since the war has caused many conservative and liberal papers to cease publication, the Press Subsidies Bill was passed in 1966 to grant funds to the political parties who then distribute them to assist their own papers where they are in financial difficulties.

In 1916 the Pressens Opinionsnämnd or Fair Practices Commission was founded. Lacking judicial status, its role is like that of the U.K. Press Council, with greater powers to protect the reputation of the Press and to rehabilitate persons wronged by the Press who refuse to apply to courts of law. As the Opinionsnämnd, unlike the ordinary courts, permits evidence as to the truth or falsehood of accusations of libel, it is frequently preferred by libelled persons. It treats economic and editorial disputes, examines accusations of inaccuracy, etc. Its judgments are widely published and highly respected.

The Press serves as a major medium for political discussion, and the Conservative and Socialist press each enjoy over 20 per cent of daily circulation and the Liberal over 40 per cent. Many papers are directly owned or run by political parties or trade unions. Many party organs depend on substantial subsidies from their parties who since the Press Subsidies Bill have more funds at their disposal.

The trade unions give financial support through the intermediary of the Trade Unions Confederation to some 24 Socialist dailies of which they own approximately four-fifths. Though these papers are party organs, in close contact with the party, each editor expresses a considerable measure of independence. The Trade Union Confederation owns Aftonbladet. Affiliated trade unions publish some 25 periodical organs, with 1.6 million total circulation, including the popular Metallarbetaren (335,000).

There are no important chains of newspapers. Among the major dailies, Svenska Dagbladet is owned by an independent foundation, and Göteborgs-Posten by its editor. One of the main publishers is Bonniergroup which stems from Albert Bonnier's publishing house for books. This group also owns, among a number of enterprises in the paper and printing field, Ahlen & Åkerlunds Förlags AB whose magazines enjoy 50 per cent of the total circulation of periodicals. Bonniers is also the majority shareholder in the popular Dagens Nyheter and its associated evening paper Expressen. Four other companies account for a further 40 per cent of Sweden's magazine circulation.

The dominating influence of the few major dailies is largely confined to Stockholm, the provinces having a strong Press of their own. News coverage is tending to broaden, particularly of international news. Sensational subjects are not dramatized; divorce and suicide are hardly ever mentioned in detail.

The major dailies in order of circulation are: Expressen (weekdays 538,114), Dagens Nyheter (weekdays 440,644), Aftonbladet (weekdays 292,400), Göteborgs-Posten (weekdays 280,000), Svenska Dagbladet (162,000), Sydsvenska Dagbladet (110,222). Among the most highly respected for the serious treatment of news are Svenska Dagbladet and Göteborgs Handels- och Sjöfarts Tidning. The most popular weekly periodicals include the family magazine Äret Runt (444,000) and the Leseisfers ICA-kunren. Vi caters for serious cultural and political discussion and Bonniers Litterära Magasin specializes in literary topics.

THE UNITED NATIONS

vote of the members of the General Assembly and by a vote of any seven members of the Security Council. Each Member of the United Nations shall have one vote in the conference.

2. Any alteration of the present Charter recommended by a two-thirds vote of the conference shall take effect when ratified in accordance with their respective constitutional processes by two-thirds of the Members of the United Nations including all the permanent members of the Security Council.

3. If such a conference has not been held before the tenth annual session of the General Assembly following the coming into force of the present Charter, the proposal to call such a conference shall be placed on the agenda of that session of the General Assembly, and the conference shall be held if so decided by a majority vote of the members of the General Assembly and by a vote of any seven members of the Security Council.

CHAPTER XIX RATIFICATION AND SIGNATURE

Article 110

1. The present Charter shall be ratified by the signatory states in accordance with their respective constitutional processes.

2. The ratifications shall be deposited with the Government of the United States of America, which shall notify all the signatory states of each deposit as well as the Secretary-General of the Organization when he has been appointed.

3. The present Charter shall come into force upon the deposit of ratifications by the Republic of China, France, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, and the United States of America, and by a majority of the other signatory states. A protocol of the ratifications deposited shall thereupon be drawn up by the Government of the United States of America which shall communicate copies thereof to all the signatory states.

4. The states signatory to the present Charter which ratify it after it has come into force will become original Members of the United Nations on the date of the deposit of their respective ratifications.

Article 111

The present Charter, of which the Chinese, French, Russian, English, and Spanish texts are equally authentic, shall remain deposited in the archives of the Government of the United States of America. Duly certified copies thereof shall be transmitted by that Government to the Governments of the other signatory states.

IN FAITH WHEREOF the representatives of the Governments of the United Nations have signed the present Charter.

DONE at the city of San Francisco the twenty-sixth day of June, one thousand nine hundred and forty-five.

AMENDMENTS

The following amendments to Articles 23, 27 and 61 of the Charter came into force in August 1965.

Article 23

1. The Security Council shall consist of fifteen Members of the United Nations. The Republic of China, France, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, and the United States of America shall be permanent members of the Security Council. The General Assembly shall elect ten other Members of the United Nations to be non-permanent members of the Security Council, due regard being specially paid, in the first instance to the contribution of Members of the United Nations to the maintenance of international peace and security and to the other purposes of the Organization, and also to equitable geographical distribution.

2. The non-permanent members of the Security Council shall be elected for a term of two years. In the first election of the non-permanent members after the increase of the membership of the Security Council from eleven to fifteen, two of the four additional members shall be chosen for a term of one year. A retiring member shall not be eligible for immediate re-election.

3. Each member of the Security Council shall have one representative.

Article 27

1. Each member of the Security Council shall have one vote.

2. Decisions of the Security Council on procedural matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of nine members.

3. Decisions of the Security Council on all other matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of nine members including the concurring votes of the permanent members; provided that, in decisions under Chapter VI, and under paragraph 3 of Article 52, a party to a dispute shall abstain from voting.

Article 61

1. The Economic and Social Council shall consist of twenty-seven Members of the United Nations elected by the General Assembly.

2. Subject to the provisions of paragraph 3, nine members of the Economic and Social Council shall be elected each year for a term of three years. A retiring member shall be eligible for immediate re-election.

3. At the first election after the increase in the membership of the Economic and Social Council from eighteen to twenty-seven members, in addition to the members elected in place of the six members whose term of office expires at the end of that year, nine additional members shall be elected. Of these nine additional members, the term of office of three members so elected shall expire at the end of one year, and of three other members at the end of two years, in accordance with arrangements made by the General Assembly.

4. Each member of the Economic and Social Council shall have one representative.

The following amendment to Paragraph 1 of Article 109 of the Charter came into force in June 1968.

Article 109

1. A General Conference of the Members of the United Nations for the purpose of reviewing the present Charter may be held at a date and place to be fixed by a two-thirds vote of the members of the General Assembly and by a vote of any nine members of the Security Council. Each Member of the United Nations shall have one vote in the conference.

SWITZERLAND

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

Switzerland is a mountainous state in central Europe bounded to the north by Germany, to the east by Austria, to the south by Italy, and to the west by France. The climate is generally temperate, although wide and sudden variations in weather frequently occur due to differences of altitude, aspect and gradient. The snow line varies from about 2,500 to 3,200 metres. There are four official languages—German, French, Italian and Romansh spoken by 72.1, 20.3, 5.9 and 1 per cent of the population respectively. About 54 per cent are Protestant and 42 per cent Roman Catholic. The flag consists of a white cross on a red background. The capital is Berne.

Recent History

For centuries Switzerland has followed a policy of permanent neutrality and has long been the headquarters of many international organizations. Switzerland has not become a member of the United Nations but maintains a Permanent Observer at the H.Q. in New York. She belongs to the European Free Trade Association (EFTA) and the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD). In December 1961 she applied for Associate Membership of the European Economic Community but the application has not proceeded further. In 1903 Switzerland became a full member of the Council of Europe.

Government

The Swiss Confederation has a republican federal constitution. Parliament consists of two chambers of equal status—the Council of States and the National Council. There is female suffrage in only six of the cantonal elections, and none in the national elections. The 22 cantons enjoy much local authority, being served through cantonal councils and councils of government.

Defence

Switzerland maintains no standing army except for a small permanent personnel of commissioned and non-commissioned officers primarily concerned with training. In effect, however, every male citizen between the ages of 20 and 50, almost without exception, is a trained militia man, and keeps his weapons and uniform in his own home. The standard of training is maintained by refresher courses, the duration of which declines according to the age of the soldier. The Confederation belongs to no foreign defence organizations, and the strategy of the army and small airforce is geared to defending the mountain passes and border areas. The total strength of the armed forces when mobilized is about 644,500. The allocation for defence in the 1969 budget was 1,770 million Swiss francs.

Economic Affairs

Switzerland's chief natural resource is water power which is utilized by over 300 hydro electric plants. The country excels in precision engineering notably in the construction of clocks and watches. Machine manufacture occupies 26 per cent of the industrial labour force. Public works, building and industry depend on a large foreign labour force totalling 721,000 workers. Switzerland is a major banking centre and international transactions play a large part in its business. Agriculture is carried on mainly in the valleys, stock-raising being the principal activity. The chief crops are wheat and potatoes. Tourism is a most valuable source of income both summer and winter.

Transport and Communications

The Swiss Federal Railways (1839 miles) are wholly electrified and amongst the most efficient in the world. Over fifty small private railways cover chiefly short mountain routes. There are more than 10,500 miles of main roads. The Great St. Bernard road tunnel, under the Alps, was opened in March 1964. A small ocean-going merchant fleet is based on the Rhine port of Basle. Swissair is the national air line and Zurich and Geneva are the principal airports.

Social Welfare

All Swiss citizens are entitled to insurance against illness by the Federal Insurance Law of 1911. This insurance is not yet universally compulsory. Unemployment insurance is subsidised by the Confederation, but varies in different cantons. There is a compulsory system of old age, widows' and invalids' pensions.

Education

Education is under cantonal and communal control with the result that there are twenty five different systems in operation. Education has been compulsory for children between the ages of 7 and 14 since 1874 and in most cantons a further two years of compulsory education are required. After this primary education some 10 per cent of the pupils enter a non-vocational continuation school for a period of one to four years. The greater proportion however enter either a 'lower secondary school' or a higher secondary school (Gymnasium Collège). A school-leaving certificate from the latter qualifies the pupil for admission to one of the seven universities or the one technical university. There are numerous private schools and many foreign children receive part of their education in Switzerland.

Tourism

Switzerland is the classic land of tourism and the number of visitors continues to grow. In 1965 almost six million foreigners visited the country. The principal attractions are the lakes and lake resorts and the mountains. Walking, mountaineering and winter sports are the chief pastimes. Receipts from tourism totalled $592 million in 1965, and expenditure was $249 million.

Nationals of the following countries do not require a visa to enter Switzerland: Australia, Israel, Japan, Malaysia, New Zealand, Singapore, South Africa, Turkey, all Western European countries and all American countries.

THE CONSTITUTION

Much of what is now Switzerland once formed part of the Holy Roman Empire, but it was primarily against the oppression of local overlords, among whom were the powerful Hapsburg family, that in 1291 the communities of Uri, Schwyz, and Lower Unterwalden joined in an "everlasting league" of defence. In 1533 the confederation comprised eight cantons, and by 1573 thirteen. Throughout this period an increasing number of these cantons obtained charters which made them virtually free communities, directly responsible to the Emperor, and they finally achieved formal independence from the Empire at the close of the Thirty Years war, as the result of French influence.

French revolutionary ideas began to spread to Switzerland in 1789, by 1793 the French had intervened, revolutionized the country, and occupied the Swiss territory. So far there had been only a loose defensive alliance of cantons, but the French unified the country under the title of the Helvetic Republic, and imposed a written constitution. The new régime was bitterly resented, and the country was disunited. Later, when it was in France's interests to have a settled and friendly Switzerland, Napoleon withdrew the occupation forces, and by the 1803 Act of Mediation granted a new Constitution with the approval of most Swiss.

In 1815 the Congress of Vienna recognized the perpetual neutrality of Switzerland, and three new cantons were admitted into the Confederation, bringing the total number to twenty-two. Since then the boundaries have remained almost unchanged.

After the Act of Mediation followed an unsettled period of adjustment in their newly-achieved unity, culminating in the Federal Constitution of 1848—the first Constitution to be formulated entirely without foreign influence. This was succeeded by the Constitution of 1874 which, with modifications, is in force today, and completes the development of Switzerland from a group of cantons linked by a simple defensive alliance, to a unified Federal State.

The twenty-two federated Cantons (often referred to as the twenty-five States, because three of the Cantons are sub-divided), have sovereign authority over their own life save where the detailed constitutional pact has expressly limited them, and all undelegated powers are theirs. Cantonal feeling still makes for marked disapproval of any increase in Federal authority, which has been greatly extended since 1874 in the economic and social spheres of legislation.

Principally, the Federal authority is responsible for legislation on civil, penal and commercial law, marriage, residence and settlement, export and import duties, defence, railroads and important roads and bridges, social insurance, and international affairs. Administration is largely in the hands of the Cantons, partly in the mixed management of Federal authorities and Cantons, and some is entirely in the hands of the Confederational authority. The Cantons derive their revenue from direct taxation. The Federal authority draws its revenue mainly from indirect taxation. The setting up of permanent Federal direct taxation was for many years a very controversial subject, but at present the Federal authority derives a large part of its income from direct taxation.

FOUR MAIN INSTITUTIONS

The life of the Federal authority revolves round four institutions: a Bicameral Legislature, the Federal Assembly, the Executive, the Federal Council, the Federal Court and the Federal Insurance Court; and the Direct Popular Vote of the People.

The Assembly is composed of a Council of States representing the Cantons, each of which has, equally, its two representatives elected for varying periods at the discretion of each Canton; and the National Council, the Lower House, composed of 200 paid members elected (since 1918) by proportional representation, by males of twenty and over, for a four-year period. In December 1938 a law giving the vote to women in Federal matters was passed by the National Council and the Council of States, but the motion was defeated in a national referendum of electors held in February 1950. Nevertheless, since then four Cantons have given the vote to women in Cantonal affairs, Vaud, Neuchâtel, Geneva, and Basle.

The Councils are co-equal in authority by simple machinery both agree, as constitutionally required, on legislation prepared for their consideration by a Committee system. In Joint Session (as the Federal Assembly) these Councils elect, after each general election, the Federal Council of seven, the directive and executive authority of the Confederation. Of this the members are customarily re-elected so long as they will serve, and one is each year designated by the Assembly as Chairman or President and another as Vice-President, who customarily becomes next year's President. The President is rather the servant than the master of the Council, which is responsible for every action in the legislature. A Civil Service, recruited upon proven merit, which includes the employees of the State Railways, serves the Federal authority. The Chancellor, appointed by the Assembly every four years, is the Federal stenographic and publication agent.

REFERENDUM AND INITIATIVE

A Referendum is obligatory for constitutional amendments passed by the Assembly, and for their ratification a majority of the voters and the Cantons must assent. Since 1874 a number of amendments have been thus accepted. There may be an initiative petition for constitutional amendments offered by at least 50,000 voters; here again acceptance is dependent upon a majority of voters and Cantons. Of sixty-seven offered between 1874 and 1958, seven were accepted. Lastly, there is the Optional or Facultative Referendum for federal legislation—and since 1921 for International Treaties included for a period exceeding 15 years—at the request of 30,000 voters or eight Cantons. Between 1874 and the end of 1958, of 708 laws passed by the Assembly, sixty-three were submitted, of which thirty-eight were rejected. Between 40 per cent and 70 per cent of the electorate participates in the referenda poll, though in the poll defeating the so-called Capital Levy initiative in 1922, 86 per cent voted.

AFRICAN DEVELOPMENT BANK of goods and services abroad by the Société Ivoirienne d'Engrais (SIVENG) for the establishment of a fertilizer factory in the Ivory Coast.

The Bank is currently processing a large number of requests from its member countries and is also undertaking pre-investment studies, some of them in co-operation with the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP).

A Pre-Investment Unit has been established within the Bank. For the purpose of identification, evaluation and preparation of projects in member countries the UNDP is to provide $2.7 million and the Bank $2.2 million over a five-year period. A co-ordinating committee for the identification of multinational projects in the field of power, transport and telecommunications has been established with ECA, IBRD and UNDP under the chairmanship of the African Development Bank. The Bank has entered into an agreement of co-operation with FAO and UNESCO and it is now in the process of establishing formal working relationship and co-operation with other specialized agencies of the United Nations. It is one of the executing agencies for UNDP projects in Africa.

In order to increase its capital resources and raise money for lending at concessionary terms, the Bank has promoted the establishment of an African Development Fund, a special fund within the meaning of its Agreement. Contributions to the proposed fund are open to industrialized countries. From the contacts already made, very promising reactions have been received.

Other activities of the Bank are in the field of co-operation with national finance institutions, by joint financing of projects, equity participation in national finance institutions by the Bank, joint financing and appraisal of projects and the granting of technical assistance.

The Bank is participating in a study regarding possible economic co-operation between Ghana and its neighbours, the Entente States, which would assist the promotion of trade between the six countries and also facilitate the establishment of larger industries which for their economic viability need a large market.

In association with UN, the Bank has also undertaken a survey on tourism in fourteen West African countries.

ANZUS TREATY

The Security Treaty (ANZUS Pact) was signed in San Francisco in 1951 to co-ordinate defence as the first step to a more comprehensive system of regional security in the Pacific. This system was developed further in 1954 with the formation of SEATO.

MEMBERS

Australia

U.S.A.

ORGANIZATION

ANZUS COUNCIL

The ANZUS Council consists of the Foreign Ministers (or their Deputies) of the three signatory powers, and can meet at any time.

There is no permanent staff, and costs are borne by the Government in whose territory the meeting is held. The instruments of ratification are deposited with the Government of Australia, Canberra.

MILITARY REPRESENTATIVES

Each of the signatories nominates a Military Representative accredited to the Council.

The functions of the Military Representatives are to advise the Council on problems of military co-operation in the Pacific. They attend the annual Council meetings, and also meet periodically as required by circumstances. There is no fixed venue for meetings of the Military Representatives.

SECURITY TREATY

(Between Australia, New Zealand and the U.S.A.)

The parties to this treaty reaffirming their faith in the purposes and principles of the UN Charter and their desire to live in peace with all peoples and Governments, and desiring to strengthen the fabric of peace in the Pacific area, noting that the United States already has arrangements pursuant to which its armed forces are stationed in the Philippines, and has armed forces and administrative responsibilities in the Pacific area, recognizing that Australia and New Zealand, as members of the British Commonwealth of Nations, have military obligations outside as well as within the Pacific area, desiring to declare publicly and formally their sense of unity, so that no potential aggressor could be under the illusion that any of them stand alone in the Pacific area; and desiring further to co-ordinate their efforts for collective defence for the preservation of peace and security pending the development of a more comprehensive system of regional security in the Pacific area, declare and agree as follows

Article 1

The parties undertake, in conformity with the UN Charter, to settle by peaceful means any international disputes in which they might be involved, and to refrain in their international relations from the use of force in any manner inconsistent with the purposes of the United Nations.

Article 2

In order more effectively to achieve the objectives of the treaty, the parties will maintain and develop their individual and collective capacity to resist armed attack "by means of continuous self-help and mutual aid."

Article 3

The parties will consult together when, in the opinion of any one of them, the territorial integrity, political independence, or security of any one of them is threatened in the Pacific.

FINANCE

(cap. = capital; p.u. = paid up; dep. = deposits; m. = million; all values are in Swiss francs)

Switzerland's importance as a financial centre stems from many historical and geographical factors. It is a small nation with scant natural resources situated in the centre of Europe. It has always been necessary for the Swiss to depend on their shrewdness and their relations with foreigners for their livelihood. This is facilitated by cen-

Protestant Ethic which in its busy urbanity, honesty, thrift, and "worldly Puritanism" is accepted by sociologists as the basis of the modern business ethic. Furthermore, the natural tolerance and independence of the Swiss, reflected in the political structure of their country, are liberal attributes also associated amongst other things with the growth of modern capitalism.

Banking was introduced to Switzerland in the seventeenth century by refugee French Protestants, and in the middle of the eighteenth century the Government of Zurich created a bank which invested capital abroad. It was not, however, until 1850 that the "Swiss Credit Bank", based on the French "Credit Mobilier", made its appearance as the first Swiss bank of any size.

The First World War and the political and economic upheavals which followed gave Switzerland the reputation

Account does not mean that Swiss banks accept anonymous clients, the contrary is the case. The significance of the number is that even the existence of a client's account is kept secret from external enquiries. Swiss banks act in accordance with Swiss Law which demands the revelation of accounts only in certain cases, the requirements of foreign governments wishing to uncover facts about the suits regarding taxation or legal proceedings before a Court of Appeal.

At present Switzerland has 4,300 banks, of which 430 are classified in seven categories: Cantonal Banks, Big Banks, Local Banks, Savings Banks, Loan Associations, Private Banks and Other Banks. The five "Big Banks" own about thirty-five per cent of the admitted assets of Swiss banking and are the mainstay of the Swiss financial system.

lished and the private banker is responsible to the extent of his personal fortune, much of the private bank's money comes from abroad and is re-invested outside Switzerland.

The Swiss National Bank was created in 1906 and obtained a monopoly of the issue of bank notes in 1910. It has remained a private concern with 50 per cent of its shares held by other banks and 50 per cent by private shareholders. Since 1961 all banks are examined by the Swiss National Bank and must fulfil rigid liquidity and capital requirements. A new law regulating mutual funds was passed in 1967 by which control was introduced to correct unsound developments which had taken place in this sector. Foreign mutual funds which sell their shares in Switzerland now require a Swiss representative bank and must conform to the demands of the new law.

Linked with banking is the insurance sector, which is an integral and vital element in the Swiss financial structure. It collects some 10,000 million Sw. francs annually in premiums and contributions, to which a considerable income from its substantial international activities must be added. Financial and industrial holding companies have quadrupled in the last 12 years and their capital now amounts to some 8,000 million Sw. francs. The Zurich Stock Exchange ranks as one of the most important in Europe in terms of value and total transactions. Foreign securities, particularly American, represent more than 25 per cent of the approximately 1,000 issues quoted, a proportion which is probably not exceeded by any other market.

BANKING

NATIONAL BANK

Banque Nationale Suisse: Central Bank, 1906 in virtue of a Federal Law of October 6th, 1905, replaced by Federal Laws of April 7th, 1921, and December 23rd 1953, commenced operations in 1907. Head Offices Zurich and Berne, brs at Aarau, Basle, Geneva, Lausanne, Lucerne, Lugano, Neuchâtel, St. Gall, numerous agencies in Swiss towns. The object of the bank is to "regulate the circulation of currency and to facilitate the operations of payment." It further guarantees the service of the Federal Treasury. The General Management is composed of three depts., of which two, the first and the third (discount, foreign currency, advances on securities and control), are at Zurich. The second dept. (issue of notes, management of metal reserves, relations with Federal Administration and treasury) is at Berne. Cap. subs. 50,000,000 frs; p.u. 25,000,000 frs. Pres. of Council Dr. B. GALLI, Vice-Pres. Prof. Dr. P. JAOSI, General Management, Dr. E. STOPPER (Pres., Zurich), A. HAY (Vice-Pres., Berne), Dr. M. IKLE (Zurich).

* The two Councils of the Federal Assembly meet in joint session after a general election to elect the Federal Council, or cabinet, of seven members.

THE REFERENDUM

The Referendum or Direct Popular Vote of the People forms an important part of the Swiss Constitution. It is obligatory for constitutional amendments passed by the Assembly.

THE CANTONS

There are twenty-two cantons, three being subdivided into half-cantons; each canton and half-canton has a body elected by universal suffrage—der Grosse Rat or Kantonsrat—which exercises the functions of a parliament. Membership of the cantonal government varies from five to eleven, and the terms of office from one to five years. The Referendum is used in all but three of the cantonal governments; all laws and concordats or agreements with the other cantons, important financial matters, and revisions of the Constitution, must be submitted to the popular vote. In Appenzell, Glarus and Unterwalden assemblies of all male citizens, known as Landsgemeinden, exercise their powers direct. The cantons are: Zürich, Bern (Berne), Luzern (Lucerne), Uri, Schwyz, Upper and Lower Unterwalden, Glarus (Glaris), Zug (Zoug), Fribourg (Freiburg), Solothurn (Soleure), Basel (Bâle—town and country), Schaffhausen (Schaffhouse), Appenzell (Outer and Inner Rhoden), St. Gallen (Saint-Gall), Graubünden (Grisons), Aargau (Argovie), Thurgau (Thurgovie), Ticino (Tessin), Vaud (Waadt), Valais (Wallis), Neuchâtel (Neuenburg), Genève (Genf).

(The name of the canton is given in French, German or Italian, according to the language spoken there; alternative names are in brackets.)

POLITICAL PARTIES

Radikal-Demokratische Partei (Freisinnig-demokratische Partei (Radical-Democratic Party)) led the movement which gave rise to the Federative State and the Constitution of 1848, and soon became the dominant group in the Federal Assembly. Up to 1919, when Proportional Representation was introduced, it always had an in tendency

President HENRI SCHMITT (Geneva), Secretary H. R. LEUENBERGER, Bundesplatz 2, Berne, Leader of Parliamentary Group ALFRED WEBER (Altdorf).

Konservativ-christlichsoziale Volkspartei der Schweiz (Conservative and Christian Social Party of Switzerland) Postfach 1759, CH-3001 Berne, formed 1912 by those parties which had, since 1848, opposed centralization plans, and the Kulturkampf of the Radical Majority Party. The bases of its policy are a Christian outlook on world affairs, federalism and Christian social reform by means of professional associations. It is, as its name shows, no sectarian party. Catholics and Protestants adhere to it. It is composed of peasants, Christian workers and middle-class professional people. It forms the most numerous parliamentary group in the Council of the States.

President, Dr. F. J. KURMAN, National Councillor, Secretary, Dr. MARTIN ROSENBERG, Sulgenheimweg 3, Berne, Leader of Parliamentary Group, Dr. KURT FURGLER, National Councillor (Saint-Gall).

Sozialdemokratische Partei der Schweiz (Socialist Party) f. 1870, bases its policy on democratic socialism and collaborates with all political parties sharing the same principles. Its influence dates mainly from the introduction of Proportional Representation in 1919.

Chairman FRITZ GRÜTTER (Berne), Secretaries: RICHARD MÜLLER, JEAN RIESSEN, MASCHA OETTLI, Eigerplatz 5, Berne; Leader of Parliamentary Group: Dr. EDMUND WYSS, National Councillor (Basle).

Bauern, Gewerbe und Bürger Partei (Peasants, Artisans and Middle Class Party): seceded from the Radical Party in 1919. It is chiefly distinguishable from it by more strongly marked agrarian and liberal social tendencies. It must be considered as a governmental party.

President HANS CONZETT, Secretary PETER SCHMID, Optingenstrasse 1, Berne, Leader of Parliamentary Group HANS TSCHANZ, National Councillor (Gross-Hochstetten).

Union libérale-démocratique suisse-Liberal-demokratische Union der Schweiz (Liberal-Democratic Party): is recruited from those elements in the Protestant statist tendencies.

President PETER DÜRRENMATT, National Councillor (Basle); Leader of Parliamentary Group GASTON CLOTTU (Neuchâtel), Secretary G. DUPLAIN, Hochfeldstr. 63, Berne.

JUDICIAL SYSTEM

Switzerland has possessed a common Civil Code since 1912, but the Penal Code was only unified in 1942. Under the Code capital punishment was abolished by the few Cantons which still retained it. The individual Cantons continue to elect and maintain their own magistracy, and retain certain variations in procedure. The following describes the Penal and Civil Procedure in the Canton of Zürich, but is similar to procedure in the more important Cantons.

CIVIL LAW

(a) District Courts (Bezirksgerichte).

Presidents or Vice-Presidents, who generally have a university degree in law, are competent as sole judges (Einzelrichter) if the value of the case is between 100 and 1,000 frs. (values below 100 frs. are decided without appeal by the judges of peace, who need not be lawyers—normally there is one for each commune). The Presidents or Vice-Presidents also deal with specified claims in bankruptcy proceedings without any limitation of the importance of the case; they are also competent to deal in summary and ex-parte proceedings.

The District Courts consist of three or five members. They settle civil matters between 1,000 frs. and 2,000 frs. value, and decide most other civil matters in the first instance if the plaintiff or both parties do not ask for an exception (see below for commercial matters and cases of over frs. 4,000 value).

(b) Appeal Court (Obergericht).

Each Canton has an Appeal Court, which in Zürich consists of different specialized benches (Kammern) of three or five members.

The Appeal Court decides cases of more than 2,000 frs. value. If both parties agree, cases of more than 4,000 frs. value may be brought directly before the Appeal Court to avoid District Courts.

A sub-branch of the Appeal Court is the Commercial Court. It consists of two members of the Appeal Court and three or five qualified merchants chosen by the President for each case from a list of fifty names. They decide cases of more than 4,000 frs. value if of a commercial character, when either both parties or the defendant are registered merchants. Further, this Court decides some special matters like patents and trade marks.

(c) Cassation Court

This is a special Cantonal Court principally deciding questions of procedure, or reviewing opinions clearly contrary to law and remanding such cases to the Appeal Court.

(d) Federal Court

In matters of Federal Law the Federal Court gives final decisions in cases of more than 8,000 frs. value, or upon request of both parties it sits as a court of exclusive jurisdiction in cases of more than 20,000 frs. value. It consists of five members (two benches).

PENAL LAW

Matters of Penal Law are decided partly by the same courts as matters of Civil Law.

In the Canton of Zürich, the more important cases are tried by the Jury Court (Schwurgericht) when the accused pleads "not guilty", by the Appeal Court when the plea is "guilty". The Jury Court consists of three judges, of whom at least the President is a member of the Appeal Court, and a jury of twelve members. The jury considers its verdict in secret session. If the decision is "guilty" the three judges must pass a sentence based on the jury verdict, and no explanation of this verdict is given.

Less important cases are tried by the District Courts, or their Presidents, in the first instance, and by the Appeal Court in the second instance. In certain minor cases, no appeal is possible.

The Public Attorney has the right to support the written accusation before any court. He is bound to assist only in important cases when the accused pleads "not guilty".

Witnesses and experts are examined by the Public Attorney and sign written statements, which are joined to the written accusation of the Public Attorney. The defence is allowed to question them; they are seldom called again. As a rule, they appear in person only before Jury Courts and make their deposition a second time.

The Federal Court only acts as instance of cassation in matters of Federal Law which do not include the proceeding or the appreciation of facts or proofs. It does also sit as a court of exclusive jurisdiction in certain important cases (see below).

THE FEDERAL TRIBUNAL

CH-1000 Lausanne 14.

President: SILVIO GIOVANOLI.

Vice-President: PAUL SCHWARTZ.

The Federal Tribunal (or Tribunal fédéral), consisting of 30 members, sits at Lausanne. There are 12-15 supplementary judges. Both judges and supplementary judges are appointed by the Federal Assembly for six years, and may be re-elected. The President and Vice-President are elected for two years and, as such, as are not eligible for re-election.

The Tribunal exercises final jurisdiction in suits between the Confederation and Cantons, corporations and individuals (see above), and between Cantons. It is the Court of Appeal against decisions of certain federal authorities, or Cantonal authorities applying federal law. It also tries individuals for offences against the Confederation, and decides complaints concerning violation of the Constitution. The Tribunal consists of the following sections:

- (a) Court of Public and Administrative Law (Cour de Droit Public et de Droit Administratif).
- (b) Two Civil Courts (Cours Civiles).
- (c) Bankruptcy Court (Chambre des Poursuites et des Faillites).
- (d) Court of Penal Cassation (Cour de Cassation Pénale).
- (e) Court of Arraignment (Chambre d'Accusation).
- (f) Criminal Court (Chambre Criminelle).
- (g) Federal Penal Court (Cour Pénale Fédérale).

THE PRESS

Freedom of the press in Switzerland is guaranteed by Article 55 of the amended 1874 Constitution, and the only formal restrictions on the press are the legal restraints concerned with abuses of this freedom. The most contentious issue relating to press freedom in recent years has been the right of journalists to refuse to reveal their sources of information, and the issue has only recently been resolved by the enactment, in October 1968, of a federal law designed to protect this right, except in cases where the security of the state is involved.

Press freedom in Switzerland is among the greatest in the world. The political system, based on cantonal and communal autonomy, the cultural diversity, emphasized by the existence of four languages, and the low illiteracy rate of under 2 per cent have facilitated the existence of nearly 500 newspapers serving a population of only 2.5 million.

Printed journals, more than half the press still supports a particular political party. Another feature of most Swiss papers, resulting from the strength and importance of local politics, is the attention given to local news, even by a paper of international importance like the Neue Zürcher Zeitung.

Feuille d'Avis de Lausanne, dating from 1762, is the oldest newspaper in Switzerland.

Illustrations, carry an exceptionally high proportion of foreign news, and have an influential readership abroad.

ROADS

There are more than 10,500 miles of main roads. In 1958 Federal authority was extended to cover national roads and a programme to build a network of autobahns was launched. The first stage, due for completion in 1969, envisaged the construction of 500 miles of main roads at an estimated cost of 3,000,000,000 frs. The second stage is estimated to cost 900,000,000 frs. and is scheduled to start in 1970. A motorway was opened in 1964 between Geneva and Lausanne.

TURKEY

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

The Republic of Turkey links Europe and Asia at the Straits of the Bosphorus between the Black Sea and the Mediterranean. Most of Turkey lies in Asia, the vast Anatolian peninsula being bordered to the east by the U.S.S.R. and Iran and to the south by Iraq and Syria. The small European part of the country abuts on Greece and Bulgaria. In the Asian interior the climate is one of great extremes. On the Mediterranean coast it is more equable with mild winters and warm summers. The language is Turkish, Kurdish and Arabic being spoken along the frontiers of Iraq and Syria. In 1928 the Arabic characters of the written language were superseded by Western-style script. Islam is the religion of 98.2 per cent of the population. The flag consists of a white crescent and star on a red background. The capital is Ankara.

Recent History

In 1908 the Young Turks seized power from Sultan Abdul-Hamid II and attempted a series of liberal reforms. Internal dissension and wars culminating in the First World War led to the fall of the Young Turk leaders, and in 1919 a new government was formed subservient to the occupying allied powers. Mustafa Kemal (Atatürk) convened the first Nationalist Congress later that year, and in 1932 a series of brilliant military successes led to the expulsion of the Sultan. The Republic of Turkey was declared in 1923. Kemal Atatürk carried through far-reaching reforms including the formation of a democratic Parliament in 1924 and the secularization of the state in 1928. After his death in 1938 İsmet İnönü succeeded Atatürk as President, remaining in this post until 1950, when a Democratic Party government was formed by Adnan Menderes, and Celâl Bayar became President.

During the post-war years Turkey has aligned herself firmly with the West, joining the Council of Europe, NATO and CENTO (Central Treaty Organization). In 1960 the government was overthrown by a coup d'état and the administration taken over by a military junta. The Prime Minister, the Foreign Minister and the Minister of Finance were found guilty of violating the Constitution and were executed. In 1961 a new constitution was adopted and the restoration of civil power began. In September 1963 Turkey concluded an Agreement of Pre-Association with the European Economic Community (the Common Market) which ended in 1969, negotiations have opened for full Association. Turkey also forms part of the Regional Cooperation for Development (RCD) with Iran and Pakistan. Elections in 1965 and 1969 returned a Justice Party Government led by Süleyman Demirel, however, his ministry resigned in February 1970 due to right-wing dissent within the party.

Government

Turkey is a Democratic Republic, with elections by universal suffrage held normally every four years. The President, as Head of State, is elected by the Grand National Assembly for seven years. The President appoints the Prime Minister, giving full consideration to the Party with the majority. The Prime Minister appoints the Council of Ministers. The President has the power of veto but can be overruled by a majority decision of the Assembly.

Defence

Military service in the army lasts for two years and for three years in the navy. Armed Forces number about 500,000, comprising 400,000 Army, 40,000 Navy and 43,000 Air Force. There are 20,000 in the Gendarmerie and 30,000 in the National Guard. Total mobilization could produce an estimated two million. Defence expenditure in 1966-70 amounted to almost £15,000 million (about 5 per cent of the national income).

Economic Affairs

Turkey is predominantly an agricultural country but much of the land is mountainous and barren. Grain is cultivated in nine-tenths of cultivated areas and wheat is the main crop. The Central Anatolian Plateau is the main wheat-producing area. Barley, rye, oats, maize and rice are also grown. Excellent tobacco is grown on the Aegean coast, in the Black Sea area and in the Marmara-Thrace region. Cotton is grown on the rich Cilician Plain (Çukurova). Coastal areas produce vines, figs, olives and nuts. Turkey is the world's second largest producer of sultana raisins. Sheep and cattle are raised on the Anatolian Plateau and Turkey is the world's second largest producer of mohair. State monopolies run the manufacture of tobacco, wines, spirits, liqueurs, beer, salt and tea. In 1963 growth of the opium poppy was forbidden by government decree.

There are deposits of iron ore, chrome and copper. Oil wells in the south-east produced over 3 million tons of crude oil in 1963. There is a refining capacity of 4.8 million tons a year. The chief industries are iron and steel, textiles, sugar and cement. Several foreign car manufacturers have plants in Turkey. Hydro-electric power has been substantially developed under the five-year plan. The Keban Dam on the Euphrates when completed in 1972 will have a generating power of 1,240,000 kW.

A five-year Development Plan, which called for an annual investment of 18 per cent of the Gross National Product, was formulated in 1963. The principal investments were made in modernizing agriculture, raising yields and teaching modern techniques. A further five-year plan to cover the years 1968-72, which was drafted in 1967, calls for an annual investment of 20.5 per cent of the Gross National Product. The rate of growth of the gross national product reached 6.6 per cent (7 per cent was envisaged by the Plan). At the end of November 1969, the gold and foreign exchange reserves stood at £12,087 million, a rise of £11,044 million compared with 1968. In July 1969, the IMF granted Turkey a twelve months' stand-by credit of $7 million, of which $10 million had been drawn by January 1970.

TURKEY—(INTRODUCTORY SURVEY)

Transport and Communications

The length of railway track is 8,000 km. A rail link with Iran is under construction with CENTO funds. Roads are gradually being improved and new roads are under construction. The total length of all-weather roads is estimated at 73,500 km. (1967). In 1968 a ten-year programme to improve roads in Eastern Turkey was announced, and the 3,300-mile-long road link which is being built within the framework of the Regional Co-operation for Development Organization, between Ankara and Karachi, is expected to be completed in 1972. The Turkish State Seaways, a state corporation, operates passenger and cargo lines with a fleet of 66 ships of 314,000 tons. Turkish Airlines have an internal air service and flights to Athens, Beirut, London, Frankfurt, Munich and Rome.

Social Welfare

Social insurance for wage-earners is provided by the Workers' Social Institution of the Ministry of Labour. It is planned to extend socialized health services to the whole population by the end of 1970.

Education

Education has made big advances in Turkey since before the war. Although literacy is now estimated at 65 per cent in towns, it is still much lower in the villages. Education is compulsory and free between the ages of 7 and 12. All state education up to University or Higher Institute level is co-educational and free. The number of primary schools has risen to 34,914, compared with 12,511 in 1950, and in 1968-69, 4,900,000 children were attending primary schools. The six years of secondary education are divided into two stages. The Middle School period lasts for three years and all students take a state examination, completion of which entitles them to enter upon a vocational course or to proceed to the Lycées for a further three years. A state matriculation examination must be passed by those students wishing to proceed to University or to an Institute of Higher Education. There are eight universities. Budget expenditure for education was set at £T3,924 million for 1968-69.

Tourism

The ancient city of Istanbul (Constantinople) on the Bosphorus with its vast historic mosques is the chief tourist attraction of Turkey. Visitors also go to see Izmir on the Aegean and the old towns of Konya and Bursa. Turkey has many ancient sites including Troy (near Çanakkale) and Boğazköy, the ancient Hittite capital. Tourism is being stimulated by the Government, and in 1963 much of the eastern part of the country was opened to tourists for the first time since the war. Higher exchange rates for tourists have been introduced. Over 602,000 tourists visited Turkey in 1969.

Visas are not required by nationals of the following countries: Austria, Belgium, Denmark, Finland, France, German Federal Republic, Iceland, Iran, Ireland, Italy, Japan, Liechtenstein, Luxembourg, Monaco, Morocco, Netherlands, Norway, Pakistan, Portugal, Romania, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, Tunisia, United Kingdom and Commonwealth, United States and Yugoslavia.

Sport

Wrestling is a much practised sport and football is the most popular team game.

ANZUS TREATY

Article 4

"Each party recognizes that an armed attack in the Pacific area on any of the other parties would be dangerous to its own peace and safety, and declares that it will act to meet the common danger in accordance with its constitutional processes." Any such attack, and all measures taken as a result of such attack will be reported to the UN Security Council. Such measures will be terminated when the Security Council has taken the necessary steps to restore and maintain international peace and security.

Article 5

For the purpose of Article 4, an armed attack on any of the three countries will be deemed to include "an armed attack on the metropolitan territory of any of the parties, or on the island territories under its jurisdiction in the Pacific, or on its armed forces, public vessels, or aircraft in the Pacific".

Article 6

The treaty will not affect the rights and obligations of the three countries under the UN Charter, or the responsibility of the United Nations for the maintenance of international peace and security.

Article 7

The three countries will establish a Council, consisting of their Foreign Ministers or deputies, to consider matters concerning the implementation of the treaty. The Council will be organized as to be able to meet at any time.

Article 8

Pending the development of a more comprehensive regional security system in the Pacific, and the development by the UN of more effective means to maintain international peace and security, the Council established under Article 7 will maintain a consultative relationship with States, regional organizations, associations of States, and other authorities in the Pacific area which are in a position to further the purpose of the treaty and contribute to the security of the area.

Article 9

The Treaty is to be ratified by the parties in accordance with their respective constitutional processes. The instruments of ratification are to be deposited with the Australian Government.

Article 10

The Treaty is to remain in force indefinitely. Any party may cease to be a member of the Council established by Article 7 one year after notice has been given to the Government of Australia, which will inform the Governments of the other parties.

National Action Party (M.H.P.): Ankara, f 1954, Leader Col ALPARSLAN TÜRKES, secularist and nationalist, seeks progressive reform

Union Party: Ankara, f 1968, Conservative, supported by members of the Alevi religious sect

JUDICIAL SYSTEM

Until the foundation of the new Turkish Republic, a large part of the Turkish civil law—the laws affecting the family, inheritance, property, obligations, etc.—was based on the Koran, and this holy law was administered by special religious (Sharia) courts. The legal reform of 1926 was not only a process of secularization, but also a root-and-branch change of the legal system. The Swiss Civil Code and the Code of Obligation, the Italian Penal Code, and the Neuchâtel (Cantonal) Code of Civil Procedure were adopted and modified to fit Turkish customs and traditions

Court of Cassation: The court of the last instance for reviewing the decisions and verdicts rendered by courts of law. It has original and final jurisdiction in specific cases defined by law. Members are elected by the Supreme Council of Judges

Council of State: An administrative court of the first instance in matters not referred by law to other administrative courts, and an administrative court of the last instance in general. Hears and settles administrative disputes and expresses opinions on draft laws submitted by the Council of Ministers

Military Court of Cassation: A court of the last instance to review decisions and verdicts rendered by military courts

Court of Jurisdictional Disputes: Settles disputes among civil, administrative and military courts arising from disagreements on jurisdictional matters and verdicts

Supreme Council of Judges: Consists of eighteen regular and five alternate members. Decides all personnel matters relating to judges

Constitutional Court: Consists of fifteen regular and five alternate members. Reviews the constitutionality of laws passed by the Turkish Grand National Assembly. Sits as a High Council empowered to try senior members of state. The rulings of the Constitutional Court are final. Decisions of the Court are published immediately in the Official Gazette, and shall be binding on the legislative, executive, and judicial organs of the State

Public Prosecutor: The law shall make provision for the tenure of public prosecutors and attorneys of the Council of State and their functions

The Chief Prosecutor of the Republic, the Chief Attorney of the Council of State and the Chief Prosecutor of the Military Court of Cassation are subject to the provisions applicable to judges of higher courts

Military Trial: Military trials conducted by military and disciplinary courts. These courts are entitled to try the military offences of military personnel and those offences committed against military personnel or in military areas, or offences connected with military service and duties. Military courts may try non-military persons only for military offences prescribed by special laws

Independence of Courts: Judges shall be independent in the discharge of their duties. They shall pass judgment in accordance with the Constitution, law, justice and their personal convictions. No organ, office, agency or individual may give orders or instructions to courts or judges in connection with the discharge of their judicial duty, send them circulars, or make recommendations or suggestions

No questions may be raised, debates held, or statements issued in legislative bodies in connection with the discharge of judicial power concerning a case on trial. Legislative, executive organs, and the administration are under obligation to comply with ruling of the courts. Such organs and the administration shall in no manner whatsoever alter court rulings or delay their execution

MUSLIMS

Diyane İşleri Reisliği (Head of the Muslim Faith in Turkey): ALI RIZA HAKSES

Over 98 per cent of the Turkish people are Muslims, mainly of the Sunni rite. Under the Republic, from 1923 onwards, action was taken to reduce the influence of religion on state affairs, e.g., its association with the schools was curtailed, mosques and churches were sometimes closed and facilities denied to their adherents, both Muslim and Christian. The Muslim faith was also disestablished. After 1950 there was a change, and religious life was to a certain extent revived. The 1960 revolution is trying to bring about a return to the more secular republic of Ataturk.

NON-MUSLIMS

Mainly Greek Orthodox, Armenian Christians and Jews

THE

Under the Constitution of 1961, "the press is free within the limits of the law". Provision is made for recourse to a constitutional court in issues involving laws affecting the Press.

Following the Revolution of 1960 and the new Constitution, which also introduced a measure of protection for editors, came the Law for Preventive Measures of March 1962. This law provided penalties of imprisonment with forced labour for persons criticizing the 1960 Revolution or for defending the pre-1960 or pre-Atatürk régimes, or suggesting that Turkey is unable to thrive as a democracy.

As well as these items of legislation there are a number of articles in the Penal Code, some traceable back to Mussolini's fascist code, which sometimes affect the Press very harshly. Political offences affecting the Press and the protection of the State and civil order are treated in Articles 141 and 142, the latter providing penalties of up to 15 years imprisonment for Communist propaganda. Articles 158 and 159 penalize defamation of the President of the Republic, the nation and institutions such as the army, parliament and the courts.

The liberal conditions which followed the Revolution led to abuses. In the attempt to develop greater responsibility and self-discipline within the Press, the Press Council or Court of Honour was founded in 1960. Composed of publishers, journalists and private individuals, it censure those violating the voluntary Code of Ethics adopted by editors and owners. Lacking legal power, the Court has the disadvantage of depending on the support of newspaper membership, which may be withdrawn by editors seeking to avoid the Court's moral sanctions.

A stronger incentive of self-discipline was provided in 1961 by the Board of Official Announcements which

The Central Bank of the Republic of Turkey was originally founded in 1931, and constituted in its present form after the revolution of 1960. The Central Bank is the bank of issue and is responsible also for public deposits, and medium and long-term borrowings of the banks. In addition, all international payments go through the Bank, and all foreign exchange is held by the Bank.

There are some 50 other banks functioning in Turkey. Thirteen had been created by special laws to fulfil specialized services for particular industries. The Sümerbank directs the operation of a number of state-owned factories; Etibank operates primarily in the extractive industries and electric power industries; the Agricultural Bank makes loans for agriculture; the Maritime Bank operates government-owned port facilities, the merchant marine and its own fleet of ships; the Real Estate Credit Bank participates in industrial undertakings and the construction of all types of buildings. Other specialized banks deal with tourism, municipalities, and mortgages, etc.

The largest of the 33 private sector Turkish banks is the

THE CONSTITUTION

PREAMBLE

Having enjoyed freedom, and fought for her rights and liberties throughout her history, and having achieved the Revolution of May 27th, 1960, by exercising her right to resist the oppression of a political power which had be it in fate, pride or distress, in a common bond as an indivisible whole around national consciousness and aspirations, and which has as its aim always to exalt our nation in a spirit of national unity as a respected member of the community of the world of nations enjoying equal rights and privileges;

With full dedication to the principle of peace at home, peace in the world and with full dedication to the spirit of national independence and sovereignty and to the reforms of Atatürk;

Guided by the desire to establish a democratic rule of law based on juridical and social foundations, which will ensure and guarantee human rights and liberties, national solidarity, social justice, and the welfare and prosperity of the individual and the society;

Now, therefore, the Turkish Nation hereby enacts and proclaims this Constitution drafted by the Constituent Assembly of the Turkish Republic, and entrusts it to the vigilance of her sons and daughters who are devoted to the concept of freedom, justice and integrity, with the conviction that its basic guarantee lies in the hearts and minds of her citizens

TURKEY—(FINANCE)

Türkiye İş Bankası which operates 350 branches and 61 agencies. The private banks borrow at medium- and long-term mainly from the State Investment Bank.

These banks are required to contribute credits to the Bank Liquidation Fund set up by law in December 1960 to liquidate gradually those banks whose financial standing was unsatisfactory. This fund is derived from annual contributions of 0.2 per cent of savings and commercial deposits and since 1960 has been made up to the required amount by the Central Bank.

There are five foreign banks operating branches in Turkey. The Ottoman Bank which was founded in 1863 is the oldest bank in Turkey, and has strong British and French interests. The agreement with the Turkish Government expires in 1975.

There are several other credit institutions in Turkey, including the Industrial Development Bank of Turkey which encourages private investment in industry by acting as underwriter in the issue of share capital. The Türkiye Sınai Kalkınma Bankası is a privately owned development finance company founded in 1950 with the assistance of the World Bank to stimulate industrial growth in the private sector.

There are numerous co-operative organizations, and in the rural areas there are Agricultural Sale Co-operatives and Agricultural Co-operatives. There are also a number of savings institutions.

TRANSPORT

Türkiye Cumhuriyeti Devlet Demiryolları İşletmesi—TCDD (Turkish State Railways): Ankara; f. 1924; operates all railways and connecting ports; the Railway Administration acquired the status of a public corporation in July 1953; Gen. Dir. VEDAT ÖNSAL; Gen. Man. ISMAIL ERTAN; Gen. Sec. FAHİR BİLCE.

The total length of the railways operated within the national frontiers is 7,971 km. A five-year plan for modernizing the railway system came into force in January 1963. A second five-year plan 1968–72 aims at continuing this work.

Extensive dieselization is to take place. The line from Haydarpaşa to Arifiye is to be doubled and electrified.

A recent Central Treaty Organization agreement between Turkey and Iran provides for the linking of the two railway networks by the construction of a railroad from Muş to Tabriz, via Tatvan, Van and Kotor. Work on this railroad is well advanced and should be completed early in 1970.

ROADS

General Directorate of Highways: Ankara; Dir.-Gen. SERVET BAYRAMOĞLU.

At the end of 1967 the total length of all-weather highways was 73,500 km. and the highway network totalled 108,000 km. It is planned to complete a further 30,000 km. of all-weather roads by 1972.

In 1968 a ten-year programme of road improvement for eastern Turkey was announced. A 78 km. main road (sponsored by CENTO) runs from Siveler in south-eastern Turkey to Rezaiyeh on Lake Urmia in Iran. Construction of a £T 1,500m. six-lane bridge across the Bosphorus was started early in 1970, for completion in 1972. The existing ferry services constitute a major traffic "bottleneck" in the Turkish transport system.

MOTORISTS' ASSOCIATION

Türkiye Turing ve Otomobil Kurumu (Touring and Automobile Club of Turkey): Halaskargazi Cad. 364, Şişli, İstanbul; f. 1923; 4,500 mems.; Pres. NEJAT F. ECZACI-BAŞI.

SHIPPING

Denizcilik Bankası (The Turkish Maritime Bank, Inc.): Genel Müdürlük, Karaköy, İstanbul; f. 1952 by Act of Parliament converting the Turkish State Seaways and Harbour Administration into a corporation controlled and part-owned by the State. The Bank has a capital of £T500m.; four maritime establishments operate passenger, cargo and ferry-boat lines on inter-city, coastal, Adriatic, Aegean and Mediterranean Sea routes; four Port Administrations offer loading, unloading, transfer and warehousing facilities; five ship-yards and dry docks have repair and construction facilities for ships up to 15,000 tons; international concerns such as ship salvage and coastal security; other assets include: six hotels; 90,173 gross tons of shipping; 21 ships.

D.B. Deniz Nakliyatı T.A.Ş.: Findikli, İstanbul; associated company of the above, operating R.C.D. joint services to U.S. Atlantic and Gulf ports; Gen. Man. NECMİ AKYILDIZ; 31 cargo ships, 4 tankers.

UNION OF SOVIET SOCIALIST REPUBLICS

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

The Soviet Union extends for over 6,000 miles from the Baltic to the Pacific Ocean, and for 3,000 miles from north to south. It is the largest country in the world. Its western frontier, running from the Arctic Ocean in the north to the Black Sea in the south, is bordered by Norway, Finland, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Hungary and Romania. The southern frontier, running from west to east, is bordered by Turkey, Iran, Afghanistan, China, Mongolia and Korea. The climate of this area is continental and has extreme variations. In winter, temperatures can fall to -94 F. (-70 C.) in north-east Siberia, and in summer it can reach 122 F. (50 C.) in Central Asia, part of which is desert. 120 languages are spoken in the U.S.S.R.; Russian, the most widespread, is spoken by 130 million people. There is no state-recognized religion, but the Constitution guarantees freedom of worship. The Russian Orthodox faith is the traditional belief of Russians and there are other Christian and also Jewish and Muslim communities. The flag is red with a gold hammer and sickle surmounted by a gold star in the upper left part. The capital is Moscow.

Recent History

The Soviet Union suffered great losses of men (about 20 million) and material in the Second World War. Over 1,700 towns and 70,000 villages lay in ruins; about 32,000 industrial enterprises and over 100,000 collective and state farms were completely destroyed. Total losses exceeded 500,000 million dollars.

During the post-war years 1948-49 socialist governments were formed in a number of European and Asian countries as a result of the defeat of Germany and Japan, in which the Soviet Union played a decisive role. These countries and the Soviet Union comprise the world socialist system.

Much of the devastation and destruction of the War had disappeared by the time of Stalin's death in 1953, and due to his Five-Year Plans the economy, particularly in the field of heavy industry, had made considerable progress. In September 1953, Nikita Krushchev was nominated First Secretary of the Communist Party by the Central Committee, and in February 1958 Krushchev became Chairman of the Council of Ministers.

Since the Second World War the Soviet economy has been rebuilt, living standards have improved and the country has become a leading scientific and nuclear power. In 1957 the U.S.S.R. launched the world's first space satellite following it in 1961 with the first manned space flight. Since then the Soviet Union has carried out an extensive space exploration programme and has landed spacecraft on the Moon and on Venus. In January 1969 Soyuz 4 and Soyuz 5 docked successfully while orbiting the earth and cosmonauts moved freely from one spacecraft to the other. The U.S.S.R., together with the U.S.A. and U.K., signed an international treaty in January 1967, prohibiting the use of outer space for military purposes.

In 1964 Nikita Krushchev was replaced as Chairman of the Council of Ministers by A. N. Kosygin and as Secretary of the Communist Party Central Committee by L. I. Brezhnev.

Government

The Soviet Union consists of 15 Union Republics which include within their boundaries 20 Autonomous Republics, 8 Autonomous Regions, 10 National Districts, 6 Areas and 105 Regions. The Union's highest organ of state power is the Supreme Soviet, composed of the Council of the Union and the Council of Nationalities. The two Chambers have equal rights and may both initiate legislation. The Presidium of the Supreme Soviet is elected by a session of both Chambers and carries out state duties between sessions of the Supreme Soviet. All citizens over 18 have the vote. The highest executive organ is the Council of Ministers appointed by the Supreme Soviet. Each Republic and Autonomous Republic has its own Supreme Soviet and Council of Ministers. The Communist Party, with 13,180,000 members, plays a leading role in government and is a substantial policy-making body. The supreme organ of the Party is Congress which lays down policy and elects the Central Committee. Between Congresses the Central Committee directs Party work, elects the Party Politbureau and meets periodically to discuss ad hoc policy and to vote on any matter disputed in the Presidium. The Party works in close conjunction with the Government at all levels. Each Republic has its own Party, Presidium and Central Committee.

Defence

The Soviet Union is a nuclear power armed with long-range rockets and is a member of The Warsaw Pact Alliance. Military service is compulsory and lasts for two years in the Army and Air Force and three years in the Navy. Armed Forces strength in 1969 was estimated at 3,300,000, comprising Army 2,000,000, Air Force 505,000, Navy 465,000 (including Naval Air Force). Para-military forces number some 250,000. Under the 1969 State Budget of the U.S.S.R., allocations for defence were set at 17,700 million roubles, or 13.2 per cent of the budget.

Economic Affairs

The economy is centrally planned, based on public ownership and fits into the framework of a development plan. Economic planning has gone through several stages of development. Between the years 1919 and 1928 plans were drawn up annually. In 1929 Stalin introduced the first Five-Year Plan. At present the seventh Five-Year Plan (1965-70) is in force. Heavy industry accounts for more than two-thirds of total industrial production. Industry is the most important factor in the success of the U.S.S.R. economy since the war. It accounts for more than 50 per cent of the national income. In 1967 the U.S.S.R. accounted for nearly 30 per cent of the world's gross industrial output. There are extensive deposits of iron ore, oil, peat, natural gas and coal. Production of non-ferrous metals includes aluminium, nickel, manganese, lead, copper and zinc. More than 500 million tons of coal are mined annually. The coal basins of the Donets'k near the Black Sea, Kuznets'k in Siberia and Karaganda in Kazakhstan are the main sources. Oil is produced in the Caspian Republic of Azerbaijan, the Western Urals, the Volga region, East and West Siberia, in the south of the Central Asian Republics, Byelorussia and the Ukraine. Well over 300 million tons of oil were extracted in 1968. The country is the second greatest producer of electrical power and in 1968 generated 63,700 million kWh of electricity. One half of the total land area is forest, two thirds of it in Siberia and the Far East. Timber production amounted to 290 million cu m in 1968. The textile and consumer goods industry have been greatly increased in recent years. The Soviet Union has large-scale mechanized agriculture with two main types of farm. The collective farms work slightly more than half of the cultivable land and distribute profits to members. The state farms are owned and operated by the state, the employees receiving a wage. There are 36,172 collective farms and 13,398 state farms. 1,052.5 million hectares of land are used by agricultural enterprises and farms, 545.7 million hectares of which is arable land. The development of the Central Asian Virgin Lands has significantly increased production. The chief grain crops are wheat, rye, oats and maize. Other crops are sugar beet, hemp, cotton and oil seeds. Trade inside the U.S.S.R. is conducted by state trading establishments, consumers' co-operatives and collective farm markets. Foreign trade is a state monopoly and carried out mainly with the countries of Eastern Europe through the Council for Mutual Economic Assistance (CMEA).

UNION OF SOVIET SOCIALIST REPUBLICS—(INTRODUCTORY SURVEY)

The results of the Five Year Plan started in 1965 are so far very promising and in many cases, particularly in the oil, non-ferrous metal, automation and mineral industries, targets have been exceeded. In the past three years total industrial output has risen by nearly 30 per cent, including a 28 per cent rise in consumer goods. National income rose 7.2 per cent in 1968, and industrial output by 8 per cent—the figure set by the State Plan.

Transport and Communications

In the U.S.S.R. all forms of transport are integral parts of a single transport network. Railway tracks cover 133,600 km and carry most goods and passenger traffic. 30,800 km of railway track are electrified and carry 46.3 per cent of the annual freight (1968). By the end of 1968 the total length of roads was 1,357,200 km, including 431,000 km of hard surface roads. A project is under way for the construction of a dense network of modern hard surface roads. There are 142,400 km of inland waterways which play an important role in transporting bulk cargo and timber. Canals navigable by large vessels link the White Sea with the Baltic through the River Volga and the Rivers Moscow and Don with the Caspian, Azov and Black Seas. The Soviet Merchant Marine totalled over 13 million tons on January 1st, 1969, and takes sixth place in the world's fleets of ocean vessels. There are 27 major ports, the most important being Leningrad, Arkhangelsk, Riga, Murmansk, Odessa, Baku, and Vladivostok. Aeroflot, the Soviet airline, maintains all internal and external services, covering 554,500 km of airlines. Aeroflot makes flights to more than fifty countries. In 1968 there were 34,100 km of pipelines transporting over 301 million tons of oil and 56,300 km of pipelines pumping 145.800 million cu m of natural gas.

Social Welfare

The Social Insurance Fund is administered by the trade unions and financed by industry. Apart from a complete range of social security benefits (disability pensions, loss of breadwinner, student grants, maternity benefits), pensions are paid to retired men at 60 and women at 55 and average 60-70 per cent of their salary prior to retirement. In 1968 there were 38 million retired persons receiving pensions in the U.S.S.R. A new social security scheme for old and disabled collective farm workers has been introduced. The centralized fund of the scheme is made up of deductions from the farmers' wages made by the collective farm, and of allocations from the State budget. There is a streamlined system of public health services providing medical aid for the entire population. The public health services are supervised by the Ministry of Public Health and the Ministries of Public Health of the Union and Autonomous Republics, through regional (territorial), district and City Boards of Health, under the corresponding Soviets of Working People's Deputies. All medical services and treatment are rendered free of charge, as are medicine, food, care and drugs, etc. Public health institutions (hospitals, special clinics, maternity health centres, etc.) administer free services. By the end of 1968 there were 104.1 hospital beds per 10,000 of the population. The number of doctors totalled 617,800 (25.9 per 10,000 of the population). In addition to these hospitals there is a large network of sanatoria and holiday homes (4,807 establishments with 783,000 beds). In 1968 over 9 million persons underwent medical and convalescent treatment in these homes. Most sanatoria and holiday homes come under the jurisdiction of the trade unions. Accommodation for children, and in tuberculosis sanatoria, is free of charge. Working people are generally charged a nominal fee—usually about 30 per cent of the cost. Expectant mothers receive payment for their pre-natal and post-natal vacations (10 weeks before and after childbirth). Infant health centres and children's polyclinics have been set up as part of the public health system in order to watch over the health and proper physical development of all children. At the age of 14 years the child is transferred to an adult polyclinic. Workers temporarily unable to work due to sickness receive a sick leave benefit on the basis of a certificate issued by the adult polyclinic. Disabled workers are either transferred to lighter work or given a disability pension.

Education

Before 1917, 70 per cent of the population was illiterate. According to the 1959 census there were 71,200,000 persons educated above primary school level, and 7,870,000 specialists educated above secondary school level. There are no private schools in the U.S.S.R., all schools being state run with the exception of a small number of colleges belonging to co-operatives and public organizations. There is compulsory free education for eight years. Compulsory universal ten-year education should be introduced in 1970. Children may attend national schools, where tuition is given in their native language, or Russian schools, according to their choice. Tuition is conducted in nearly 100 languages throughout the Soviet Union.

Secondary education is provided in either general secondary schools or polytechnic schools. In 1959 urban and rural vocational training schools were established, which admit children who have completed the eight-year school. Sixty to 70 per cent of the student's time is taken up with practical work although training also includes theoretical grounding. Upon graduation the successful student is given a job in his chosen trade. Young workers can continue their studies by attending night schools of secondary general education. In addition to these types of secondary school there are also specialized schools. These schools provide a general education together with the necessary instruction and practical skills of a profession. The course lasts from two to four years and the students receive a government stipend. Graduates are given jobs in their chosen profession. Persons with a secondary education (regardless of the school they finish) are eligible for entry to schools of higher learning. Higher school education is available for all. Each Union Republic has a network of higher schools with various forms of training. Tuition is free and students are provided with State stipends and other benefits. Each higher school provides specialized education, both practical and theoretical. In the first years students are usually taught general subjects; specialization generally begins with the fourth year. The curriculum consists of compulsory, general and special subjects and subjects which can be chosen by the students themselves. Undergraduate courses are completed when the student either presents his thesis or takes state examinations. Graduates are provided with jobs and living quarters upon leaving higher school. In 1968-69 there were 4,469,700 students enrolled in 794 higher schools.

Tourism

National tourism is organized by the trade unions. The state organization Intourist assists foreign tourists in the U.S.S.R. and Soviet tourists going abroad. Tours are also organized by the Central Board of Tourism of the All-Union Central Council of Trade Unions, the International Youth Tourism Bureau "Sputnik", the Union of Soviet Societies for Friendship and Cultural Relations with Foreign Countries, and other public bodies. Favourite visiting places are Moscow, Kiev, Leningrad, Odessa, the Black Sea and Baltic resorts, the Urals and Altai mountains, and the ancient cities of Samarkand and Bukhara in central Asia. In 1968, 1,676,160 tourists visited the U.S.S.R.

Nationals of the following countries do not require a visa to enter the U.S.S.R.: Bulgaria, China (People's Republic), Czechoslovakia, Germany (Democratic Republic), Iran, Korea (People's Republic), Mongolia, Poland, Romania, Vietnam (Democratic Republic).

Sport

Physical culture and sport are cultivated on a mass scale. There are more than 175,000 organizations with a total membership of about 40 million. There are 50 sports federations which are members of world and European federations. In many regions local sports and games are encouraged. General guidance is given by the Union of Sports Societies, the trade unions and the Young Communists' League. Soviet sportsmen won 5 gold medals at the 1968 Winter Olympic Games and 29 gold medals at the 1968 Olympic Games in Mexico City. Football and ice hockey are the most popular games. In 1968 a Union republican State Committee for Physical Culture and Sport was set up by the government.

Public Holidays, 1970

The chief public holidays are: January 1 (New Year's Day), March 8 (International Women's Day), May 1 and 2 (May Day Celebrations), May 9 (Victory Day), November 7 and 8 (October Revolution), December 5 (Soviet Constitution Day).

THE CONSTITUTION

(FUNDAMENTAL LAWS)

CHAPTER I THE SOCIAL STRUCTURE

Article 1

The Union of Soviet Socialist Republics is a socialist state of workers and peasants.

Article 2

The political foundation of the U.S.S.R. is the Soviet of Working People's Deputies, which grew and became strong as a result of the overthrow of the power of the landlords and capitalists and the attainment of the dictatorship of the proletariat.

Article 3

All power in the U.S.S.R. is vested in the working people of town and country as represented by the Soviets of Working People's Deputies.

Article 4

The economic foundation of the U.S.S.R. is the socialist system of economy and the socialist ownership of the instruments and means of production, firmly established as a result of abolishing the capitalist system of economy, the private ownership of the instruments and means of production, and the exploitation of man by man.

Article 5

Socialist property in the U.S.S.R. exists either in the form of state property (belonging to the whole people) or in the form of co-operative and collective-farm property (the property of collective farms or co-operative societies).

Article 6

The land, its mineral wealth, waters, forests, the factories and mines, rail, water and air transport facilities, the banks, means of communication, large state-organized

UNION OF SOVIET SOCIALIST REPUBLICS—(THE CONSTITUTION)

Article 44

The Chairmen of the Soviet of the Union and the Soviet of Nationalities preside at the sittings of the respective Chambers and have charge of the conduct of their business and proceedings.

Article 45

Joint sittings of the two Chambers of the Supreme Soviet of the U.S.S.R. are presided over alternately by the Chairman of the Soviet of the Union and the Chairman of the Soviet of Nationalities.

Article 46

Sessions of the Supreme Soviet of the U.S.S.R. are convened by the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet of the U.S.S.R. twice a year.

Extraordinary sessions are convened by the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet of the U.S.S.R. at its discretion or on the demand of one of the Union Republics.

Article 47

In the event of disagreement between the Soviet of the Union and the Soviet of Nationalities, the question is referred for settlement to a conciliation commission formed by the Chambers on a parity basis. If the conciliation commission fails to arrive at an agreement or if its decision fails to satisfy one of the Chambers, the question is considered for a second time by the Chambers. Failing agreement between the two Chambers, the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet of the U.S.S.R. dissolves the Supreme Soviet of the U.S.S.R. and orders new elections.

Article 48

The Supreme Soviet of the U.S.S.R. at a joint sitting of the two Chambers elects the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet of the U.S.S.R., consisting of a President of the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet of the U.S.S.R., fifteen Vice-Presidents—one from each Union Republic, a Secretary of the Presidium and twenty members of the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet of the U.S.S.R.

The Presidium of the Supreme Soviet of the U.S.S.R. is accountable to the Supreme Soviet of the U.S.S.R. for all its activities.

Article 49

The Presidium of the Supreme Soviet of the U.S.S.R.:

- (a) Convenes the sessions of the Supreme Soviet of the U.S.S.R.;
- (b) Issues ordinances;
- (c) Interprets the laws of the U.S.S.R. in operation;
- (d) Dissolves the Supreme Soviet of the U.S.S.R. in conformity with Article 47 of the Constitution of the U.S.S.R. and orders new elections;
- (e) Conducts nation-wide polls (referendums) on its own initiative or on the demand of one of the Union Republics;
- (f) Annuls decisions and orders of the Council of Ministers of the U.S.S.R. and of the Councils of Ministers of the Union Republics if they do not conform to law;
- (g) In the intervals between sessions of the Supreme Soviet of the U.S.S.R., appoints or removes Ministers of the U.S.S.R. on the recommendation of the Chairman of the Council of Ministers of the U.S.S.R., subject to subsequent confirmation by the Supreme Soviet of the U.S.S.R.;
- (h) Institutes decorations (Orders and Medals) and titles of honour of the U.S.S.R.;
- (i) Awards Orders and Medals and confers titles of honour of the U.S.S.R.;
- (j) Exercises the right of pardon;

- (k) Institutes military titles, diplomatic ranks and other special titles;
- (l) Appoints and removes the high command of the Armed Forces of the U.S.S.R.;
- (m) In the intervals between sessions of the Supreme Soviet of the U.S.S.R., proclaims a state of war in the event of an armed attack on the U.S.S.R., or when necessary to fulfil international treaty obligations providing for mutual defence against aggression;
- (n) Orders general or partial mobilization;
- (o) Ratifies and denounces international treaties of the U.S.S.R.;
- (p) Appoints and recalls plenipotentiary representatives of the U.S.S.R. to foreign states;
- (q) Receives the letters of credence and recall of diplomatic representatives accredited to it by foreign states;
- (r) Proclaims martial law in separate localities or throughout the U.S.S.R. in the interests of the defence of the U.S.S.R. or of the maintenance of law and order and the security of the state.

Article 50

The Soviet of the Union and the Soviet of Nationalities elects Credentials Committees to verify the credentials of the members of the respective Chambers.

On the report of the Credentials Committees, the Chambers decide whether to recognize the credentials of deputies or to annul their election.

Article 51

The Supreme Soviet of the U.S.S.R., when it deems necessary, appoints commissions of inquiry and audit on any matter.

It is the duty of all institutions and officials to comply with the demands of such commissions and to submit to them all necessary materials and documents.

Article 52

No member of the Supreme Soviet of the U.S.S.R. shall be prosecuted or arrested without the consent of the Supreme Soviet of the U.S.S.R., or, when the Supreme Soviet of the U.S.S.R. is not in session, without the consent of the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet of the U.S.S.R.

Article 53

On the expiry of the term of office of the Supreme Soviet of the U.S.S.R., or on its dissolution prior to the expiry of its term of office, the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet of the U.S.S.R. retains its powers until the newly-elected Supreme Soviet of the U.S.S.R. shall have formed a new Presidium of the Supreme Soviet of the U.S.S.R.

Article 54

On the expiry of the term of office of the Supreme Soviet of the U.S.S.R., or in the event of its dissolution prior to the expiry of its term of office, the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet of the U.S.S.R. orders new elections to be held within a period not exceeding two months from the date of expiry of the term of office or dissolution of the Supreme Soviet of the U.S.S.R.

Article 55

The newly-elected Supreme Soviet of the U.S.S.R. is convened by the out-going Presidium of the Supreme Soviet of the U.S.S.R. not later than three months after the elections.

Article 56

The Supreme Soviet of the U.S.S.R., at a joint sitting of the two Chambers, appoints the Government of the U.S.S.R., namely, the Council of Ministers of the U.S.S.R.

THE ARAB LEAGUE

THE PACT OF THE ARAB LEAGUE

(March 22nd, 1945)

Article 1

The League of the Arab States shall be composed of the independent Arab States signatories to this Pact.

Each independent Arab State shall have the right to adhere to the League. Should it desire to adhere to the League, a petition to this effect should be filed with the General Secretariat, and submitted to the Council at the first session convened after the lodging of the petition.

Article 2

The object of the League shall be to strengthen the ties between the participant states, to co-ordinate their political activities with the aim of realising close collaboration between them, to preserve their independence and sovereignty, and to consider, in general, the affairs and interests of the Arab countries.

It shall also provide for close co-operation between the member states, with due regard to the structure of each state and the conditions prevailing therein, in the following matters:

- (i) Economic and financial affairs, including trade reciprocity, tariffs, currency, agricultural and industrial matters
- (ii) Communications, comprising railways, roads, aviation, navigation, posts and telegraphs
- (iii) Cultural affairs
- (iv) Matters relating to nationality, passports and visas, execution of judgments, and extradition of criminals
- (v) Matters relating to social welfare
- (vi) Matters relating to public health

Article 3

The League shall have a council composed of representatives of the member states. Each state shall have a single vote, regardless of the number of its representatives.

The Council's function shall be the realisation of the objects of the League and to give effect to agreements concluded between the member states, relating to the matters indicated in the previous Article and elsewhere.

The Council shall also determine the methods of collaboration with international organizations which may, in future, be created for the preservation of peace and security and the regulation of economic and social relations.

Article 4

For each subject specified in Article 2, a special committee shall be formed in which the member states shall be represented. These committees shall be responsible for formulating the bases, extent, and form of collaboration, in the shape of draft-agreements to be laid before the Council for consideration, preparatory to their presentation to the afore-mentioned states.

Delegates representing the other Arab countries may participate in these committees. The Council shall define the conditions under which those representatives may participate, and the regulations for representation.

Article 5

Recourse to force to resolve disputes between two or more League states is inadmissible. If a difference should arise between them, not pertaining to the independence, sovereignty, or territorial integrity of any of the states concerned, and should the contending parties apply to the Council for settlement of the dispute, then the Council's decision shall be effective and obligatory.

In this eventuality, the contending states shall not participate in the proceedings and resolutions of the Council.

The Council shall mediate in any dispute which may lead to war between two member states, or between a member state and another state, in order to conciliate them.

Decisions relating to arbitration and mediation shall be taken by a majority vote.

Article 6

In the event of aggression or threat of aggression by a state against a member state, the member state may request an immediate meeting of the Council.

The Council shall decide upon the appropriate measures to check this aggression, and shall issue a decision by unanimous assent. If the aggression is committed by a member state the vote of that state shall not be counted in determining unanimity.

If aggression should be committed in such a way as to render the government of the attacked state unable to communicate with the Council, its representative at the Council may demand that it be convened for the purpose set forth in the preceding paragraph. If it is impossible for the representative to communicate with the Council, any of the member states may demand that it be convened.

Article 7

Decisions of the Council reached by unanimous assent shall be binding on all the member states of the League. Decisions of the League reached by a majority vote shall be binding on those who accept them.

In either case, the decisions of the Council shall be executed in each state in accordance with the fundamental structure of that state.

Article 8

The states of the Arab League which desire to establish stronger collaboration than is provided for in the present pact, may conclude among themselves whatever agreements they wish for this purpose.

Article 9

Treaties and agreements previously concluded, or which may be concluded with any other state, by any state belonging to the League, shall not be obligatory or binding on the other members.

Article 10

Cairo shall be the permanent seat of the League of Arab States. The League Council may assemble in whatsoever place it appoints.

UNION OF SOVIET SOCIALIST REPUBLICS—(THE CONSTITUTION)

Article 75

The all-Union Ministries direct the branch of state administration entrusted to them throughout the territory of the U.S.S.R. either directly or through bodies appointed by them.

Article 76

The Union-Republican Ministries, as a rule, direct the branches of state administration entrusted to them through the relevant Ministries of the Union Republics; they administer directly only a certain limited number of enterprises according to a list approved by the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet of the U.S.S.R.

Article 77

(This Article lists the all-Union Ministries, see pages 1189 to 1190 for these.)

CHAPTER VI

THE ORGANS OF STATE ADMINISTRATION OF THE UNION REPUBLICS

Article 79

The highest executive and administrative organ of the state power of a Union Republic is the Council of Ministers of the Union Republic.

Article 80

The Council of Ministers of a Union Republic is responsible and accountable to the Supreme Soviet of the Union Republic, or, in the intervals between sessions of the Supreme Soviet of the Union Republic, to the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet of the Union Republic.

Article 81

The Council of Ministers of a Union Republic issues decisions and orders on the basis and in pursuance of the laws in operation of the U.S.S.R. and of the Union Republic, and of the decisions and orders of the Council of Ministers of the U.S.S.R., and verifies their execution.

Article 82

The Council of Ministers of a Union Republic has the right to suspend decisions and orders of the Councils of Ministers of its Autonomous Republics, and to annul decisions and orders of the Executive Committees of the Soviets of Working People's Deputies of its Territories, Regions and Autonomous Regions, as well as decisions and orders of the Economic Councils of the Union Republic and of the economic administration areas.

Article 83

The Council of Ministers of a Union Republic is appointed by the Supreme Soviet of the Union Republic and consists of:

- The Chairman of the Council of Ministers of the Union Republic;
- The Vice-Chairmen of the Council of Ministers;
- The Ministers;
- The Chairmen of State Committees, Commissions, and the heads of other departments of the Council of Ministers set up by the Supreme Soviet of the Union Republic in conformity with the Constitution of the Union Republic.

Article 84

The Ministers of a Union Republic direct the branches of state administration which come within the jurisdiction of the Union Republic.

Article 85

The Ministers of a Union Republic, within the limits of the jurisdiction of their respective Ministries, issue orders and instructions on the basis and in pursuance of the laws of the U.S.S.R. and of the Union Republic, of the decisions and orders of the Council of Ministers of the U.S.S.R. and the Council of Ministers of the Union Republic, and of the orders and instructions of the Union-Republican Ministries of the U.S.S.R.

Article 86

The Ministries of a Union Republic are either Union-Republican or Republican Ministries.

Article 87

Each Union-Republican Ministry directs the branch of state administration entrusted to it, and is subordinate both to the Council of Ministers of the Union Republic and to the corresponding Union-Republican Ministry of the U.S.S.R.

Article 88

Each Republican Ministry directs the branch of state administration entrusted to it, and is directly subordinate to the Council of Ministers of the Union Republic.

CHAPTER VII

THE HIGHER ORGANS OF STATE POWER IN THE AUTONOMOUS SOVIET SOCIALIST REPUBLICS

Article 89

The highest organ of state power in an Autonomous Republic is the Supreme Soviet of the Autonomous Republic.

Article 90

The Supreme Soviet of an Autonomous Republic is elected by the citizens of the Republic for a term of four years on a basis of representation established by the Constitution of the Autonomous Republic.

Article 91

The Supreme Soviet of an Autonomous Republic is the sole legislative organ of the Autonomous Republic.

Article 92

Each Autonomous Republic has its own Constitution, which takes account of the specific features of the Autonomous Republic and is drawn up in full conformity with the Constitution of the Union Republic.

Article 93

The Supreme Soviet of an Autonomous Republic elects the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet of the Autonomous Republic and appoints the Council of Ministers of the Autonomous Republic, in accordance with its Constitution.

CHAPTER VIII

Article 95

The Soviets of Working People's Deputies of Territories, Regions, Autonomous Regions, Areas, Districts, cities and rural localities (stanitsas, villages, hamlets, kishlaks, auls) are elected by the working people of the respective Territories, Regions, Autonomous Regions, Areas, Districts, cities and rural localities for a term of two years.

RELIGION

The Council for Religious Affairs: attached to the Council of Ministers of the U.S.S.R.; Chair. VLADIMIR KUROVEDOV.

Article 124 of the Fundamental Law (Constitution) of the U.S.S.R. says: "In order to ensure to citizens freedom of conscience, the Church in the U.S.S.R. is separated from the State, and the school from the Church. Freedom of religious worship and freedom of anti-religious propaganda are recognized for all citizens."

A religious sect is recognised when it consists of twenty or more adherents over the age of eighteen. Places of worship, seminaries and other requirements are provided and maintained by the voluntary contributions of the adherents themselves. A considerable number of new churches of various faiths have been built since the end of the war, and there are a number of religious seminaries for the training of priests in the varied religions practised in the U.S.S.R.

The existing religious cults are: The Russian Orthodox Church, the Georgian Orthodox Church, the Armenian Gregorian Church, the Roman Catholic Church, the Evangelical Lutheran Church, the U.S.S.R. Council of Evangelical Christian Baptists, the Protestant Church, the Belokrinitsky Concord Church of the Old Faith, the Beglopovtzi Church of the Old Faith, the Bezpopovtzi Church of the Old Faith, the Methodist Church, the Reformed Church, the Molokani communities, the Moslem Religious Board of the European part of the U.S.S.R. and Siberia, the Moslem Religious Board of Central Asia and Kazakhstan, the Moslem Religious Board of North Caucasus and Dagestan, the Moslem Religious Board of Transcaucasia, the Jewish Religious Community and the Religious Board of the Buddhists of the U.S.S.R.

THE RUSSIAN ORTHODOX CHURCH

The Russian Orthodox Church is the biggest single body among the religious cults, and the Moscow Patriarchate publishes its own monthly magazine.

Patriarch: ALEXIUS OF MOSCOW AND ALL-RUSSIA (elected 1945).

Holy Synod consists of eight members, five of whom are permanent—the Metropolitans of Krutitsky and Kolomna (PITIRIM), Kiev and Galica (IOANN) and Leningrad and Ladoga (PIMEN); The Chairman of the Department for Foreign Ecclesiastic Relations of the Patriarchy: Metropolitan NIKODIM and the Patriarchal Administrator: Archbishop KIPRIAN.

The Church is divided into 73 bishoprics, whose boundaries correspond to those of the territories and republics of the U.S.S.R. It also has three exarchates: West European, Middle European and American. It maintains a spiritual mission in Jerusalem and representatives in Austria and Hungary. There is a representative of the Alexandrian Orthodox Church in Odessa, and of the Antioch and Bulgarian Orthodox Churches in Moscow. The Church has approximately 20,000 parishes and a score of monasteries and convents. There are also two theological academies (the Moscow and Leningrad Academies) and five theological seminaries in Moscow, Leningrad, Lutsik, Minsk and Odessa.

THE GEORGIAN ORTHODOX CHURCH

The Georgian Orthodox Church is divided into four bishoprics.

Patriarch-Catholicos of All Georgia: EFREM II, Tbilisi, Georgian S.S.R.

MOSLEMS

Moslems make up the second largest religious community in the U.S.S.R. The majority are Sunnites with a small number of Shiites, mostly in Azerbaizhan. They are divided into four boards, according to the geographical and historical conditions and the existence of different sects. The four Boards are located at Tashkent (Uzbek S.S.R.), Ufa (Bashkir A.S.S.R.), Baku (Azerbaizhan S.S.R.) and Buinaksk (Daghestan A.S.S.R.). A theological school is maintained in Bukhara.

Chairman of the Moslem Board of Central Asia and Kazakhstan (the biggest single grouping of Moslems, with headquarters in Tashkent): MUFTI ZIYAUDDIN BABAKHANOV.

Chairman of Moslem Board of European Part of the U.S.S.R. and Siberia: MUFTI SHAKIR HIYALITDINOV.

Chairmen of Moslem Board for Transcaucasia: SHEIKH-UL-ISLAM KHAKIM ZADE SHEIKH MOVSUM SHEIKH ALI-OGLY.

Chairman of Moslem Board for North Caucasus and Dagestan: MUFTI MOHAMMED KHADJI KURBANOV.

ROMAN CATHOLICS

The Church has a large following in Lithuania, Latvia and W. Byelorussia and Ukraine. Archbishops: Riga (Latvia), Kaunas (Lithuania), Lvov (Ukraine).

THE CHURCH OF ARMENIA

Religious centre of the Church of Armenia in the U.S.S.R.—headed by the Supreme Patriarch VAZGEN I, Catholicos of All Armenians—is the ancient city of Echmiadzin. The Church has 26 bishoprics (20 outside the U.S.S.R.).

OLD BELIEVERS (THE OLD FAITH)

Divided into three branches: the Belokrinitsky Concord, under the Archbishop of Moscow and All-Russia, the Bezpopovtzi, and the Beglopovtzi.

UNION OF SOVIET SOCIALIST REPUBLICS—(THE CONSTITUTION)

The right to work is ensured by the socialist organization of the national economy, the steady growth of the productive forces of Soviet society, the elimination of the possibility of economic crises, and the abolition of unemployment.

Article 119

Citizens of the U.S.S.R. have the right to rest and leisure.

The right to rest and leisure is ensured by the establishment of a seven-hour day for industrial, office, and professional workers, the reduction of the working day to six hours for arduous trades and to four hours in shops where conditions of work are particularly arduous; by the institution of annual vacations with full pay for industrial, office, and professional workers, and by placing a wide network of sanatoria, holiday homes and clubs at the disposal of the working people.

Article 120

Citizens of the U.S.S.R. have the right to maintenance in old age and also in case of sickness or disability.

This right is ensured by the extensive development of social insurance of industrial, office, and professional workers at state expense, free medical service for the working people, and the provision of a wide network of health resorts for the use of the working people.

Article 121

Citizens of the U.S.S.R. have the right to education.

This right is ensured by universal compulsory eight-year education; by extensive development of secondary polytechnical education, vocational-technical education, and secondary specialized and higher education based on close ties between the school, real life and production activities; by the utmost development of evening and extramural education; by free education in all schools; by a system of state scholarship grants; by instruction in schools in the native language, and by the organization of free vocational, technical and agronomic training for the working people in factories, state farms, and collective farms.

Article 122

Women in the U.S.S.R. are accorded all rights on an equal footing with men in all spheres of economic, government, cultural, political, and other social activity.

The possibility of exercising these rights is ensured by women being accorded the same rights as men to work, payment for work, rest and leisure, social insurance and education, and also by state protection of the interests of mother and child, state aid to mothers of large families and to unmarried mothers, maternity leave with full pay, and the provision of a wide network of maternity homes, nurseries and kindergartens.

Article 123

Equality of rights of citizens of the U.S.S.R., irrespective of their nationality or race, in all spheres of economic, government, cultural, political and other social activity, is an inalienable law.

Any direct or indirect restriction of the rights of, or, conversely, the establishment of any direct or indirect privileges for, citizens on account of their race or nationality, as well as any advocacy of racial or national exclusiveness or hatred and contempt, are punishable by law.

Article 124

In order to ensure to citizens freedom of conscience, the church in the U.S.S.R. is separated from the state, and the school from the church. Freedom of religious worship and freedom of anti-religious propaganda is recognized for all citizens.

Article 125

In conformity with the interests of the working people, and in order to strengthen the socialist system, the citizens of the U.S.S.R. are guaranteed by law:

- (a) freedom of speech;
- (b) freedom of the press;
- (c) freedom of assembly, including the holding of mass meetings;
- (d) freedom of street processions and demonstrations.

These civil rights are ensured by placing at the disposal of the working people and their organizations, printing presses, stocks of paper, public buildings, the streets, communications facilities and other material requisites for exercising these rights.

Article 126

In conformity with the interests of the working people, and in order to develop the initiative and political activity of the masses of the people, citizens of the U.S.S.R. are guaranteed the right to unite in mass organizations—trade unions, co-operative societies, youth organizations, sport and defence organizations, cultural, technical and scientific societies; and the most active and politically-conscious citizens in the ranks of the working class, working peasants and working intelligentsia voluntarily unite in the Communist Party of the Soviet Union, which is the vanguard of the working people in their struggle to build communist society and is the leading core of all organizations of the working people, both government and non-government.

Article 127

Citizens of the U.S.S.R. are guaranteed inviolability of person. No person shall be placed under arrest except by decision of a court of law or with the sanction of a procurator.

Article 128

The inviolability of the homes of citizens and privacy of correspondence are protected by law.

Article 129

The U.S.S.R. affords the right of asylum to foreign citizens persecuted for defending the interests of the working people, or for scientific activities, or for struggling for national liberation.

Article 130

It is the duty of every citizen of the U.S.S.R. to abide by the Constitution of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, to observe the laws, to maintain labour discipline, honestly to perform public duties, and to respect the rules of socialist society.

Article 131

It is the duty of every citizen of the U.S.S.R. to safeguard and fortify public, socialist property as the sacred and inviolable foundation of the Soviet system, as the source of the wealth and might of the country, as the source of the prosperity and culture of all the working people.

Persons committing crimes in respect of public, socialist property are enemies of the people.

Article 132

Universal military service is law.

Military service in the Armed Forces of the U.S.S.R. is the honourable duty of citizens of the U.S.S.R.

Article 133

To defend the country is the sacred duty of every citizen of the U.S.S.R. Treason to the Motherland—violation of the oath of allegiance, desertion to the enemy, impairing the military power of the state, espionage—is punishable with all the severity of the law as the most heinous of crimes.

ALL-UNION LEGISLATURE

In the U.S.S.R. laws are passed by the Supreme Soviet of the Union and Autonomous Republics which pass laws effective in the republics concerned. All acts of government bodies must precisely conform to law and may be abolished or altered only by law. A law is considered valid when adopted by both chambers of the U.S.S.R. Supreme Soviet, by a simple majority of each chamber (law on amendments of the articles of the Constitution of the U.S.S.R. passed by the Supreme Soviet).

publication, unless the law itself indicates otherwise. If a necessity arises to alter a law in the interval between the sessions of the Supreme Soviet, this may be done by the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet in the form of a special Decree which is subject to subsequent validation by the Supreme Soviet.

The laws passed by the U.S.S.R. Supreme Soviet decide the fundamental questions of the country's social and state system.

The order in which laws are passed by the Supreme Soviets of the Union and Autonomous Republics is analogous to that in which they are passed by the U.S.S.R.

Supreme Soviet Unlike All-Union laws, Republican laws are valid only on the territory of the given republic. In cases of discrepancies between a Republic and an All-Union law, the All-Union law assumes superiority. (See also Chapters III and IV in the Constitution.)

SUPREME SOVIET OF THE U.S.S.R.

THE COMMUNIST PARTY

The Communist Party was founded in 1903 by V. I. Lenin following a split in the Russian Social Democratic Labour Party at its London Congress into Bolsheviks (Majority) and Mensheviks (Minority). After the October Socialist Revolution (1917) it became the Russian Communist Party. In 1925 following the creation of the U.S.S.R., the All-Union Communist Party of Bolsheviks was formed, uniting various Communist Parties of the Republics of the U.S.S.R. Since 1952 this has been called the Communist Party of the Soviet Union.

The supreme organ of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union is the Party Congress which is convened by the Central Committee at least every four years. Congress elects the Central Committee which supervises all Party activities in the intervals between congresses and directs the work of the central state and public organizations through Party groups in them. The Central Committee elects the Political Bureau of the C.P.S.U. Central Committee and Secretariat. The Central Committee sets up different Party organs and institutions and guides their activities, appoints the editorial of central Party newspapers and journals, allocates and controls Party funds, represents the Party in relations with other parties. It holds plenary sessions periodically to discuss vital problems of Party policy. The work of the Central Committee between plenary sessions is guided by the Political Bureau of the C.C. C.P.S.U., while the Secretariat of the Central Committee is responsible for routine work. Its composition is renewed at each election by at least one-fourth.

The Central Auditing Commission of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union is elected by Party congress, supervises the expeditions and proper handling of affairs by the Central bodies of the Party, audits the funds of the Central Committee of the C.P.S.U. and controls the work of its institutions (Party schools, publishing houses, etc.).

Party organization throughout the Soviet Union follows the country's territorial divisions in the Republics. Each Territory, Region and District has a Party Committee representing all its Branches. The Branch is the basic unit, usually embracing all the Party members in a factory, farm or other sizeable institution or group of institutions. The Branch might comprise all the members of a profession (e.g. writers) in a territory. Each Branch has a committee to lead its work and large Branches usually have full-time secretaries. Each of the fourteen Republican Communist Parties has as the supreme Party organ a Congress which elects a Central Committee. The Central Committee elects a Political Bureau and Secretariat. Each Republican Party is ultimately responsible to the Central Committee and Political Bureau of the C.P.S.U.

The C.P.S.U. exercises control over all branches of the national economy and state administration, over all activity of state bodies and public organizations.

Party members are accepted on an individual basis only. Membership is confined to working people accepting the Programme and Charter of the Party, fulfilling Party decisions, paying Party dues and working in one of the Party organizations. A period of candidature is demanded before admission. In 1968 there were more than 13,180,000 members and candidate members. More than 70 per cent of all C.P.S.U. members are engaged in industry, agriculture, building, transport or science. In 1968 about 4 million members of the C.P.S.U. were specialists with higher or secondary education.

years. The Supreme Court of the U.S.S.R. includes (by virtue of their office) the Chairmen of the Supreme Courts of the Union Republics. The Supreme Court of the U.S.S.R. is composed of the Plenum and three Collegiums (civil cases, criminal cases and military). The Procurator-General of the U.S.S.R. sits on the sessions of the Plenum.

The judicial collegia examine protests, by way of judicial supervision, against the rulings and verdicts passed by the Supreme Courts in Union Republics. The military collegium—appeals and protests, by way of judicial supervision, against the verdicts of military tribunals in the military districts and fleets. All collegia examine, as courts of first instance, cases of exceptional importance coming within their purview under the law. The rulings, Plenum examines also the protests against the rulings of the Supreme Courts of the Union Republics, the materials pertaining to the summarization of judicial practice and judicial statistics, issues explanations to the courts on questions of application of judicial practice. The Supreme Court of the U.S.S.R. makes appropriate representations to the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet of the U.S.S.R. on questions regarding the interpretation of the laws. The Supreme Court of the U.S.S.R. has the power of legislative initiative. Cases at the Supreme Court of the U.S.S.R. are examined by a member of the court and two people's assessors, if the case is heard in the first instance. Appeals and protests are examined by three members of the Supreme Court of the U.S.S.R.

Supreme Courts are formed in Union and Autonomous Republics. They are the highest judicial organs of these Republics and exercise supervision of the activities of the judicial bodies in the given Republic (See also Articles 102-117 of the Constitution)

Procurator. Procurator's Offices supervise the strict observance of law by all ministerial and executive bodies, economic institutions, co-operative and public organizations, officials and individuals, through instituting criminal proceedings against guilty persons and protesting decisions infringing upon law, they exercise supervision over the legality of passing and executing sentences and observance of law in places of detention.

The Procurator-General of the U.S.S.R. and procurators subordinate to him exercise prosecution in courts. They have rights to withdraw a case from the trial for purposes of further examination, to protest the decisions and verdicts of courts. The participation of procurator in court proceedings and the rights he enjoys guarantee the observance of law and the rights of the state and citizen.

Procurator's Offices perform their functions independent of any state bodies, they are subordinate only to the Procurator-General of the U.S.S.R.

The Procurator-General is elected by the U.S.S.R. Supreme Soviet for a term of seven years. Procurators of Union and autonomous republics, territories, regions and autonomous regions are appointed by the Procurator-General of the U.S.S.R. for a term of five years, and procurators of towns, districts and areas are appointed by the Procurator of the Union republic (See also Articles 102-117 of the Constitution)

PUBLISHING

In 1964 publishing in the U.S.S.R. was reorganized into 50 central publishing houses and about 170 subsidiaries under the control of the State Committee for Press and Publishing. The majority of publishers cover a special field of subject matter, the leading publishers being Nauka which covers all sciences and the humanities; Mir dealing with scientific and technical books, Khudozhestvennaya Literatura publishing fiction, Prosvetshenie educational books, Medituna, Progress and Det'skaya Literatura. Republican and Regional publishers issue books and booklets of local interest.

Publishing houses function under the auspices of trade unions, the Communist Party, Young Communist League, Novosti Press Agency (publications mainly for distribution abroad) and other public organizations. Religious organizations and societies also publish their own books. The U.S.S.R. Writers' Union has its own publishing houses, the largest being Sovetskoy Pisatel (Soviet Writer). The Union publishes 14 journals and 73 fiction magazines centrally, as well as 60 literary magazines in the national republics and areas.

All branches of publishing (books, periodicals, newspapers), means of production (printers, paper industry), and means of distribution (bookshops, libraries) are either directly or indirectly supervised by the State Committee.

The Committee is composed of three editorial boards dealing with, respectively, social and political literature, fiction, and technical and scientific literature. Subject experts, such as members of the Academy of Sciences, the Union of Soviet Writers, or the Ministry of Higher Education, are consulted on the choice of manuscripts for production, and proposals for publication of certain works often originate from these bodies. The three editorial boards are composed largely of editors from the various publishing houses so that, although all proposed publications must be approved by the State Committee, the publisher still influences choice of material at this level.

Publishers plan their programmes a year in advance, forwarding a list of proposed publications to the State Committee which co-ordinates all the lists to prevent duplication. When a publisher's list has been approved, a sample number of copies is printed and distributed to prospective customers—booksellers, libraries, schools. Customers return an estimate of the number of copies they will require, the books are printed, and distributed by Soyuz Kniga, the state distributive organ, which has a centre in each region of the U.S.S.R.

Most bookshops in the U.S.S.R. belong to Soyuz Kniga.

customers through the bookshops

An author incurs no expenses involved in publishing his book. He is entitled to royalties dependent on the size, edition and nature of the book and each publishing house signs an appropriate contract with the author. The U.S.S.R. is not party to the Berne Convention or the Universal Copyright Law. Generally publishers issuing translated editions of foreign works pay author royalties only for creative works, and payment is usually in blocked roubles (i.e. must be spent in the U.S.S.R.).

The Soviet Union is the largest book producer in the world and scientific and technical books top the list of Soviet publications in the number of titles. Books are published in 61 languages of the U.S.S.R. and 37 languages of other lands.

THE ARAB LEAGUE

Article 11

The Council shall meet in ordinary session twice a year, during the months of March and September. Extraordinary session may be convened whenever occasion demands, on the request of two member states.

Article 12

The League shall have a permanent General Secretariat consisting of a Secretary-General, Assistant Secretaries, and an appropriate staff of officials.

The League Council shall appoint the Secretary-General by a two-thirds majority of the League states. In consultation with the Council, the Secretary-General shall appoint the Assistant Secretaries and the principal officials of the League.

The Council shall establish an internal organization to deal with the functions of the General Secretariat and matters of personnel.

The Secretary-General shall hold ambassadorial status, and the Assistant Secretaries the status of Minister-Plenipotentiary.

The first Secretary-General to the League shall be nominated in an appendix to this Pact.

Article 13

The Secretary-General shall prepare the draft Budget of the League, and submit it to the Council for approval before the beginning of each financial year.

The Council shall allocate the share of each of the states of the League in the expenses, and may revise the share if necessary.

Article 14

Members of the League Council, members of its committees, and those of its officials specified in the internal administration, shall enjoy diplomatic privileges and immunity during the performance of their duties.

The inviolability of buildings occupied by bureaux of the League shall be observed.

Article 15

The Council shall be convened on the first occasion at the instance of the Head of the Egyptian Government, and subsequently at the instance of the Secretary-General.

At each ordinary session the representatives of the League states shall preside over the Council by rotation.

Article 16

Apart from the conditions defined in this Pact, a majority opinion will suffice for the Council to make effective decisions on the following subjects:

- (i) Matters relating to personnel.
- (ii) Approval of the Budget of the League.
- (iii) The internal organization of the Council, committees and General Secretariat.
- (iv) The termination of sessions.

Article 17

The member states shall deposit with the General Secretariat texts of all the treaties and agreements which they have concluded, or may conclude, with any other state belonging to, or outside, the League.

Article 18

If any of the League states contemplates withdrawal from the League, it shall give notice to the Council, of its decision to withdraw, a year before withdrawal takes effect.

The League Council has the right to regard any state not fulfilling the obligations of this Pact as having ceased to belong to the League. This shall be effected by a decision issued by unanimous assent of the states, excepting the state indicated.

Article 19

It is permissible, by agreement of two-thirds of the League states, to amend this Pact, in particular to strengthen the ties between them, to found an Arab Court of Justice, and to co-ordinate the relations of the League with the international organizations which may, in future be created to guarantee peace and security.

No decision shall be taken as regards an amendment except in the sessions following that in which it is proposed.

Any state which does not accept the amendment may withdraw on the amendment becoming effective, without being bound by the preceding Article.

Article 20

This present Pact, with its appendices, shall be ratified in conformity with the fundamental form of government in each of the contracting states.

The articles of ratification shall be deposited with the General Secretariat, and the present Pact shall have effect with those who have ratified it, fifteen days after the Secretary-General has received articles of ratification from four states.

This present Pact was drawn up in Arabic at Cairo, on the 8th of Rabi al Thani, 1364 (22nd March, 1945), in a single text, which shall be preserved in the General Secretariat.

A facsimile copy of the original shall be delivered to each of the League states.

Special Appendix Relating to Palestine

At the end of the last Great War, Palestine together with the other Arab States, was separated from the Ottoman Empire and became independent.

The Treaty of Lausanne proclaimed that her fate should be decided by the parties concerned in Palestine.

Even though Palestine was unable to control her own destiny, it was on the basis of recognising her independence that the League of Nations determined a system of government for her. Her existence and independence among nations can, therefore, be no more questioned de jure than the independence of any other Arab state.

Although the visible signs of this independence have remained hidden as a result of force majeure it is not fitting that this should be an obstacle to the participation of Palestine in the League.

Therefore, the States signatory to the Pact of the Arab League, consider that in view of Palestine's special circumstances, the Council of the League should designate an Arab delegate from Palestine to participate in its work until this country enjoys actual independence.

Special Appendix Relating to Co-operation with the Arab States, Non-participants in the League Council

Whereas the member states of the League will have to deal either in the Council or in the committees with questions affecting the interests of the entire Arab world.

And whereas the Council cannot fail to take into account the aspirations of the Arab countries not members of the Council and to work toward their realisation, the states signatory to the Pact of the Arab League strongly urge that the Council of the League should co-operate with them as far as possible in having them participate in the committees referred to in the Pact, and in other matters, should not spare any effort to learn their needs and understand their aspirations and should, moreover, work for their common weal and the guarantee of their future by whatever political means available.

THE CULTURAL TREATY

The Cultural Treaty of the Arab League was accepted by the League Council on November 27th, 1945, at Cairo

Article 1

The states of the Arab League agree that each of them shall form a local organization whose functions shall be to consider matters concerning cultural co-operation between the Arab states. Each state will be free as to how it forms this organisation

Article 2

The states of the Arab League agree to exchange teachers and professors between their educational institutions, according to the general and individual conditions which will be agreed to. The period of service of any teacher or professor who is a Government official and who will be delegated for this purpose, will be considered as service for his own Government, with the maintenance of his rights as regards his post, promotion, and pension

Article 3

The states of the Arab League agree to the exchange of students and scholars between their educational institutions, and their acceptance in the suitable classes as far as accommodation will allow, in accordance with the regulations of those institutions

In order to facilitate this, those states, while maintaining the basic educational principles adopted in their countries, will work towards harmonising their educational syllabuses and certificates. This will be done by special agreement between those states

Such facilities as may be possible will be given by each state to any other state which wishes to construct hostels for its students.

Article 4

The states of the Arab League agree to facilitate the travelling arrangements and the expense of the journey will be given for this purpose, particularly in respect of travelling arrangements and the expense of the journey

Article 5

The states of the Arab League agree on the reciprocal establishment of educational and scientific institutions in their various countries.

Article 6

The states of the Arab League will co-operate in the revival of the intellectual and artistic legacy of the Arabs, safeguarding and propagating it as well as making it available to those who seek it by all possible means.

Article 7

The states of the Arab League agree to facilitate the intellectual output in the Arab countries by such means as the opening of institutes for scientific and literary research. They will organize competitions for authors, and will grant prizes to distinguished men of science, literature, and art.

Article 8

All the states of the Arab League undertake to legislate for the protection of scientific, literary, and artistic authorship rights for all publications in all states of the Arab League.

Article 9

The states of the Arab League will work for the standardisation of scientific terms, by means of councils, congresses, and joint committees, which they will set up and by means of bulletins which these organizations will issue. They will work to make the Arabic language convey all expressions of thought and modern science, and to make of it the language of instruction in all subjects and in all educational stages in the Arab countries

Article 10

The states of the Arab League will work for the consolidation of contacts between libraries and museums, whether scientific, historical, or artistic, by such means as the exchange of publications and indexes, the holding of study conferences, and by organizing exchange visits between library and museum personnel at frequent intervals.

Article 11

The states of the Arab League agree to consolidate relations and to facilitate co-operation between scientists, literary men, journalists, members of the professions, those connected with art, the stage, the cinema, and broadcasting, by organizing visits for them between one country and another, and by encouraging cultural, scientific, and educational conferences for the purpose, also by placing room, laboratories, and material in scientific institutions in every Arab country at the disposal of the learned of other countries to demonstrate scientific discoveries, also by the exchange of scientific data. Each a Commit the principal libraries of each state

Article 12

The states of the Arab League agree to include in their educational syllabuses the history, geography, and literature of the Arab countries, sufficiently to give a clear idea of the life of those countries and their civilisation. They also agree upon the institution of an Arab library for pupils

Article 13

The states of the Arab League will work to acquaint their peoples with the social, cultural, economic, and political conditions in all Arab countries, by means of broadcasts, the stage, cinema, and press, or by any other means also by the institution of museums for Arab culture and

THE ARMENIAN SOVIET SOCIALIST REPUBLIC

INTRODUCTION

The Armenian Republic was formed on November 29th, 1920. It has an area of 29,800 sq. km. and a population of 1,363,000. Of these, 88 per cent are Armenians, 6.1 per cent Azerbaijanians, 3.2 per cent Russians and 1.5 per cent

Kurds. Erevan, the capital, has a population of 710,000. Armenia is a country of high mountains and fertile valleys, situated in the southern part of Transcaucasia. To the west, Armenia has a land frontier with Turkey.

1960	40.3	6.8
1968	25.0	5.3

Armenia lies in the sub-tropical belt, but with its extensive irrigation canals many kinds of crops can be grown. Peaches, apricots, pomegranates and figs are grown.

In 1968 there were 495 collective farms and 257 state farms.

UNION OF SOVIET SOCIALIST REPUBLICS—(FINANCE, TRADE AND INDUSTRY)

TAXATION

Taxes are paid by individuals, collective farms and co-operative societies. In 1968, tax levied on the population amounted to 10.5 thousand million roubles while the sum total of government benefits paid out to working people amounted to 48.3 thousand million roubles.

Income tax is collected monthly from those workers earning 70 or more roubles per month. Anyone who earns between 70-100 roubles pays 4.6 roubles tax a month, plus 12 per cent of what he earns above 70 roubles. Those with over three dependants are entitled to 30 per cent reduction on their income tax. Childless men between 20 and 50 years of age and childless women between 20 and 45 years pay a tax totalling 6 per cent of their income. Those workers who earn less than 70 roubles per month pay less income tax. In both categories there are those who are exempt from taxation, these include privates, N.C.O.s, pensioners, invalids, students and others.

In rural areas the agricultural tax is the principal one. It is paid by collective farmers and other citizens who hold plots of land for their personal use. It is worked out at fixed rates on the 0.01 hectare basis, irrespective of crops sown. The rates vary in different republics, regions, districts and sometimes even villages. In the Russian Federation the average rate is 0.85 rouble ranging from 0.3 to 1.4 roubles per 0.01 hectare. War and labour invalids, servicemen's families, elderly people and rural intellectuals enjoy privileges.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

U.S.S.R. Chamber of Commerce: Ul. Kuibysheva 6, Moscow; f. 1932; Pres. M. V. NESTEROV; Gen. Sec. I. I. GAIDAENKO. The Chamber of Commerce promotes contact between trade corporations and foreign companies or organizations. It organizes Soviet Trade and Industrial exhibitions abroad and international exhibitions in the U.S.S.R. It is the sole patent issue office in the U.S.S.R.

INTERNAL TRADE

There are three forms of trade in the U.S.S.R., state, co-operative and collective farm trade. State trade is the leading and predominant one, embracing the entire foreign trade and the internal wholesale trade. The internal state retail trade is carried on through state organizations and offers its services mostly to the urban population. Co-operative trade serves the rural population, its share in the country's overall trade turnover being 28.4 per cent. Collective trade accounts for 4.3 per cent of the total trade volume.

U.S.S.R. Ministry of Trade: Moscow; Minister A. I. STRUYEV; is responsible for internal trade through the Magazini Gosudarstvennoi Torgovli.

Magazini Gosudarstvennoi Torgovli (State-owned Shops): cover the urban areas and are managed and operated by the Ministry of Trade through the local authorities. Shops are subordinated either to the board of consumer goods, or to the board of food-stuffs.

Tsentrosoyuz (Central Co-operative Union): organizes wholesale supplies to the local co-operatives and also trades with foreign co-operative bodies in 40 countries; handles construction and management of Kolkhoznie Rynki; Chair. A. P. KLIMOV.

Kooperativi (Co-operative Shops): mainly in rural areas. They are owned and run by local consumer co-operative societies.

Kolkhoznie Rynki (Collective Farm Markets): where collective farmers can sell surplus foodstuffs at market prices.

EXTERNAL TRADE

Foreign trade is a state monopoly, trade with foreign countries is exercised through state organizations only. Import-export relations with foreign countries are governed by special plans forming part of the national-economic plans. The postwar period saw a rapid advance of Soviet foreign trade. The foreign trade turnover of the U.S.S.R. in 1968 totalled 18,039 million roubles in terms of cost. Over 70 per cent of the U.S.S.R.'s foreign trade is with the socialist countries.

In the 1960s trade increased between the U.S.S.R. and Finland, Britain, France, Italy and Japan. Only trade with the U.S.A. was negligible, due to the prohibitions imposed by U.S. authorities in 1949. Foreign trade with most of the countries is effected through long-term and yearly trade agreements.

Foreign trade monopoly is exercised by Foreign Trade Organizations. These include, above all, all-Union foreign trade associations ("Mashinoexport", "Exportkhleb", "Exportlen", etc.) subordinated to the Ministry of Foreign Trade. Some foreign trade organizations engaged in wholesale deliveries of equipment and rendering technical aid to foreign countries are under the State Foreign Economic Relations Committee of the U.S.S.R. Council of Ministers; the "Soyuzkoopvneshtorg" association is under the "Tsentrosoyuz"; the "Sovfrakht"—under the Ministry of Merchant Marine.

Each foreign trade organization exercises state monopoly over the import or export of a group of commodities (e.g. the "Soyuzneftexport" handles oil and oil products; "Avtoexport"—motor cars, lorries, motor cycles, bicycles. Some associations are organized on a territorial principle, i.e. trade in various kinds of commodities with a certain group of countries (e.g. "Vostochnikorg" that trades with the East). There are also associations specializing in trade in licences, tourism, publications, delivery of commodities and transport-forwarding operations.

The foreign trade organizations have a working capital and enjoy the legal rights of a juridical person within the framework of their Rules. They have the right of setting up their own branches, offices and agencies, of concluding transactions with firms and organizations, bearing responsibility for the transactions concluded. The state is not responsible for commitments of the associations and the latter accept no claims addressed to the state.

U.S.S.R. Council of Ministers' State Committee for Foreign Economic Relations: controls economic relations with foreign countries; Chair. S. A. SKACHKOV.

U.S.S.R. Ministry of Foreign Trade: in charge of the conduct of foreign trade; Minister N. S. PATOLICHEV.

CIVIL AVIATION

Aeroflot (Ministry of Civil Aviation of the U.S.S.R.): Leningradsky Prospekt 37, Moscow; f. 1923; Minister Y. F. LOGINOV.

All civil airlines, internal and external, are operated by Aeroflot. The capitals of all the Union Republics and most towns are connected by aeroplane. Aeroflot has air service agreements with 50 countries and with many civil aviation companies. Twenty-one international airlines also serve the Soviet Union.

At present liners Tu-104, Tu-114, Tu-124, Tu-132, Il-18, Il-62, An-10, An-12, An-24 and Yak-40 serve basic air routes, and their share in air traffic is about 89 per cent. Aeroflot operates 3,000 lines of a total length of more than 600,000 km., which connect 3,500 towns of the U.S.S.R. In 1968 Aeroflot liners transported 60.8 million passengers, that is about one-third of the world passenger transportation. In the summer holiday period aeroplanes carry up to 300,000 passengers daily.

The supersonic liner Tu-144 with cruising speed of 2,500 km.p.h., has been tested in 1969. It has already made supersonic flights, and in several years will operate on long-distance routes.

THE ARAB LEAGUE

civilization, as well as assuring its success by holding occasional exhibitions of arts and literature, and public and scholastic festivals in the various Arab countries.

Article 14

The states of the Arab League shall encourage the establishment of Arab social and cultural clubs in their respective countries.

Article 15

The states of the Arab League will take all necessary measures to approximate their legislative trends and to unify as far as possible their laws; also to include the study of legislation of other Arab countries in their syllabuses.

Article 16

This Treaty shall be ratified by the signatory states, according to the provisions of their constitutions, with the minimum of delay. The instruments of ratification shall be lodged in the Secretariat-General of the Arab League, which will prepare a note of the receipt of each document and notify the other contracting states.

Article 17

Arab countries are permitted to adhere to this Treaty by notifying the Secretary-General of the League, who will communicate the fact to the other contracting states.

Article 18

This Treaty will come into force one month after the date of the receipt of the instruments of ratification from two states. It shall also come into force for the other states who participate one month after the date of the deposit of the document of joining from these states.

Article 19

Any signatory state of this Treaty is allowed to withdraw from it by giving notice to the Secretary-General of the League. The notice will take effect six months from the date of its despatch.

ARAB ECONOMIC UNITY AGREEMENT

The Economic Unity Agreement between the member-states of the Arab League was drawn up in Cairo on June 6th, 1962, and subsequently came into effect on April 30th 1964, U.A.R., Iraq, Syria, Kuwait and Jordan having subscribed as official members. The Unity Council held its first meeting in Cairo on June 3rd, 1964. Yemen and Sudan have also signed the Agreement.

The Agreement is summarized below.

OBJECTS

Preamble

The Governments of the member-states of the Arab League, desirous of organizing between them and unifying their relations on bases accommodating to the natural and historical ties between them, and for the purpose of creating the best conditions for the growth of their economy, for promoting their riches, and for ensuring the prosperity of their peoples, have agreed on creating a complete unity between them, to be achieved gradually with the maximum possible speed ensuring the transition to the desired situation without causing harm to their essential interests.

Article 1

The main objective of the Agreement is to attain complete Arab Economic Unity. The Arab State will thus have a unified, integrated, proportionate Arab economy guided by one single economic policy for all the component parts. The member-states and their nationals are guaranteed equality in the following:

- (1) Freedom of movement of persons and capital.
- (2) Freedom of exchange of domestic and foreign goods and products.
- (3) Freedom of residence, work, employment, and exercise of economic activities.
- (4) Freedom of transport and transit and of using means of transport, ports and civil airports.
- (5) Rights of ownership, of making one's will, and of inheritance.

METHODS

Article 2

The Arab states are required to work for accomplishing the following:

- (1) The Arab states should be made one customs zone subject to a single administration. Customs tariffs, legislations, and regulations applied in these states should be standardized. This is to be achieved by gradual abolition of customs duties between the Arab states for ensuring the exchange of Arab-made goods and the eventual removal of duties altogether. In addition customs duties should be adjusted between the Arab states so as to arrive at standard rates in respect of the outside world. In this way, the Arab states would be converted into one market where both home-produced and imported goods could move without being subject to any duties other than those imposed in respect of the outside world.

- (2) The Arab states should work for standardizing their import-export policies and all relevant regulations. It is a prerequisite for the creation of one Arab market to have import-export policies and regulations unified and co-ordinated.

- (3) Standardizing transport and transit systems. As the means of transport will enjoy freedom of movement between all parts of the Arab homeland, they should necessarily become subject to standard regulations.

- (4) Trade agreements and payments agreements with outside countries are to be concluded collectively by the Arab states. The creation of one Arab market makes it necessary to have such agreements concluded jointly. Relations with the outside world will be unified.

- (5) Policies related to agriculture, industry and internal trade should be co-ordinated. Economic legislation should be standardized in a manner ensuring equal terms to all any profession or any economic activity anywhere in the Arab world.

(6) Steps should be taken to co-ordinate labour and social legislation. In so far as Arab workers are to enjoy the freedom of working anywhere they please in the Arab homeland, it is necessary to make them all subject to one labour law and to the same social security rules.

(7) (a) Steps should be taken to co-ordinate legislation concerning government and municipal taxes and duties and all other taxes pertaining to agriculture, industry, trade, real estate, and investments in a manner ensuring equal opportunities.

(b) Measures should be taken to prevent the duplication of taxes and duties levied on the nationals of the contracting countries.

(8) The monetary and fiscal policies and all relevant regulations of the contracting countries should be co-ordinated before the standardization of currency.

(9) Standardizing the methods of the classification of statistics.

(10) All necessary measures should be taken to ensure the attainment of the goals specified in Articles 1 and 2 of the Agreement.

It is however possible to by-pass the principle of standardization in respect to certain circumstances and certain countries—this being made with the approval of the Arab Economic Unity Council.

ORGANIZATION

Articles 3-10

Article 3 provides for the establishment of a body with the name of "The Arab Economic Unity Council". This Council will have its centre in Cairo and will be composed of a full member from each of the contracting parties. Decisions are taken by a two-thirds majority. Each state has one vote.

The Council has been vested with all necessary powers for implementing the rules of the Agreement and its protocols, for running the subsidiary committees and establishments and for appointing members of staff and experts.

Branching from the Unity Council are a number of permanent and provisional committees.

The permanent committees are:

(1) The Customs Committee, whose task will be to handle customs technical and administrative affairs and transit affairs.

(2) The Monetary and Financial Committee. This Committee will undertake the handling of affairs pertaining to monetary matters, banking taxes, duties and other financial affairs. Two Sub-Committees have been formed.

(a) Sub-Committee on Financial and Taxation Affairs,

(b) Sub-Committee on Monetary Affairs.

(3) The Economic Committee. It will be the duty of this Committee to handle matters pertaining to agriculture, industry, trade, transport, communications, labour and social affairs. Five Sub-Committees have been formed:

(a) Agricultural Growth Sub-Committee; (b) Industrial Co-ordination and Mineral Wealth Development Sub-Committee; (c) Planning and Trade Co-ordination Sub-Committee; (d) Planning and Transport and Communications Co-ordination Sub-Committee; (e) Social Affairs Sub-Committee.

The Council and its subsidiaries enjoy financial and administrative autonomy. The Council will have a special budget to which the member-states will subscribe at the rate of their subscriptions to the budget of the Secretariat-General of the Arab League. The Council has been entrusted with the tasks of formulating regulations and legislations aiming at the creation of a unified Arab customs zone and at co-ordinating foreign trade policy. The conclusion of trade agreements and of payments agreements has been made subject to the approval of the Council. The Council is also entrusted with the task of co-ordinating economic growth, laying down programmes for the attainment of common economic development plans, co-ordinating policies for agriculture, industry and external trade, working out transport and transit regulations and unification of regulations on labour and social security, and harmonizing financial and monetary policies with the purpose of standardizing currency. It will also formulate all other legislation necessary for the achievement of the purposes of the Agreement.

IMPLEMENTATION

Articles 11-20, Protocols

The implementation of the Agreement is, however, to be spread over an indeterminate period. The Council has been required to draw up a practical plan for the stages of implementation and to defuse the legislative, administrative and technical measures for two countries or more to conclude economic unity wider than that provided for under the Agreement.

The Council shall exercise its powers in accordance with resolutions which it will pass, which will be executed by the member-states in accordance with their constitutional rules.

The Governments of the contracting parties have pledged not to promulgate any laws, regulations or administrative decisions of a nature which might conflict with the Agreement or its Protocols. However, the contracting parties have been given the freedom, under the Agreement's First Protocol, to conclude bilateral economic agreements, for extraordinary political or defensive purposes, with outside parties, provided that such bilateral agreements contain nothing prejudicial to the objectives of this Agreement.

The Agreement's Second Protocol places limitations on the powers of the Arab Economic Unity Council. In the course of an initial period not exceeding five years (but which can be renewed for up to ten years) the Council is required to study the necessary steps for co-ordinating the economic, financial and social policies and for the attainment of the following objectives:

(a) The freedom of the movement of persons and the freedom of work, employment, residence, ownership, making one's will, and inheritance.

(b) Giving unrestricted and unqualified freedom to the movement of transit goods without any restrictions in respect of the type of nationality or the means of transport.

ESTONIAN SOVIET SOCIALIST REPUBLIC

INTRODUCTION

Estonia became part of the Soviet Union on August 6th, 1940. It has an area of 45,100 sq. km. and a population of 1,316,000. Of these, there are 74.6 per cent Estonians, 20.1 per cent Russians, 1.4 per cent Finns, and 1.3 per cent Ukrainians. Tallin, the capital, has a population of 354,000.

The Estonian Republic is located in the north-west of the Soviet Union between Latvia and the Gulf of Finland and, in addition to the mainland, includes over 800 islands in the Baltic Sea.

INDUSTRY AND MINING

Engineering and metal working are the main industries. Estonia produces building machinery, trench excavators, precision instruments, equipment for the oil, mining, and chemical industries, mercury rectifiers, semi-conductors and gas analysers.

Estonia is rich in power resources, water power, peat and especially bituminous shale, having the largest deposits in the Soviet Union. Gas, liquid fuel, chemicals and other valuable products obtained from the shale are processed at the Kohtla-Järve works, the largest plant of its kind in the world. A number of power stations have been built including a hydropower station on the Narva Falls and a power station in Lillamäe, working on peat.

Timber and wood-working industries and the textile industry are expanding rapidly, and Estonia has the highest per capita output of fabrics in the U.S.S.R.

Estonian fishing trawlers and refrigerator ships, work in the North Atlantic, the main catch being herring. The Republic has the biggest per capita fish catch and output of tinned fish in the country.

THE LATVIAN SOVIET SOCIALIST REPUBLIC

INTRODUCTION

Latvia became part of the Soviet Union on August 5th, 1940. It has an area of 63,700 sq. km. and a population of 2,323,000. Of these, 62 per cent are Letts, 26.6 per cent Russians, 2.9 per cent Byelorussians and 2.9 per cent

Poles. Riga, the capital, has a population of 707,000. The Latvian Republic is situated in the north-west of the Soviet Union, between Lithuania and Estonia on the Baltic coast.

1940	19.3	15.7
1960	16.7	10.0
1968	14.1	10.9

AGRICULTURE

Latvia is a maritime country and fishing plays a big part in its economy. The Letts now catch fish not only in the Baltic but also in the Atlantic near the coasts of Canada and Africa. There has been a considerable increase in the amount of fish caught and in the output of tinned fish (herring and sprat). The raising of livestock is also important and this is the reason for the growing number of food factories, creameries and cheese factories. In many districts there are collective farms which raise poultry and keep bees. The Republic also has silver fox and mink farms.

In 1968 there were 755 collective farms and 204 state farms.

THE GEORGIAN SOVIET SOCIALIST REPUBLIC

INTRODUCTION

erbaurhamans Tbilisi, the capital, has a population of 900,000. The Georgian Republic includes the Abkhazian Autonomous Republic (capital Sukhumi), the Azharian vegetation stretches along the Black Sea coast. There is a short frontier with Turkey in the south-west.

THE KAZAKH SOVIET SOCIALIST REPUBLIC

INTRODUCTION

The Kazakh Republic was formed as an Autonomous Republic within the Russian Federation on 26 August 1920, and reconstituted as a Union Republic on 5 December 1936. It has an area of 2,715,100 sq. km. and a population of 12,877,000 (6,479,000 persons living in urban areas, 6,398,000 persons living in rural areas). Of these, 30 per cent are Kazakhs, 42.7 per cent Russians and 8.2 per cent Ukrainians. The population density is 4.7 persons per square kilometre. Alma Ata, the capital, has a population of 684,000. In size the Kazakh Republic (Kazakhstan) is second only to the Russian Federation. It extends from the Volga to the Altai Mountains and from the Siberian plains to the Central Asian deserts. Kazakhstan has a frontier with the People's Republic of China to the south-east.

The number of towns and industrial communities in Kazakhstan has increased greatly in recent years. The Kazakh settlement of Baikonur, in the heart of the Steppes, is world famous as the launching place of the Soviet spaceships.

THE MOLDAVIAN SOVIET SOCIALIST REPUBLIC

INTRODUCTION

The Moldavian Republic was formed on August 2nd, 1940. It has an area of 33,700 sq. km. and a population of 3,531,000. Of these, 65.4 per cent are Moldavians, 14.6 per cent Ukrainians, 10.2 per cent Russians and 3.3 per cent

Gagauzi. Kishinev, the capital, has a population of 327,000. Moldavia is situated in the south-west of the Soviet Union, with Romania to the west.

BIRTHS AND DEATHS

	BIRTH RATE (per '000)	DEATH RATE (per '000)
1940	26.6	16.9
1960	29.2	6.4
1968	20.0	6.9

Moldavia contributes a quarter of the grape crop in the Soviet Union, half of the rose oil, and holds second place in tobacco production, after the Ukraine. In addition to grapes and fruit, the Republic raises high-grade winter wheat, maize (which is the main grain crop), sunflower (the biggest industrial crop) and also hemp, soya beans and essential-oil plants. The growth of production of fruit, grapes, vegetables and sugar beet has led to greater development in the food industries. Thus, Moldavia is one of the country's biggest producers of grape wines and also makes vast quantities of canned foods.

In 1968 there were 549 collective farms and 115 state farms.

THE KIRGHIZ SOVIET SOCIALIST REPUBLIC

INTRODUCTION

Kirghizia was made an Autonomous Republic on February 1926, and attained the status of a Union has a population of 426,000. The Kirghiz Republic is

AGRICULTURE

The Kirghiz were formerly wandering herdsmen. They have now settled on the land, taken up agriculture and built up their own industry. Of 19,800,000 hectares of land, 15,100,000 hectares are used by agricultural enterprises and farms. Kirghizia produces wheat, cotton, tobacco, southern hemp, kenaf, essential-oil plants and poppy. Grape- and fruit-growing and silkworm breeding also have an important place in the economy.

Livestock raising is the main branch of agriculture. The wealth of the Republic is made up of its herds of cattle, flocks of fine-fleece sheep and droves of horses.

In 1968 there were 249 collective farms and 93 state farms.

THE ARAB LEAGUE

(c) Facilitating the exchange of Arab goods and Arab products.

(d) The freedom of exercising economic activities—it should be understood that this should cause no harm to the interests of some of the contracting parties at this stage.

(e) The freedom of using ports and civil airports in a manner guaranteeing activation and development.

At its first session held in Cairo from June 3rd–6th, 1964, the Economic Unity Council decided to interpret the time periods suggested in the Second Protocol in such a manner as to speed up the accomplishment of the various phases. Thus the Council considered the five-year period proposed as a maximum limit for the completion of the necessary studies. The Council also resolved to benefit from the rule established in Article 4 of the Protocol, which provided for the following:

“Two parties or more can, if they so desire, agree on ending the introductory stage or any other stage, and move directly to comprehensive economic unity.”

The Council has therefore begun by studying the practical steps to be taken for the achievement of economic unity. It was decided that the Arab Common Market project should be accomplished as quickly as possible. A Technical Committee was assigned with the study of the subject, and its detailed report was debated and approved by the Council at its second meeting on August 7th, 1964.

The resolution passed at that meeting called for exempting from customs duties all agricultural and animal products as well as natural resources and industrial goods exchanged between the members of the Arab Market. This exemption will be either complete or gradual. It was also resolved that, in the case of gradual exemption, the rate should be ten per cent in respect of industrial goods and twenty per cent for agricultural products, to be effective from the beginning of 1965.

The Arab Common Market came into operation on January 1st, 1965, with U.A.R., Iraq, Syria, Jordan and Kuwait as members. However, the Kuwait National Assembly voted against ratification of the Agreement in July 1965. The four remaining members of the Council met again in Amman in November 1965.

In mid-1966 the Economic Unity Council adopted a resolution calling for the creation of an Arab Payments Union. The purpose of the projected Union is to reduce or eliminate non-tariff restrictions, imposed by national governments for balance of payments reasons.

In May 1968 at a meeting of the Economic Unity Council it was agreed that free movement of industrial products between member states should be achieved by 1971, and tariffs on agricultural products were to be completely abolished during 1969.

ASIAN AND PACIFIC COUNCIL

Composed of the Foreign Ministers of member countries meetings held to date have been at Seoul, Republic of Korea, in June 1966, at Bangkok, Thailand, in July 1967 at Canberra, Australia, in July/August 1968, and at Tokyo Japan, in 1969

Secretariat: Provided each year by the government of whichever member country is venue for the next Ministerial Meeting—at present the Government of Japan acts as a clearing house for information and services the Standing Committee

STANDING COMMITTEE

Composed of accredited ambassadors of the participating countries, convenes regularly between Council meetings for consultations to carry forward the decisions of the Council, e.g. the examination of proposed projects in the economic cultural and social fields

Chairman: The Japanese Minister for Foreign Affairs (KIUCHI AICHI)

SUBSIDIARY BODIES

Registry of Experts' Services: Canberra, Australia, opened 1968

Cultural and Social Centre: Seoul Republic of Korea, commenced operations 1968-69

Economic Co-operation Centre: Bangkok Thailand to be established

AIMS

ASPAC is a consultative association of nine countries of the Asian and Pacific region, membership being open to other countries in the region. The organization aims to foster greater co-operation and solidarity among members and to assist the development of their national economies. Co-operation is envisaged in the political, economic, cultural and social fields. Ministers, in the communique released after the Third Ministerial Meeting, affirmed their determination to uphold the following principles and objectives

- 1 Mutual respect for national sovereignty, political independence and territorial integrity
- 2 Attainment of equality, freedom and justice for all
- 3 Pursuit of peace and settlement of disputes by peaceful means and respect for the rule of law
- 4 Realization of a regional community where peace, order and progress are ensured
- 5 Emphasis upon the self reliance of the Asian and Pacific peoples based on their sense of a common destiny and regional solidarity
- 6 Promotion of close co-operation in economic, social and cultural fields in order to further the development of a prosperous community of Asian and Pacific nations

- 7 Strengthening of collaboration with other nations and existing international and regional organizations

The Second Ministerial Meeting accepted as ASPAC projects a Registry of Experts' Services in Canberra, Australia, and a Cultural and Social Centre in Seoul Republic of Korea

The Registry of Experts' Services now in operation was officially opened during the Third Ministerial Meeting and, at the conclusion of that Meeting, Ministers signed an international agreement establishing the ASPAC Cultural and Social Centre which will shortly commence operation. In addition, the Third Ministerial Meeting considered proposals for the establishment of a Food and Fertilizer Technology Centre and an Economic Co-ordination Centre for the Asian and Pacific region. Ministers also agreed that the Standing Committee should examine proposals for a non-permanent Study Group to study existing economic agencies operating in the region with a view to determining precisely the areas in which ASPAC might engage, and for studies of measures to expand and facilitate trade in the region.

The Fourth Ministerial Meeting decided that an Economic Co-operation Centre would be established in Bangkok

THE UNITED KINGDOM

GREAT BRITAIN

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

Great Britain is the largest of the islands forming the United Kingdom. It comprises England, Scotland to the north and Wales to the west. It is separated from the coast of western Europe by the English Channel to the south and by the North Sea to the east. The northern and western shores are washed by the Atlantic Ocean. Ireland lies to the west across the Irish Sea. Climate is temperate and variable. The language is English but Welsh is spoken fairly extensively in Wales. The Church of England is the established church in England. Other large Christian denominations are Roman Catholicism, Methodism, Presbyterianism, Congregationalism and the Baptists. There are about half a million Jews. The flag, known as the Union Jack, is a superimposition of the red cross of Saint George of England, the white saltire of Saint Andrew of Scotland and the red saltire of Saint Patrick of Ireland, all on a blue background. The capital is London.

Recent History

Since the war Britain has granted independence to most of her former territories overseas. India, Malaysia, Pakistan, Ghana, Nigeria, Tanzania, Cyprus, Jamaica, Trinidad and others are now members of the Commonwealth, an association of nations sharing common aims and interests. In 1950 Britain took a leading part in forming the European Free Trade Association. From 1961 until early in 1963 and in May 1967 Britain negotiated unsuccessfully to join the European Economic Community. During 1969 it was announced that negotiations would be resumed in 1970. In August 1963 Britain and the United States negotiated a nuclear test ban treaty with the Soviet Union to which many other countries have added their signatures. After 13 years of Conservative rule, a Labour Government was returned in October 1964, and received an overwhelming parliamentary majority in the General Election of March 1966. In response to Britain's unfavourable balance of payments situation, the government has instituted a policy of economic austerity, involving credit restriction and legislation to control prices and incomes. In November 1967 the pound was devalued by 14.3 per cent. In January 1968 further economic measures were announced, including withdrawal by 1971 of British forces in Singapore, Malaysia, and the Persian Gulf. Following a more favourable balance of payments situation towards the end of 1969, various restrictions, including restrictions on the foreign travel allowance, were relaxed.

In November 1965 the colony of Rhodesia declared itself no longer subject to British sovereignty and put into effect an independent constitution declaring itself a republic on March 2nd, 1970. Severe economic sanctions have been applied by Britain and other states, and in December 1966 the United Nations resolved to impose an embargo on trade with Rhodesia in selected commodities.

In 1969 the legal age of majority was reduced to 18.

Government

Great Britain is a constitutional monarchy. The Sovereign is the Head of the State and the monarchy is hereditary. In July 1969 the Investiture of the Prince of Wales took place in Caernarvon, Wales. The Sovereign summons and dissolves Parliament and gives the Royal Assent to bills which have passed through both Houses of Parliament. Her formal consent is necessary before a treaty is signed, a cabinet formed or war declared. Parliament consists of the House of Commons and the House of Lords. The Commons are elected for a five-year term through direct suffrage by all citizens of 18 years and over. The House of Lords is composed of hereditary Peers of the Realm and Life Peers and Peeresses created by the Sovereign for outstanding public service. Legislation may be initiated in either House but it usually originates in the Commons. Each bill has three readings in the Commons and it is then passed to the House of Lords who may return it to the Commons with amendments or suggestions. The House of Lords cannot prevent any bill from becoming law once it has been passed by the Commons. Executive power is vested in the Cabinet headed by the Prime Minister who is appointed by the Sovereign.

Defence

Britain is a member of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) and maintains a regular army. The total strength of the Armed Forces in September 1969, including women's services was 399,000 (Army 196,000, Navy 90,000, Air Force 113,000). There is no compulsory military service. Britain possesses a nuclear deterrent. Defence expenditure for 1969 totalled £2,236 million.

Economic Affairs

Britain is one of the world's leading industrial and exporting countries. Chief industries are iron and steel, engineering, chemicals, electronics, motor vehicles, aircraft, textiles, clothes and other consumer goods. Its coal mines yield about 200 million tons annually. The coal, gas, electricity and atomic energy industries are nationalized as are the railways and the two largest airlines.

Although Britain's agriculture and trawler-fishing are highly mechanized, half of the country's food supplies and most of its raw materials are imported. Britain maintains a large passenger cargo and oil tanker merchant fleet. The estimated annual economic growth rate at present (January 1970) is 3½ per cent.

Transport and Communications

Most British railways are more than a hundred years old, covering some 18,000 miles. They are state owned, and many branch lines have been closed down as a result of extensive reorganization. Most main lines have been converted from steam to diesel or electric trains. London's Turkmenia has oil-refining, gas, chemical and other industries based on locally available raw materials. Mirabilite is being extracted in the Kara-Bogaz-Gol Bay on the Caspian and deposits of sulphur are worked in the heart of the Kara-Kum Desert. The Turkmen Republic is the country's biggest supplier of ozocerite. The textile, silk-reeling and food industries are rapidly expanding.

U.K. (GREAT BRITAIN)—(INTRODUCTORY SURVEY)

Underground is the oldest in the world and carries two million passengers daily. Total road mileage is about 200,000 miles and more trunk motorways are being constructed. Waterways extend for 2,500 miles providing navigation for small craft. There are about 300 ports of which London, Liverpool, Southampton, the Tyne ports, Glasgow and Hull are the largest. London is linked to most large cities by airways. A Transport Advisory Council was established in February 1965 to advise the Government on the planning and co-ordination of all forms of transport.

Social Welfare

The National Insurance Scheme as known today was started in 1948 and is run by the Department of Health and Social Security, in conjunction with over 100 local branches. The scheme is compulsory by law for all people over school leaving age (except students) and under 65 in the form of weekly flat rate contributions. Employers and employees make joint contributions and the state supplements one quarter of the total contribution. In addition, people over 18 pay graduated contributions on earnings of over £9 a week. The Scheme insures against loss of income due to sickness, unemployment and maternity and provides old-age and widows' pensions, maternity benefits, child allowances, death and industrial injury benefits.

There are also family allowances of 18s per week for the second child and £1 for each additional child up to the age of 15, and supplementary benefits for people whose income falls below a certain level, though in both cases they are financed from taxes.

In 1969 the Government published a report concerning a new national scheme of superannuation and social insurance where contributions and benefits will be related to the earnings of the individual employee. It is to come into force in 1972.

The National Health Service, which is not an insurance, provides a comprehensive health service free (with the exception of partial charges for such things as dental treatment, spectacles, etc. and a nominal charge of 2s 6d for each medical prescription).

Education

Education is compulsory from the age of 5 to 15. (In 1972 the minimum school leaving age will be extended to 16.) Schools may be divided into publicly maintained state schools, private and "public schools" (fee paying).

Secondary education generally starts at the age of 11, and is given in grammar schools, and secondary modern schools. These are gradually being replaced by comprehensive schools, which are able to accommodate a larger number of pupils, and provide a wider variety of courses to suit the individual ability, either of a vocational or academic bias. The General Certificate of Education (G.C.E.) Ordinary Level may be taken at the age of 16 in as many subjects as a candidate wishes. The G.C.E. Advanced Level, generally taken two years later, qualifies for entrance to higher education. The Certificate of Secondary Education (C.S.E.) is taken by pupils completing five years of secondary education.

Further Education. There are over 650 institutions providing vocational and academic courses, on a full-time, part-time and "sandwich" basis. Teacher training colleges provide three-year courses, alternatively graduates are encouraged to take a one-year post graduate teaching course.

University Education. Although two G.C.E. Advanced Level passes are normally the minimum requirements for University entrance, the decision to admit students is made by the individual universities according to their own specific standard of requirements. The first degree course normally lasts three years and leads to a Bachelor of Arts or Sciences (B.A. or B.Sc.) degree. There are 42 universities. An "open university" is to be set up by autumn 1970, it will provide degree courses by means of television, radio and correspondence.

Responsibility for providing education other than in universities rests with the local education authorities. The Department of Education and Science only sets standards of educational provision, contracts the cost of educational building, and the training supply of teachers. The Government deals with the Universities, through the Universities Grants Committee.

Expenditure on education in 1968-69 reached nearly £2,300 million which represents about 6 per cent of the G.N.P.

Tourism

Tourism plays a significant part in the economy. In 1968, over 4,828,000 visitors came to Britain. The chief attractions are the country's history and traditions and the beauty of the countryside.

Receipts from tourism totalled over £282m in 1968.

Plans were introduced for a British Tourist Association in 1969, to give official encouragement to the British hotel industry.

Nationals of the following countries do not require a visa to enter the United Kingdom: Andorra, Austria, Belgium, Denmark, Finland, France, Germany (Federal Republic), Greece, Iceland, Ireland, Italy, Ivory Coast, Japan, Kuwait, Liechtenstein, Luxembourg, Monaco, Morocco, Netherlands, Norway, Portugal, South Africa, San Marino, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, Tunisia, Turkey and all American countries.

Sport

Many kinds of sport are popular in Britain. Football (Association and Rugby) is played everywhere. Cricket is regarded as England's national game, and it is played much less in Scotland and Wales. Other popular recreations are golf, tennis, athletics, fishing, boating, swimming, horse racing and motor racing. A Sports Council was formed early in 1965 to advise the government on training and facilities for sport.

Public Holidays, 1970

The chief Public or Bank Holidays are: March 27 (Good Friday), March 30 (Easter Monday), May 25 (Spring Bank Holiday), August 31 (Summer Bank Holiday), December 25 (Christmas Day), December 26 (Boxing Day) (January 1, New Year's Day, is a holiday only in Scotland).

AGRICULTURE

The Ukraine is the second most productive agricultural area of the Soviet Union as the warm climate and black earth give high yields of diverse crops—wheat, sugar beet, maize and sunflower. About a quarter of the industrial crops and more than a quarter of the meat and milk in the Soviet Union is produced in the Ukraine.

In 1968 there were 9,587 collective farms and 1,463 state farms.

Commercial Center, P.O.B. 126, Makati, Rizal, D-708 Philippines

Telephone: 88-87-81.

Sponsored by the UN Economic Commission for Asia and the Far East (ECAFE), the Bank commenced operations in December, 1966. Members: 20 regional and 13 non-regional countries.

ORGANIZATION

BOARD OF GOVERNORS

All powers of the Bank are vested in the Board which may delegate its powers to the Board of Directors except in such matters as admission of new members, changes in the Bank's authorized capital stock, election of Directors and President, amendment of the Charter. One Governor and one Alternate Governor appointed by each member country. Board meets at least once a year.

Chairman: JONG RYUL WHANG (Republic of Korea).

Vice-Chairmen: Baron J.-CH. SNOY ET D'OPPUERS (Belgium), ABDUL HAKIM TABIBI (Afghanistan).

BOARD OF DIRECTORS

Responsible for general direction of operations and exercises all powers delegated by the Board of Governors. Composed of ten Directors elected by the Board of Governors, seven representing regional member countries and three non-regional member countries. Each Director serves for two years and may be re-elected. The President of the Bank, though not a Director, is Chairman of the Board.

Chairman of Board of Directors and President (1966-71):
TAKESHI WATANABE (Japan).

Vice-President: C. S. KRISHNA MOORTHY (India).

ADMINISTRATION

Departments: Operations, Projects, Treasury, Administration.

Offices: Secretary, General Counsel, Economic, Financial Adviser, Internal Auditor and Information.

Secretary: DOUGLAS C. GUNESKERA (Ceylon).

General Counsel: TIMOTHY B. ATKESON (U.S.A.).

AIMS

To foster economic growth and co-operation in the region and to accelerate the economic progress of the developing countries of the region, either collectively or individually, by:

Promoting investment of public and private capital for development purposes in the ECAFE region.

Utilizing the available resources for financing development, giving priority to those regional, sub-regional and national projects and programmes which will contribute most effectively to the harmonious economic growth of the region as a whole, and having special regard to the needs of the smaller and less developed member countries.

Meeting requests from members in the region to assist in the co-ordination of development policies and plans with a view to achieving better utilization of their resources, making their economies more complementary, and promoting the orderly development of their foreign trade, in particular, intra-regional trade.

Providing technical assistance for the preparation, financing and execution of development projects and programmes, including the formulation of specific project proposals; providing technical assistance also on the functioning of existing institutions or the creation of new institutions, on a national or regional basis, in such fields as agriculture, industry and public administration.

Co-operating with UN, its subsidiary agencies and other international organizations concerned with the investment of development funds in the region.

THE LABOUR PARTY

Leader: Rt. Hon. HAROLD WILSON, P.C., O.B.E., M.P.

The aims of the British Labour Party were stated in 1918 and reaffirmed and amplified in 1960.

The British Labour Party is a democratic socialist party. Its central ideal is the brotherhood of man. Its purpose is to make this ideal a reality everywhere. It rejects dis-

... duty of richer nations to assist poorer ones, stands for social justice and the creation of a socialist community with a classless society and planned economy. It stands for democracy in industry and the expansion of common ownership, the protection of all citizens from any exercise of arbitrary power. It seeks to obtain and hold power only through free democratic institutions.

THE CO-OPERATIVE PARTY

The Co-operative Union Ltd. is constitutionally linked with the Co-operative Union Ltd., but has its own Annual Conference and National Committee. Under an Agreement with the Labour Party it sponsors Labour and Co-operative candidates at local and parliamentary elections, protects the interests of the co-operative movement, seeks to extend co-operative enterprise and cares for the interests of the consumer.

THE CONSERVATIVE AND UNIONIST PARTY

Leader: Rt. Hon. EDWARD HEATH, P.C., M.B.E., M.P.

The aims of the Conservative Party are to uphold religion, preserve the Constitution, and to strengthen the free association of the Commonwealth; to maintain, in collaboration with other like-minded nations, defence forces adequate for the preservation of freedom and prevention of war, to work for peace by international disarmament; to provide financial and technical aid to raise the conditions of under-developed territories, to provide freedom and opportunity by supporting free enterprise and initiative against Socialist systems of state-trading and nationalisation; to improve the standards of life by economic policies which preserve full employment, promote expanding trade and production, maintain national solvency, and encourage the free and open market of goods and services.

HEADQUARTERS

The Conservative and Unionist Central Office: 32 Smith Square, London, S.W.1; f. 1870, Chair. The Rt. Hon. ANTHONY BARRER, M.P., T.D.; Deputy Chair Sir MICHAEL FRASER, C.B.E., Vice-Chair The Hon. THE LIBERAL PARTY

Leader: Rt. Hon. JEREMY THORPE, P.C., M.P.

The preamble to the party Constitution states: "The Liberal Party exists to build a Liberal society in which every citizen shall possess liberty, property and security, and none shall be enslaved by poverty, ignorance or conformity. Its chief care is for the rights and opportunities of the individual, and in all spheres it sets freedom first."

THE COMMUNIST PARTY

The Party Congress elects the Executive Committee, which elects the Political Committee that is responsible for conducting the day-to-day leadership of Party activity.

The object of the Party is to replace the capitalist system by public ownership, and it believes that this aim can be attained only by the will of the people, led by the organized working class.

There were 30,607 members in June 1969.

Scottish National Party: 59 Elmbank St., Glasgow, C.2; Chair. WILLIAM WOLFE; Pres. Dr. ROBERT MCINTYRE; Nat. Sec. GORDON WILSON.

JUDICIAL SYSTEM

One of the most cherished liberties of the ordinary British citizen is his freedom from arbitrary arrest and his knowledge that the law regards him as innocent unless he can be proved guilty. Arbitrary arrest and imprisonment were abolished when the famous Habeas Corpus Act was passed in 1679; under this Act in its present-day form anyone having custody of a person can be ordered to bring him before the court within forty-eight hours and to prove that he is being lawfully held in custody.

Two factors help to ensure a fair trial: the independence of judges, who are outside the control of the executive and can be removed from office only after an address from Parliament to her Majesty; and the participation of private citizens in all important criminal and some civil cases, in the form of a summoned jury of twelve persons, who judge the facts of a case. The judge decides the law. The jury verdict in criminal cases, has since October 1967 been a majority verdict system; in civil cases the verdict must be unanimous, otherwise the case must be retried with another jury.

There are two sources of the law as administered in the law courts today: Statute Law, which is written law and consists mainly of Acts of Parliament, and Common Law, which originated in ancient usage and has not been formally enacted.

Scottish common and statute law differ in some respects from that current in the rest of the United Kingdom, owing to Scotland's retention of her own legal system under the Act of Union with England of 1707.

CRIMINAL COURTS

Magistrates' Courts, or Petty Sessions, the courts of lowest jurisdiction, are presided over by Justices of the Peace, who are unpaid laymen appointed by the Lord Chancellor. They have power to try all non-indictable offences, and some of the less serious indictable offences, if the accused so desires. The trial of nearly all criminal offences begins by a hearing in the Magistrates' Court. The Justices must decide whether the evidence is sufficient for the accused to be committed for trial at the Quarter Sessions or Assizes, according to the seriousness of the offence.

Magistrates also have power to grant, renew, transfer or remove or order the forfeiture of licences for the sale of intoxicating drinks, and to control the structural design of licensed premises where intoxicating liquor is sold for consumption on the premises.

In London and in certain other large towns there are professional salaried magistrates, known as metropolitan magistrates in London and as stipendiary magistrates in the provinces, who sit alone, whereas lay justices cannot when acting judicially.

Juvenile Courts, composed of specially qualified justices selected by the justices of each petty sessional division (in London, by the Lord Chancellor), have power to try most charges against children under seventeen. The general public is excluded and there are restrictions on newspaper reports of the proceedings.

Quarter Sessions. The Court of Quarter Sessions of a county is composed of the Justices of the Peace for the county with a legally qualified Chairman. Trials are usually presided over by the Chairman or a legally qualified Deputy Chairman sitting with lay Justices and with a jury. In large towns a Recorder, who is a salaried barrister, sits alone with a jury.

Quarter Sessions have jurisdiction over the less serious indictable offences excluding, among others, those carrying the penalty of life imprisonment.

Assizes. Sessions of the Courts of Assize, which try the most serious indictable offences, are held in county towns and the larger cities three, four or five times a year and are presided over by a judge of the Queen's Bench Division (see "High Court of Justice" below) or a Commissioner of Assize, i.e. a barrister commissioned to act as a judge sitting with a jury. The Central Criminal Court in London (the Old Bailey) acts in the main as the Assize Court for London and its environs. The Crown Courts at Liverpool and Manchester act as the Assize Court for these cities and part of Lancashire.

From the Quarter Sessions or Assizes appeal lies to the Queen's Bench Divisional Court, which is composed of Queen's Bench Judges, normally three in number.

The final court of appeal in the United Kingdom for both criminal and civil cases is the House of Lords, sitting as a Law Court. The only peers who take part in these sessions are the Lord Chancellor, ex-Lord Chancellors, ex-judges who are peers and nine Lords of Appeal in Ordinary, who are paid judges with life peerages.

U.K. (GREAT BRITAIN)—(JUDICIAL SYSTEM)

CIVIL COURTS

County Courts. A high proportion of civil actions are tried in these courts, which are presided over by a paid judge, sitting alone. Subjects coming under the jurisdiction of County Courts include rent restrictions, certain cases under the Landlord and Tenant Act, 1954, and all civil cases where the sum in dispute is not more than £500, or where, in actions for the recovery of land, the rateable value of the land is not over £400. The jurisdiction may be increased by the consent of the parties and in certain other special cases. Some divorce cases are at present heard by County Court judges sitting as Special Commissioners.

High Court of Justice. Certain civil cases are heard in the three divisions of this court—Chancery, Queen's Bench and Probate, Divorce and Admiralty. The Chancery Division deals with adoption and wardships, trusts, mortgages and disputes concerning land, construction of wills and company, bankruptcy, revenue and patent proceedings. Queen's Bench tries civil actions for damages for breach of contract or for tort. The judges of this division hear also criminal cases at Assizes (see above). The third division deals with probate of wills, matrimonial causes and shipping cases, such as disputes over collisions and claims for salvage.

The judges of these three divisions have the title of Justice of the High Court.

JUDICIAL COMMITTEE OF THE PRIVY COUNCIL

This is a standing committee, consisting of the Law Lords of the United Kingdom (the Lord Chancellor, ex-Lord Chancellors and Lords of Appeal in Ordinary) and other Privy Counsellors who have held high judicial office. It is the highest court of appeal on certain issues concerning Australia, New Zealand, Ceylon and United Kingdom dependent territories and, in a few instances, the United Kingdom. The Lord Chancellor selects a board of three or five from the Committee by invitation for each particular case.

The following represent the Commonwealth:

Rt Hon Sir OWEN DIXON, G.C.M.G.
Rt Hon Sir HAROLD ERIC BARRACLOUGH, K.C.M.G., C.B., D.S.O., M.C., E.D.
Rt Hon Sir ROBERT TREDCOLO, K.C.M.G.

SCOTTISH JUDICIAL SYSTEM

CRIMINAL COURTS

Minor offences, as in the rest of the United Kingdom, are dealt with in magistrates' courts.

Sheriff Court. Most criminal actions, including all but the most serious offences, are heard in this court. Each of the twelve sheriffdoms of Scotland has a Sheriff and a number of Sheriffs-Substitute, who conduct the proceedings.

High Court of Justiciary. The supreme criminal court in Scotland and all the most serious criminal cases are taken there. Appeal may be made to it from the Sheriff Court; there is, however, no further appeal to the House of Lords.

The judges of this court are known as Lords Commissioners of Justiciary and are headed by the Lord Justice General. Apart from their criminal jurisdiction in this court, these same eighteen judges are also judges of the Court of Session (see below) in civil cases. The Lord Justice General is also the President of the Court of Session.

CIVIL COURTS

Sheriff Court. Tries civil as well as criminal cases, and in civil cases its jurisdiction is practically unlimited. Appeal may be made to the Court of Session.

Court of Session. This is the supreme civil court in Scotland. It has an Inner House and an Outer House.

Inner House. Has two divisions of equal standing, each consisting of four judges under the presidency of the Lord President and the Lord Justice Clerk respectively, is mainly an appeal court, whence further appeal may be made to the House of Lords.

Outer House. Deals with the major civil cases and all divorce actions.

The judges are those of the High Court of Justiciary, sitting in a civil capacity as judges of the Court of Session.

THE CROWN AND THE CONSTITUTION

on the advice of her Ministers which she cannot, constitutionally, ignore, power, which has been at various times and in varying degrees in the hands of kings, feudal barons, ministers, councils and parliaments, or of par-

Both the powers of the Government and the functions of the Sovereign are determined by the Constitution, by the body of fundamental principles on which the State is governed and the methods, institutions and procedures which give them effect. But the United Kingdom has no written Constitution. There is no document, no one law or statute, to which reference can be made. The Constitution is organic, it is an accumulation of convention, precedent and tradition which, although continually changing as the times change, is at any one moment binding and exact.

Some of the principles and many of the practices are secured by Statute, some are avowed by Declaration or Manifesto and many are incorporated in the Common Law, the Reform Bill of 1832 dramatically broadened the basis of representative government and prepared the way for further changes, the Bill of Rights of 1689 ended the long era of rivalry between Crown and Parliament and began the story of their co-operation, and Magna Carta, in 1215, began the process by which the law of the land acquired a status of its own, independent of King and Parliament and, as Professor G. M. Trevelyan has put it, "gave expression to the spirit of individual liberty as it has ever since been understood in England." But the Constitution is above all based on usage. It has been, and will continue to be, moulded and modified to match changing customs and to meet successive situations. Any one Parliament could, if it chose, revise or repeal every law and disown every convention that has constitutional significance. It could destroy the whole fabric of political and

but it can change it

This evolutionary Constitution has come into being only because the United Kingdom emerged and consolidated over long years when change was slow, and because she escaped any violent revolution. New countries, which stitutions to evolve. It is perhaps paradoxical that the United Kingdom, who has no written constitution herself, should provide a model for so many new constitutions in such various lands. In some respects the modern constitution makers have the best of several worlds: they can apply their own skill and judgment, unhindered by preceding legislation; and they can draw on the experience of a long past and see its results.

It would be impossible to enumerate the principles which are extant in the British Constitution. It would also be misleading, because declarations of general principles are quite out of character. In constitutional as in legal practice, the way has been to admit the general principle in quite practical terms related to specific practical problems. The Habeas Corpus Act, which establishes the principle of no imprisonment without trial, makes no mention of the principle itself but lays down in most concrete terms the punishments that shall be inflicted on a judge, or other law officer, if he fails to issue the Writ (commanding the prisoner to be brought before the court) when applied for. The principles of the Constitution and constitutional practice are in fact inherent in the Common Law on the one hand and in the statute of functions and government on the other. The Privy Council and of the Government Departments

THE SOVEREIGN

The Queen's title in the United Kingdom is "Elizabeth II, by the Grace of God of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland and of Her other Realms and Territories Queen, Head of the Commonwealth, Defender of the Faith." The title varies slightly for different parts of the Commonwealth. Except in India, Pakistan, Ghana, Malaysia, Cyprus, Kenya, Uganda, Nigeria, Tanzania, Zambia, Singapore, Malawi, Botswana, Lesotho, Swaziland and Guyana, the Queen is represented in each full member country of the Commonwealth by a Governor-General

Commonwealth country she can of course take over the functions of the Governor-General.

The monarchy is hereditary, descending to the sons of the Sovereign in order of seniority or, if there are no sons, to the daughters.

Her constitutional position as head of the state, quite apart from her position as Head of the Commonwealth, demands of the Queen that she keep herself informed on all aspects of the life of her subjects, that she maintain absolute impartiality and that she should personally visit the different parts of her realm as often as it is possible for her to do so, but she has also quite specific functions, all exercised on ministerial advice: she summons, prorogues and dissolves Parliament, she must give Royal Assent to a Bill which has passed through both Houses of Parliament, before it becomes law, she is head of the judiciary (although the judiciary is now quite independent of the executive), she appoints all important state officials, including judges, officers of the forces and representatives abroad, and she confers honours and awards. Her formal consent is necessary before a Minister can take up office or a Cabinet be formed, and before a Treaty may be concluded, war declared or peace made. These are some of the more essential functions. But the Queen has also endless subsidiary responsibilities, such as the guardianship of infants

THE CHURCH OF ENGLAND

The Church of England claims to be both Catholic and Reformed. Originating from the Celtic Mission of St. Aidan from Scotland and from the Roman Mission of St. Augustine, it finally renounced the jurisdiction of the Pope at the Reformation, while retaining the episcopal form of Church government.

The Church of England is the Established Church, and as such acknowledges the authority of Parliament in matters in which secular authority is competent to exercise control. Queen Elizabeth I was declared "supreme Governor on Earth" of the Church of England, and the Sovereign is consecrated to this office at his coronation.

In England there are two Provinces, Canterbury and York. The former contains 29, the latter 14, dioceses. Each Province has its ancient Houses of Convocation, the Upper House consisting of the Archbishop and Diocesan Bishops, and the Lower House of Deans of cathedrals, the two senior Archdeacons of each diocese in each Province, and the elected representatives of the clergy in each diocese. The estimated membership of the Church of England in 1966 was 27,658,000 (baptised) and 2,682,181 on the electoral rolls.

By the Church of England Assembly (Powers) Act, 1919 (usually called the Enabling Act) the Constitution of the National Assembly of the Church of England ("Church Assembly") received statutory recognition in 1920, with power, subject to the control and authority of Parliament, of initiating legislation on all matters concerning the Church of England. Measures passed by the Assembly and approved by Parliament, are submitted for the Royal Assent, and have the force of Acts of Parliament.

The Church Assembly consists of three Houses; the House of Bishops, composed of 24 senior Bishops, the representatives and 5 co-opted members

THE CHURCH IN WALES

THE PROVINCE OF WALES

The Province of Wales was created as a result of the Welsh Church Act of 1914, which took effect on March 31st, 1920, and separated the four Welsh Dioceses from the Province of Canterbury.

The Province is practically coterminous with Wales and Monmouthshire, with the exception of a few border parishes which, under the Welsh Church Act, voted themselves out of the Church in Wales.

There are 6 Dioceses: St. Asaph, Bangor, St. Davids, Llandaff, Monmouth, and Swansea and Brecon. There are 826 Incumbencies, 980 clergy and approx. 1,700 churches in the Province. The number of Easter communicants is approx. 165,500.

The Province is governed by the General Synod of the Church of Wales, which meets annually in Bangor. It consists of the Bishops, Clergy, and Lay members, and central funds of the Church.

Office: 39 Cathedral Road, Cardiff. Lay Sec of the Governing Body, Sec and Accountant of the Representative Body, and Clerical Sec to Archdeacon of Margam: W. R. JONES.

U.K. (GREAT BRITAIN)—(THE CROWN AND THE CONSTITUTION, THE GOVERNMENT)

HER MAJESTY'S GOVERNMENT

The Government is headed by the Prime Minister, who is also the leader of the Party which holds the majority in the House of Commons. It includes Ministers who are in charge of Government departments and those who hold traditional offices which involve no special departmental duties; the Chancellor of the Exchequer and the Lord Chancellor, who are specially responsible for financial and economic, and legal affairs respectively, the law officers of the Crown (the Attorney-General and Solicitor-General, the Lord Advocate for Scotland and the Solicitor-General for Scotland), the Ministers of State, who are usually appointed to assist Ministers in charge of departments, and Parliamentary Secretaries and Under-Secretaries.

The Cabinet. The Cabinet system developed during the eighteenth century from the informal meetings of Privy Counsellors who were also ministers and who formed a committee of manageable size which, it was gradually realised, could take decisions far more quickly and simply than larger bodies. The cabinet to-day has between 15-25 members at the discretion of the Prime Minister—its main duty is to formulate policy for submission to Parliament.

Ministerial responsibility. The doctrine of ministerial responsibility has also evolved gradually but was generally accepted by the middle of the last century. Each Minister is answerable to the Crown

Congregational Church in England and Wales: Livingstone House, 21 Carteret St., London, S.W.1; formerly the Congregational Union of England and Wales; Pres Rev. R. W. H. JONES, B.A., M.B. Sec. Rev. JOHN HUXTABLE.

The Union was founded in 1831. The leading feature of Congregational polity is the autonomous character of the local church, the duty of each individual member to take part in the church's government, and its independence of all external ecclesiastical authority. Two orders only are recognised, that of the pastor or minister elected by the free vote of the members of each individual church; and deacons (laymen or women, elected by the membership of the church), who supervise its temporal affairs and assist the minister in the administration of the Lord's Supper and in such pastoral work as may be necessary. In May 1966 the Constitution of the Union was altered to form the Congregational Church in England and Wales.

In England and Wales there are 1,677 Congregational ministers, 2,386 churches and 181,101 members. Publ. Congregational Monthly.

There are between three and four hundred congregations included in the Assembly, some twenty of which are in the Dominions. Adult membership is estimated at 15,000. The congregations are self-governing, but for common purposes and mutual benefit they are united in District Associations and the General Assembly. Publ. The Inquirer (weekly), The Unitarian (monthly).

The Methodist Church: 1 Central Buildings, London, S.W.1; Pres of the Conference (1969-70) Rev. BRIAN S. O'GORMAN. The Wesleyan Methodist Church was founded in 1739 as a result of the evangelical mission work conducted by Rev. John Wesley, M.A., a priest of the Church of England, and others, including his brother, Rev. Charles Wesley, M.A. The doctrinal standards are contained in certain of John Wesley's sermons and his Notes on the new Testament. It spread rapidly in the British Isles and to America. The Methodist Church in Great Britain was united in 1932 by the fusion of the Wesleyan Methodist Church, the Primitive Methodist Church (f. 1807) and the United Methodist Church, itself a fusion of three Methodist Churches.

The chief court of the Church is the Annual Conference, which consists of ministers and laymen. The Church throughout Great Britain is divided into 34 Districts, and these hold their Synod Meetings in September and May. The Districts are divided into Circuits, which hold a Quarterly Meeting, made up of representatives from the churches within the Circuit. There are also local church courts.

At the end of 1968 there were 651,139 members of the Methodist Church in Great Britain with a Methodist community in the country of some 2,000,000.

The chief Methodist press organ is the Methodist Recorder (weekly).

(Except where otherwise stated, addresses are in London.)

The United Kingdom has the highest number of newspapers per head of population in the world, and boasts some of the highest circulation figures for individual newspapers (Daily Mirror 5.1 million, Daily Express 3.7 million, News of the World 6.4 million). The United Kingdom has also a long tradition of press independence from political and commercial pressures, though in negative ways, by the withholding of information or by attempts to withhold advertising revenue, such pressure can be applied.

There is no law which specifies the operations of the Press but several items of legislation bear directly on press activities.

Although exact reporting of legal proceedings appearing at the time of trial is protected from later charges of defamation, the freedom to report cases is subject to certain restrictions as defined in the Judicial Proceedings Act of 1926, in the Children's and Young Persons' Act of 1933 and in the Criminal Justice Act 1967.

The strict laws of contempt of court and of libel somewhat limit the scope of the Press. Journalists are subject to the former if they publish material liable to interfere with a matter which is sub judice, but this law is qualified by the Administration of Justice Act of 1960 which declares an editor not guilty of contempt if, after taking reasonable care, he remained ignorant of the fact that proceedings were pending. The Scottish law of contempt is more severe than the English.

In recent years libel cases involving the awarding of extremely punitive damages against the Press have taken place. The Defamation Act of 1952 lessened the possible repercussions of unintentional libel and made provision for the claim of fair comment by the defence.

The Official Secrets Act of 1911 prohibits the publication of secret information where this is judged not to be in the national interest. The Secretary of State is empowered to require a person with information about a violation of the Act to disclose his source. Journalists have no exemption here. The Act has been criticized as allowing a veil of secrecy to obscure government failings and maladministration.

The publication of morally objectionable and harmful material is treated in the Children's and Young Persons' (Harmful Publications) Act of 1955 and in the Obscene Publications Act.

In recent years legislative measures have been taken to limit the excessive development of concentrations of newspaper ownership and the extent of the control by newspaper owners over other mass media such as the television. The Television Act of 1964 provides for intervention by the Postmaster-General or the Independent Television Authority where investments by newspaper owners in television companies are judged liable to lead to abuses. The Monopolies and Mergers Act of 1965 requires the written consent of the Board of Trade for the transfer of daily or weekly papers with an aggregate average of over 500,000 copies per day of publication. The Board's decision is based on the conclusions of the Monopolies Commission to which, with exception of cases of papers judged to be uneconomical and of papers with an average daily circulation of no more than 25,000 copies, all cases are referred for investigation.

The National Union of Journalists Code of Conduct and the Institute of Journalists Code of Ethics (1963) define the form of professional conduct for British journalists.

The Press Council is a non-statutory association of newspaper editors, publishers, journalists' organizations

During 1969 the Australian newspaper owner Rupert Murdoch gained control of the News of the World and The Sun.

No newspaper is directly owned by a political party. The Morning Star, closely related to the British Communist Party, is effectively owned by the People's Press Printing Society, a co-operative society with 30,000 members. Several influential newspapers are owned and operated by trusts or independent companies, notably The Observer and The Economist.

The Times, The Daily Mirror, The Daily Express and The Daily Mail (daily), The Sunday Mirror, The News of the World and The People (Sunday newspapers), Woman and Woman's Own (weekly magazines), which together with The Radio Times and the T.V. Times represent the most widely distributed newspapers and magazines.

THE PRESS COUNCIL

6 Salisbury Square, Fleet Street, E.C.4.

The Press Council, a voluntary body consisting of an independent chairman, five lay-members and twenty reconstituted in July 1963. Its principal aims are to safeguard the freedom of the Press, to maintain its highest professional and commercial standards, to deal with any complaints it may receive about the conduct of the Press or of any persons towards the Press, to keep under review developments likely to restrict the supply of information of public interest and importance and to report publicly on developments that may tend towards greater concentration or monopoly in the Press.

PUBLISHERS

(Except where otherwise stated, addresses are in London.)

In 1968 there were 1,400 publishing firms in the United Kingdom. They are mainly located in London and many are members of large publishing groups, notably the International Publishing Corporation (The Hamlyn Publishing Group), Associated Book Publishers and Granada. There are also a large number of flourishing private firms often producing no more than one or two titles a year. In recent years there has been tremendous expansion in certain fields of publishing, and while the amount of fiction has remained fairly static, the field of art books, literature and literary criticism and, above all, educational books, has expanded rapidly. In 1969 a total of 31,416 new books were published. The paperback industry is growing every year and there are currently about 34,000 paperbacks in print.

ASSOCIATION OF SOUTH EAST ASIAN NATIONS—ASEAN

ing facilities were made available for nationals of other member countries. An ASA Research Centre was to have been established in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia.

Education. Exchanges of teachers and students and increased facilities for teaching the language, history and geography of member countries. Accreditation and equivalence of degrees were being studied to facilitate exchanges in higher education.

Transport and Tourism. The Malaysian and Thai national airlines have pooled services and it was planned that the Philippines join the pool at a later date. A project for a joint airline to operate supersonic aircraft was under discussion. The possibility of a U.S. $250 million Asian Shipping Line is being studied under a joint agreement between ASEAN countries, signed in June 1968. A minimum fleet of 600,000 d.w.t. is envisaged to maintain services to U.S.A. and Europe as well as within the region. In 1962 a through train service between Kuala Lumpur and Bangkok was inaugurated and further rail links are to be established. Visas had been abolished for officials and visa fees waived for nationals of ASA countries. Tourism was actively encouraged under ASA, and ASEAN members are jointly studying tourist promotion.

Cultural Exchanges. Tours by theatrical and dance groups, holding of art exhibitions, and exchange of radio and television programmes, films and visual aids.

THIRD ASEAN MINISTERIAL MEETING

Held 16-18 December 1969 in Cameron Highlands, Malaysia. Major decisions were the approval of 98 projects in fields ranging from tourism to telecommunications; agreement to set up an ASEAN fund with initial contributions of U.S. $1 million from each member; agreement for co-operation in the mass media and cultural activities. It was also decided not to enlarge the membership of the organization for the time being.

FINANCE

(brs. = branches; cap. = capital; p.u. = paid up; subs. = subscribed; dep. = deposits; m. = million.)

Lombard merchants, from Southern Europe and the main Italian towns, were active in the City of London before the reign of Edward II. By the time of the Restoration, the United Kingdom, through their influence, was already a major financial power. Seizure by Charles I of £200,000 stored in the Tower forced the goldsmiths to keep ready cash in circulation and to operate, for the first time, the modern banking system based on credit. By 1677, 37 goldsmiths were keeping "running cashes" or accounts in Lombard Street, which forms to this day the centre of the banking area of the City of London.

Until 1826 commercial banks in England were restricted to six partners, resulting in a regular succession of bank failures in times of crisis. Banking joint stock companies were established all over the country by 1833. By 1866 there were 154 joint stock banks with 850 branches, against 246 private banks with 376 branches. By 1900 there were only 19 private banks in existence.

As a result of England's lead in international trade and finance during and after the industrial revolution, several countries tended to use sterling rather than their national currency for international trading transactions, and maintained their central currency reserves in London. These countries pegged their currency exchange rate to the pound sterling when the gold standard was abandoned by the U.K. in 1931; the pound was further devalued by 33½ per cent in 1949, and by 14.3 per cent in 1967. Since 1958 sterling has been, for non-residents, freely transferable and convertible into dollars, and in 1961 became fully convertible. (For Sterling Area see Commonwealth Co-operation in Part I). United Kingdom gold and foreign exchange reserves are held in the Government Exchange Equalization Account operated since 1932 by the Bank of England as agent for the Treasury.

The United Kingdom's central bank is the Bank of England, which was established by Act of Parliament and Royal Charter in 1694 and was nationalized under the Bank of England Act, 1946. The Charter Act of 1833 made the currency of the Bank of England legal tender throughout England, and slowly the notes of the other London bankers were driven out of use. The 1844 Charter Act provided that no new bank should have the right of issue and that paper money could only be issued to a fixed amount against securities and gold. Due to further failures, a wholly managed currency was ultimately achieved by 1914. The Bank of England is responsible for co-ordinating the implementation of the Government's monetary policy. It holds the main Government accounts and acts as Agent for the issue and registration of Government loans. It is the sole bank of issue for England and Wales, but the principal banks in Scotland and Northern Ireland may, and in the case of Scotland do, act as their own banks of issue, though the amount issued by them must be fully covered by Bank of England note and coin. The Bank is further responsible for exchange control regulations.

The Bank of England holds large deposits from the commercial banks; these form a major part of the commercial banks' cash reserves. Special Deposits are called in from all British commercial banks by the Bank of England to restrict the liquidity of the banking system, and are not freely disposable. These have been called in between June 1960 and December 1962, and again in May 1965 and July 1966.

The principal commercial banks in the U.K. are all limited liability companies. The 'Big Four'—Barclays, Lloyds, Midland, National Westminster—together with Coutts, Glyn Mills, National, Williams Deacons', with, in addition, The Bank of England, form the London Bankers' thirds of the deposits of the entire banking system. There are about 14,000 branches of these banks throughout the U.K.

The U.K. commercial banks undertake all normal types of banking business, but it is not their practice to provide fixed capital for business concerns. Finance of industry is mainly limited to short-term advances and overdrafts by the customer on his bank. Special financial facilities are left to other financial institutions such as the discount market, finance corporations, investment trusts and the insurance market.

There are eight major British Overseas and Commonwealth Banks which have branches in London and seven of these have their headquarters here. These are the Australia and New Zealand Banking Group, Barclays D.C.O., Bank of London and South America, Chartered Bank, Hong Kong and Shanghai Banking Corporation, National and Grindlays, Ottoman, and The Standard Bank. Their main purpose is to finance trade between the U.K., their own countries and also third countries. Their network was built up in the second half of the nineteenth century, there are nearly 4,500 branches of these banks in over 70 countries of the world. They are active in specialized areas for example the Bank of London and South America deals with Spanish- and Portuguese-speaking countries and The Standard Bank and Barclays D.C.O. specialize in Africa. There are several other smaller banks of this kind. In addition there are 12 United States Banks, 8 Japanese Banks and over 50 other foreign banks including one from the U.S.S.R.

The London Gold Market evolved in the days of the Australian and Canadian gold rushes in the nineteenth century. It is the largest and most active for gold and has been authorized banks may, but rarely do, deal in the commodity. The Gold Market was closed from the outbreak of the Second World War until March 1954, when it was successfully re-opened under the general supervision of the Bank of England. In 1966 a gold pool was initiated to co-ordinate the gold operations of European central banks in London and the Federal Reserve Bank of New York. The pool consists of a selling consortium, only in operation when the market requires stabilization, and a buying financial trusts, investment management and insurance.

The specialized Discount Market trades in and holds commercial bills of exchange and other short-term securities. Treasury bills and government short-term bonds are, however, the main business undertaken by the 12 members of the London discount market. They finance the purchase of the bills and securities they hold, principally by loans from the commercial banks. They may also borrow from the Bank of England but at a higher rate of interest.

Development Finance Company, set up in 1953, invests private capital.
Other firms
Mortgage Co
Agricultura
 These grant long-term loans against mortgages on agricultural lands and buildings in England, Wales and Scotland.

The Co-operative Wholesale Society formed a deposit and loan department in 1872 and was legally chartered in 1876. It is the financial centre of the co-operative movement with headquarters in Manchester. In 1948 the Scottish Co-operative Wholesale Society also commenced banking operations.

Small savings are for the most part entrusted to Trustee Savings Banks and the National Savings Movement, together with the Post Office Savings Bank. The Trustee Savings Banks were started in the nineteenth century and in 1966 there were 78 banks with 1,374 offices and over £10 million in accounts. Cheque services were first introduced in 1964. National Savings Certificates were first introduced during the First World War. Interest is payable on encashment and free from income tax. The National Savings Movement is led by the National Savings Committee for England and Wales and similar committees for Scotland and Northern Ireland. Premium bonds were first issued in 1936, receiving prizes instead of fixed interest rates. In June 1966 £557 million was invested in Premium Bonds, and £813 million in the Post Office Savings Bank. This was founded in 1861 and has about 22 million accounts. The depositor may pay in or withdraw money at any of the post offices throughout the country. The Post Office Giro was opened in October 1968, with headquarters on Merseyside. This provides a postal cheque service for anyone with a current postal account but there are no overdraft facilities. The Clearing and Scottish banks operate a Bank Giro service of their own.

Another very popular form of saving is in Building Societies. There were 605 of these in the U.K. in 1966 and 11 of the companies account for over 60 per cent of the total funds invested in this way.

There are 21 Stock Exchanges in the U.K., 15 in England and Wales, five of which four were linked work.

Lloyds has a world-wide reputation for shipping insurance and also for other forms of insurance. There are 5,800 underwriting members of Lloyds divided into about 300 syndicates. Lloyds was the world's first recognized insurance market. There are also over 400 insurance companies incorporated in the U.K., and a further 100 foreign companies with branches in this country. Most of the British work is in the hands of 106 of the British-based companies.

SHIPPING

PORTS

There are about 300 ports in the United Kingdom of which London, Liverpool, Milford Haven, Medway, Southampton, Manchester, Clyde, Tees and Hartlepool, Hull, Bristol, Immingham and the Tyne ports are the largest (in terms of the tonnage of shipping cleared). Nineteen ports, including Hull, Southampton and the ports in South Wales, are nationally owned and administered by the British Transport Docks Board. London is administered by the Port of London Authority, Liverpool by the Mersey Docks and Harbours Board, Belfast by the Belfast Harbour Commission and Glasgow by the Clyde Port Authority. Bristol and a few smaller ports are under the control of local authorities, and there are over a hundred ports, of which Manchester is the largest, which are owned and administered by private companies.

ORGANIZATION

THE COMMITTEE OF MINISTERS OF THE ECONOMIC UNION

The Committee of Ministers consists of not less than three Ministers and generally speaking the Ministers of Foreign Affairs, Foreign Trade, Economic Affairs, Agriculture, Finance and Social Affairs of the three countries. Resolutions in the Committee of Ministers must be carried unanimously, but an abstention will not be considered as a negative vote. It supervises the application of the Benelux Economic Union Treaty and ensures that the aims specified therein are pursued. To this end, the Committee of Ministers can take decisions, establish conventions, make recommendations and issue directives. The Committee may also set up Working Parties to which it may delegate certain of its powers.

THE CONSULTATIVE INTER-PARLIAMENTARY COUNCIL

Permanent Secretary: M. HONDEQUIN, Palais de la Nation, Brussels 1

The Consultative Inter-Parliamentary Council consists of forty-nine members, twenty-one each from the Netherlands and Belgian Parliaments and seven from Luxembourg Parliament. It was set up by a Convention which entered into force in September 1956. This Council may deliberate and communicate to the three Governments its views on problems of direct concern to the Economic Union, including cultural relations, foreign policy and the standardization of laws. The Interparliamentary Council receives an annual report, jointly established by the three Governments, on each of the above problems. These reports are published.

THE COUNCIL OF ECONOMIC UNION

Chairmen: Prof. G. BROUWERS (Netherlands), Prof. G. CRAEN (Belgium), A. DUTH (Luxembourg)

The Council of Economic Union consists of three chairmen, one from each member country, and of the presidents of Committees, presidents of the Special Committees may be co-opted on to the Council when their special fields are under discussion.

The Council is responsible for ensuring the execution of the decisions of the Committee of Ministers and for making proposals to the Committee of Ministers, for co-ordinating the work of the Committees and Special Committees; for giving them directives and for transmitting their proposals to the Committee of Ministers.

COMMITTEES AND SPECIAL COMMITTEES

There are eight Committees: Foreign Economic Relations, Monetary and Financial, Industrial and Commercial, Agriculture, Food and Fisheries, Customs and Taxation, Transport, Social, Movement and Establishment of Persons.

There are eight Special Committees: Co-ordination of Statistics, Comparison of Government Budgets, Public Tenders, Public Health, Retail Trade and Handicrafts, Movement of Persons (control at external frontiers), Territorial Planning, Tourism.

THE SECRETARIAT-GENERAL

Secretary-General: Dr. C. D. A. BARON VAN LYNDEN
Deputies: E. R. VAN DER AA, E. LEICK

The Secretary-General is always of Netherlands nationality and is assisted by one Belgian and one Luxembourg Deputy Secretary-General. They are appointed by the Committee of Ministers and are directly responsible to the Working Group of the Committee of Ministers for the administration of the Union. The Budget of the Secretariat for 1969 was 40,554,000 Belgian Francs to which Belgium and the Netherlands each contributed 48.5% and Luxembourg 3%.

JOINT SERVICES

The Committee of Ministers may establish Joint Services to improve the functioning of the Economic Union, and determine their tasks, operational layout and working methods. Up to now no joint services have been established.

THE ARBITRATION TRIBUNAL

The Arbitration Tribunal is composed of six persons (two from each member country) appointed by the Committee of Ministers. Their function is to settle any disputes that may arise from the working of the Union.

THE ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL ADVISORY COUNCIL

President: A. DE SMAELE.

The Economic and Social Advisory Council consists of twenty-seven members and twenty-seven deputy members from representative economic and social organizations, each country supplying one third of the number. It may offer advice on its own initiative or prepare considered opinions when requested to do so by the Committee of Ministers.

THE CONSTITUTION

NORTHERN IRELAND is part of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland. By the Government of Ireland Act, 1920, the parliamentary counties of Antrim, Armagh, Down, Fermanagh, Londonderry and Tyrone and the parliamentary boroughs of Belfast and Londonderry were established as a separate area of government under the Parliament of Northern Ireland.

LEGISLATURE

The Parliament of Northern Ireland has, with certain exceptions, general legislative and executive powers over the territory. It consists of the Senate, composed of one ex-officio member and 24 senators elected by the lower house, and the Commons, the 52 members of which are elected by popular vote. In consequence of the reservation of certain legislative and fiscal powers to the United Kingdom Government, Northern Ireland also returns 12 members of Parliament to Westminster. Money Bills must originate in the Commons, and may not be amended in the Senate. Any deadlock may be resolved by a decision of the houses in joint session after the Senate has rejected a Bill twice passed by the Commons.

The Governor, as the representative of the Crown, gives or withholds the Royal Assent to Bills passed by the Legislature of Northern Ireland. The Crown may also reserve Bills, and a Bill so reserved does not become law unless the Royal Assent is given within one year. The Governor also summons, prorogues and dissolves the Parliament.

EXECUTIVE

Executive powers are exercised by the Governor and the Ministers, who are responsible to the Legislature. Matters relating to the Crown, the defence of the realm, relations with foreign powers, coinage, wireless telegraphy and the Post Office, together with certain financial matters, are reserved to the Imperial Parliament.

Services transferred to the control of the Northern Ireland Parliament include law and order, local government, health services, National Insurance and allied services, education, agriculture, transport, electricity, fisheries, harbours and industrial development.

Fiscal powers are limited, the main powers of taxation, including the customs and excise duties, income tax, surtax, and any other taxes on income, capital, or profits, being reserved to and imposed by the Imperial Parliament, at the same rates as apply elsewhere in the United Kingdom. These taxes account for approximately 90 per cent of revenues raised from Northern Ireland and are collected in the United Kingdom Exchequer. A Joint Exchequer Board allocates this amount in three portions, the first two of which are retained in the United Kingdom Exchequer, namely the actual cost of certain reserved services in Northern Ireland, and a contribution to the cost of Imperial Services generally. The amount thus retained averaged about 40 per cent of the total in pre-war years, rose to 80 per cent during the war and is at present about 13 per cent. The remainder, known as the Residuary Share of Reserved Taxes, is paid to the Northern Ireland Exchequer to meet, with the proceeds of local revenues, the cost of services administered by the Northern Ireland Government. The locally administered taxes comprise Estate Duty, Stamp Duties, Motor Vehicle Duties and miscellaneous items.

Local administration is broadly the same as in Great Britain.

THE GOVERNMENT

(March 1970)

Governor: H.E. Lord GREY OF NAUNTON, G.C.M.G., K.C.V.O., O.B.E., Government House, Hillsborough.

THE CABINET

Prime Minister: Major The Rt. Hon. J. D. CHICHESTER-CLARK, D.L., M.P.

Minister in the Senate and Deputy Prime Minister: The Rt. Hon. J. L. O. ANDREWS, D.L.

Minister of Finance: The Rt. Hon. H. V. KIRK, M.P.

Minister of Home Affairs: The Rt. Hon. R. W. PORTER, Q.C., M.P.

Minister of Health and Social Services: The Rt. Hon. W. K. FITZSIMMONS, M.P.

Minister of Education: Capt. The Rt. Hon. W. J. LONG, M.P.

Minister of Agriculture: The Rt. Hon. P. R. H. O'NEILL, D.L., M.P.

Minister of Commerce: The Rt. Hon. R. H. BRADFORD, B.A., M.P.

Minister of Development: The Rt. Hon. A. B. D. FAULKNER, D.L., M.P.

Minister of State at the Ministry of Development: The Rt. Hon. N. O. MINFORD.

Minister of Community Relations: The Rt. Hon. R. SIMPSON, M.B., M.P.

Minister and Leader of the House of Commons: The Rt. Hon. J. DOBSON, M.A., M.P.

Secretary of Cabinet: Sir HAROLD BLACK.

MINISTERS NOT IN THE CABINET

Attorney-General: Rt. Hon. BASIL KELLY, Q.C., M.P.

Parliamentary Secretary to Prime Minister: Senator D. R. McGLADDERY.

Assistant Parliamentary Secretary, Ministry of Finance: S. MAGOWAN, M.P.

Parliamentary Secretary, Minister of Commerce: Capt. The Hon. J. W. BROOKE, D.L., M.P.

Parliamentary Secretary, Minister of Home Affairs: J. D. TAYLOR, B.SC., M.P.

ATOMIC ENERGY

United Kingdom Atomic Energy Authority (UKAEA): 31 Charles II St., London, S.W.1. f. 1954; Chair: Dr. J. M. HILL; Deputy Chair: Sir CHARLES CUNNINGHAM, K.C.B., K.B.E., C.V.O., Member for Reactor Development; Dr. H. KRONBERGER, C.B.E., F.R.S., Member for Production; Dr. N. L. FRANKLIN, O.B.E., Member for Weapons Research and Development; Air Chief Marshal Sir DEAN BARNETT, G.C.B., C.B.E., D.F.C.; Member for Research; Dr. W. MARSHALL, Sec. D. E. H. PETERSON, C.B.E.
London: central administration, public relations and overseas collaboration

Group Headquarters

Reactor Group, Risley, Lancs.; Man. Dir. R. V. MOORE, G.C., C.B.E.

Production Group, Risley, Lancs.; Man. Dir. T. TONRY, C.B.E.

Radiochemical Centre, Amersham, Bucks.; Dir. Dr. W. P. GROVE

Research Atomic Energy Research Establishment, Harwell, Berks.; Dir. Dr. W. MARSHALL

Weapons Atomic Weapons Research Establishment, Aldermaston, Berks.; Dir. E. F. NEWLEY, C.B.E.

The Authority deals with every aspect of nuclear energy other than certain matters relating to nuclear weapons. It undertakes research, it is the sole importer of uranium, it sells fuel to the electricity authorities, processes the spent fuel elements, and buys back plutonium extracted from them (Separate electricity authorities implement the civil nuclear power programme.) In 1965 the functions of the Authority were extended to include the undertaking of scientific research and development in matters not connected with atomic energy, when required to do so by the Minister of Technology.

Atomic Energy Research Establishment: Harwell, nr Didcot, Berks., f. 1945; Dir. Dr. R. SPENCE, C.B., F.R.S.

The largest establishment of the Research Group. Research is mainly concerned with materials, their properties and the effects upon them of radiation. The work includes many branches of physics, chemistry and metallurgy, and also electronics, health physics, engineering and chemical engineering. There are six research reactors and several particle accelerators at Harwell.

Harwell Postgraduate Education Centre: f. 1963; Man. J. N. HUTL.

Calder Operation School: Calder Bridge, Cumberland; Man. E. WILLIAMSON.

Wantage Research Laboratory: Wantage, Berks.; Division Head, B. S. SMITH.

Houses the Isotope Research Division of the A.E.R.E. Harwell. Develops and develops new methods employing radioactive materials, especially for industrial application. Site of the package irradiation plant for experimental irradiation. The Authority intends to close the Laboratory and transfer the work to Harwell.

Wantage Isotope School: Wantage, f. 1951; Man. R. A. FAIRB.

Culham Laboratory: Abingdon, Berks., Head of Laboratory Dr. R. S. PEASE.

Research in nuclear fusion as a source of industrial power, and in plasma physics.

Dounreay Experimental Reactor Establishment: Dounreay, Caithness, Scotland; f. 1956; Dir. R. R. MATTHEWS.

Site of the 14 MW(E) Dounreay fast reactor, a material-testing reactor, and a 250 MW(E) prototype fast reactor recently completed. Supporting activities include the fabrication, irradiation and reprocessing of fast reactor fuel and the reprocessing of M.T.R. fuel.

Atomic Energy Establishment, Wansford: Dorchester, Dorset, Dir. Dr. W. FRY.

Centre for studies in reactor physics, including nuclear data evaluation, heat transfer and fluid dynamics, reactor control, nucleonic instrumentation and the assessment of reactor core performance. New reactor concepts are investigated.

Radiochemical Centre: Amersham, Bucks.; Dir. Dr. W. P. GROVE

Produces and markets radioisotopes

Atomic Weapons Research Establishment: Aldermaston, Berks.; Dir. Dr. E. F. NEWLEY, C.B.E.

Development of nuclear warheads and research and development for the civil energy programme.

Reactor Materials Laboratories: Culcheth, Warrington, Head of Laboratories J. M. HUTCHINSON.

Investigation of physical and chemical properties of reactor and fuel containing materials.

Reactor Fuel Element Laboratories: Springfields, Salwick, Preston; Head of Laboratories J. HARPER.

Development of new types of fuels and fuel elements for thermal and fast nuclear reactors.

Production Group: Risley, Warrington, Lancs.; Man. Dir. T. TONRY.

Reactor Group: Risley, Warrington, Lancs.; Man. Dir. R. V. MOORE, G.C., C.B.E.

Reactor design and development

Reactor Development Laboratories: Windscale, Sellafield, Cumberland; Head of Laboratories K. SADDINGTON, O.B.E.

Development of the Advanced Gas-cooled Reactor system and associated work, including a small experimental reactor.

Windscale and Calder Works: Sellafield, Cumberland

Operation of chemical plants for reprocessing irradiated fuels and the nuclear power station.

Capenhurst Works: Cheshire; Gen. Man. W. R. A. TAYLOR, O.B.E.

Gaseous diffusion plant for the supply of enriched uranium.

Springfields Works: Salwick, Preston, Gen. Man. Dr. H. ROGAN, O.B.E.

Uranium ore treatment and fuel element manufacture

Chapelcross Works: Annan, Dumfriesshire; operation of nuclear power station, experimental fuel irradiation and radiological research; Gen. Manager Windscale and Calder and Chapelcross G. R. HOWELLS, M.B.E.

Blacknest Centre for Sensory Research: near Aldermaston; also headquarters of Aldermaston Project for the Application of Computers to Engineering (APACE).

Foulness Establishment: Foulness, Essex; Laboratory experiments and field trials in aid of nuclear weapon.

Orfordness Establishment: Orfordness, Suffolk; Development and application of environmental testing in the nuclear weapon and other fields.

U.K. (NORTHERN IRELAND)—(PARLIAMENT, POLITICAL PARTIES, JUDICIAL SYSTEM)

PARLIAMENT

THE HOUSE OF COMMONS

General Election, February 1969

Speaker: Major The Rt Hon IVAN NEILL, B.Sc., D.L. M.P.

	SEATS
Unionists	36
Official and Independent
Unionists	3
Nationalists	6
Labour	2
Republican Labour	2
Independent	3

THE SENATE

Speakers: Senator Col The Rt. Hon Lord GLENTORAN, H.M.L.

The Senate consists of 24 members elected by the House of Commons and one ex-officio member—the Rt. Hon. The Lord Mayor of Belfast. The Senate is divided as follows:

Unionist	18
Nationalist	5
Northern Ireland Labour	1
Trade Unionist	1

POLITICAL PARTIES

The Unionist Party: pursues a policy broadly similar to that of the British Conservative Party. Leader Major The Rt. Hon JAMES D. CHESTER-CLARK, D.L., M.P.
Ulster Unionist Council: 3 Glengall St., Belfast, 1. 1903, 1,000 mems., Chair. Sir GEORGE A. CLARK, Bt., E.R.D., D.L., Sec. J. O. BAILEY.

The Nationalist Party: favours union with the Republic of Ireland. Leader R. H. O'CONNOR, M.P.

Northern Ireland Labour Party: 40 Waring St., Belfast 1, associate of the British Labour Party, supports the present Constitution of Northern Ireland and aims at the building of a non-sectarian socialist state; Leader F. V. SIMPSON, M.P.

Republican Labour Party: favours union with the Republic of Ireland.

Protestant Unionist Party: Belfast, right-wing, anti-Catholic. Leader Rev. IAN PAISLEY.

People's Democracy: Queen's University, Belfast civil rights movement. Sec.-Gen. JOHN McANERY.

JUDICIAL SYSTEM

The judicial system of Northern Ireland, so far as the criminal matters are concerned, is based on the English system. A Court of Criminal Appeal was established in 1930, also on the English pattern. The county court system to some extent corresponds to its English prototype with the important difference that in Northern Ireland a county court has, in addition to its civil jurisdiction, a criminal jurisdiction that in England is exercised at quarter sessions. County court judges and recorders of boroughs accordingly exercise all the jurisdiction which in England is divided. The courts of summary jurisdiction, again, originally followed the English system, but in 1935 an alteration was made whereby most of the judicial powers of justices of the peace were transferred to permanent paid judicial officers, known as Resident Magistrates.

The Lord Chief Justice of Northern Ireland: The Rt. Hon. Lord MacDERMOTT, M.C.

Lords Justices of Appeal: The Rt. Hon. Lord Justice Sir LANCELOT CURRAN, The Rt. Hon. Lord Justice Sir HERBERT McVEIGH.

Judges of the High Court: The Hon. Mr. Justice LOWRY, The Rt. Hon. Mr. Justice JONES, The Rt. Hon. Mr. Justice McGOVICAL, M.C., The Rt. Hon. Mr. Justice GIBSON.

Recorders: Belfast, His Honour The Rt. Hon. Judge TOPPING, Q.C.; Londonderry, His Honour Judge LITTLE, Q.C.

County Court Judges and Chairmen of Quarter Sessions: Judge DAVID LITTLE, Q.C.; Judge TOPPING, Q.C. (Belfast); Judge R. H. CONAGHAN, Q.C.; Judge W. JOHNSON, Q.C.; Judge J. A. BROWN, Q.C.

U.K. (GREAT BRITAIN)—(ATOMIC ENERGY)

RESEARCH REACTORS

Harwell

"GLEEP", first British reactor; started 1947; graphite-moderated air-cooled low-energy pile; used for materials testing, research with an oscillator and on biological irradiations.

"LIDO" swimming-pool reactor, 200 kW, started 1956.

"DIDO" heavy-water (DDO) reactor, 15 MW, with maximum neutron flux 2×10^{14} neutrons per cm.² per second, for studies requiring high-energy flux, and for isotope production, started 1956.

"PLUTO" heavy-water reactor, 20 MW (H), similar to "DIDO", for materials studies, critical 1958.

"DAPHNE" 100-watt experimental reactor, cooled and moderated with heavy water; to simulate "DIDO" and "PLUTO".

Aldermaston

"HERALD" (Heterogeneous Experimental Reactor Aldermaston), started 1959; 5-MW light-water reactor.

"HORACE" 10-watt experimental reactor to obtain basic information for "HERALD".

"VERA" 100-watt reactor to use for experimental studies on fast reactor systems.

"VIPER" pulsed fast reactor, for research on the effects of intense pulses of neutron and gamma radiation.

Winfrith

"ZENITH" 100-watt graphite-moderated reactor for investigating high-temperature, gas-cooled systems; started 1959.

"JUNO" 100-watt heavy or light water moderated reactor; started 1964.

"NESTOR" 10-kW light-water reactor to provide neutrons for sub-critical assemblies; started 1961.

"DIMPLE" Deuterium-moderated pile low-energy heavy-water pile for thermal reactor studies; started Harwell, re-erected Winfrith 1961.

"HECTOR" small experimental reactor fuelled with enriched uranium aluminium alloy; oscillator reactor, to study reactivity measurements on materials and fuel elements.

"ZEBRA" 100-watt experimental reactor with a flexible system designed primarily to investigate the physics of large fast reactors.

"S.G.H.W." steam-generating heavy-water moderated power reactor of 100 MW(E).

Windscale

"AGR" 100-MW(H) reactor fuelled with enriched uranium oxide, cooled with carbon dioxide and moderated with graphite; to study the advanced gas-cooled power reactor system.

"HERO" small experimental reactor fuelled with enriched uranium oxide; purpose to assist "AGR".

POWER REACTORS

Calder (Calderbridge): Two stations, four reactors; station "A" completed 1956, station "B" completed 1958; power 225 MW(H) per reactor; fuelled with natural uranium, cooled with carbon dioxide and moderated with graphite.

Chapelcross (Annan): Four reactors; first reactor completed 1958, second, third and fourth 1959; power 225 MW(H) per reactor; fuel, coolant and moderator as Calder.

Berkeley: Power 275 MW(E).

Bradwell: Power 300 MW(E).

Dungeness: Power 550 MW.

Hinckley Point: Power 500 MW.

Hunterston: Power 320 MW.

Sizewell: Power 580 MW.

Trawsfynydd: Power 500 MW.

POWER REACTORS UNDER CONSTRUCTION

Dungeness B: Power 1,200 MW; start-up date 1970; will use British-developed Advanced Gas-cooled Reactor System (A.G.R.).

Oldbury-on-Severn: Power 600 MW; started 1968.

Wylfa, Anglesey: Power 1,180 MW; start-up date 1968/9.

Finance. In 1955 'A Programme of Nuclear Power' was presented to Parliament outlining provisional proposals for the building of nuclear power stations to give a capacity of 1,500–2,000 MW by 1965. In March 1957 this programme was expanded to provide 5,000–6,000 MW by the end of 1965. Later this date was advanced to the end of 1966. In 1960 the policy was again reviewed and a further slowing down was decided on. Orders for new stations will be placed at a rate of roughly one a year, which has given the country about 5,000 MW of capacity in 1969. A "Second Programme of Nuclear Power" was announced in 1964 for a further 5,000 MW of capacity by 1975. Subsequently this figure was increased to 8,000 MW in October 1965. The first station of the Second Programme now under construction at Dungeness will use the British-designed Advanced Gas-cooled Reactor system, chosen in May 1965, for its clear economic and technical advantages over light water reactor systems. Electricity peak demand has however, been growing more slowly than expected and the Government has indicated that the growth of nuclear power is also likely to be slower.

Co-operation. The Atomic Energy Authority has collaboration agreements with Canada, Australia, Pakistan, U.S.A., U.S.S.R., Japan, France, Sweden, Greece, Switzerland, Spain, Denmark and Italy. The Authority is also collaborating with Belgo Nulcéaire, a consortium of Belgium firms, to develop a compact nuclear marine reactor. In 1964, UKAEA and the German company, Nuklear-Chemie und-Metallurgie G.m.b.H. formed the Nukleardienst (Nuclear Service) G.m.b.H., for the provision within the European community of a complete fuel service for advanced gas-cooled reactors.

Great Britain is a member of IAEA, ENEA, CERN, and CENTO. In February 1959 an agreement for exchange of information and designs was signed with EURATOM. Collaboration between twelve European countries in the development at the Atomic Energy Establishment, Winfrith, of the high-temperature, gas-cooled reactor experiment "DRAGON" was provided for in an agreement signed on March 23rd, 1959, under the auspices of the European Nuclear Energy Agency. This team is led by C. A. RENNIE (U.K.).

An important step was taken towards European collaboration with the achievement of a broad agreement between the Federal Republic of Germany, the Netherlands and the U.K. concerning the production of enriched uranium by the gas centrifuge method (March 1969). Other European countries have expressed interest in these developments.

NUCLEAR RESEARCH

Science Research Council: State House, High Holborn, London, W.C.1; f. 1965; Chair Sir BRIAN FLOWERS, F.R.S.

The Council was founded with the object of carrying out and encouraging research and development in science and technology; to provide and operate large-scale facilities for universities, technical colleges and other scientific institutions; to make grants for postgraduate instruction and to disseminate knowledge in science and technology. SRC is also responsible for the management of the national civil scientific space research programme and for support for the European Space Research Organization (ESRO).

RELIGION

The organization of the churches takes no account of the fact that Ireland is divided into two political entities—Northern Ireland and the Irish Republic; Armagh is the seat of both Catholic and Protestant Primate of All Ireland, and Belfast is the headquarters of the Presbyterians and Methodists.

Roman Catholic	497,547
Presbyterian	413,113
Church of Ireland	344,800
Methodist	71,865

TELEVISION

The B.B.C has two television studios in Belfast presenting daily news and sports broadcasts as well as current affairs features and occasional local plays. Facilities include a four camera television outside broadcast unit, videotape recording and a film unit which contributes to both networks and B.B.C regional services. With transmitters at Ballycastle, Divis, Enniskillen, Kilkeel, Larne, Londonderry, Newry and Portrush, more than 99 per cent of the population of Northern Ireland are within the reception area of B.B.C-1. At present B.B.C-2 and colour television are transmitted only from Divis (serving some two-thirds of the population), but work is proceeding on further micro wave feeder links to the north-west and the B.B.C plans to extend the second service and colour to the Londonderry and North Antrim area in 1970

HISTORY

During the later war years the governments-in-exile of Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg began to lay plans for an economic and customs union of their countries. Their efforts crystallized in the London Monetary Agreement of October 21st, 1943. A firm exchange value was needed between the Belgian franc and the Dutch florin; the pre-war gold parity of 16.52 Belgian francs to one Dutch florin was agreed on, as well as a scheme of reciprocal credits between the two countries. There was also agreement on the need for continual consultation and for the co-ordination of such measures as each country felt compelled to take in their respective capital markets.

The London Customs Convention of September 5th, 1944, marked a further step forward. The principle was established of reciprocal tariff abolition, to lead in the first place to a "tariff community", which in its turn would be a preliminary step towards a full customs, and eventual economic union. Methods of procedure were established and three committees set up—the Administrative Customs Committee, the Administrative Foreign Trade Committee and the Committee for Trade Agreements. A tentative tariff list was drawn up, and provision made for withdrawal at one year's notice.

In the last months of the war Holland was devastated, whereas Belgium and Luxembourg emerged almost unscathed. A combination of factors brought economic prosperity to Belgium immediately after the war, and because of this discrepancy in recovery rates the envisaged Customs Convention could not be applied immediately. In March 1947 the first Hague Protocol was signed; the Customs Convention was given its final form and a General Secretariat established in Brussels. The Customs Union came into force on January 1st, 1948.

OPERATING THE UNION

A further step forward was made by the Pre-Union Agreement of October 15th, 1949. Among other provisions, three stand out as particularly important; these laid down the principles of progressive liberalization of exchange trade between the three partners, the systematic co-ordination of commercial and monetary policies with regard to other countries and the preparation of a unified system of foreign trade negotiation. In spite of these advances, Benelux ran into difficulties in the following year, 1950, largely arising from the war in Korea, to which the economies of Belgium and Luxembourg on the one hand and of the Netherlands on the other reacted sharply and differently. In the Netherlands the deficit in payments and gold reserves increased; in Belgium and Luxembourg gold reserves rose and the payments surplus grew to such a size as to be unhealthy. Wages and prices in the Netherlands were still at that period abnormally low; in the other two partners they rose.

In 1951 and 1952 the whole Benelux structure was in danger of breakdown, but was saved by the strenuous efforts of the three Governments, which were put into concrete and effective form by the important Hague Protocol of July 24th, 1953, the Commercial Protocol of December 9th, 1953, and the agreement on the liberalization of capital movements of July 8th, 1954. The Hague Protocol of July 1953 embodied agreements on the stabilization and adjustments of wages and rents in the three partners and the recognition of the principle that social legislation must be co-ordinated in order to avoid excessive differences between social charges which might adversely affect cost prices and the competitive positions of the three countries. The Commercial Protocol was complementary to this agreement. It laid down the guiding aim of maximum trade combined with maximum freedom, but emphasized the necessity of consultation in the case of export promotion, as well as joint action whenever complications arose with trade partners who refused reciprocity.

A convention providing for the free movement of labour was signed on June 7th, 1956, which was clarified and expanded by a further agreement on March 20th, 1957, while a protocol defining the procedure to be followed with regard to public tenders and government purchases was signed on July 6th, 1956, and came into force on August 29th, 1958.

By 1956, 96.5 per cent of the trade between the three partners was free, and of the remaining 3.5 per cent, 3.33 per cent was accounted for by food and agricultural products. Agriculture, as in all plans such as Benelux, had proved to be the most intransigent problem. In this sphere the Netherlands have a superior position, with a large export trade and low costs. In Belgium and Luxembourg the position is reversed, with a high import rate and high costs. Some price equalization duties are charged on Netherlands agricultural products exported to Belgium and Luxembourg. These duties are levied by the Netherlands Government, of which half are handed over to Belgium and Luxembourg for the development and improvement of their agriculture and half are retained by the Netherlands and devoted to the rationalization of their own agriculture.

SINGLE TRADING UNIT

One of the most significant dates in the evolution of Benelux is January 26th, 1956. On that date the Organisation for European Economic Co-operation announced that henceforth Belgium, Luxembourg and the Netherlands were to be regarded as one country for all purposes of inter-European trade. In January 1955, O.E.E.C. had raised its compulsory trade liberalization requirements to 90 per cent between member countries, the Benelux Governments presented a unified single list applying to all three of them and covering 95.6 per cent of their imports from other member countries. Consequently, O.E.E.C. could now regard the three as one.

ECONOMIC UNION TREATY

The Benelux Treaty was signed in February 1958, and came into force in November 1960. By the Treaty, all trade agreements with outside countries were to be concluded by Benelux as an entity from January 1961. By November 1963, all tenders issued by national, provincial or local authorities were to be made accessible to tenders of all three countries. November between the produce, must be eliminated.

The Benelux Economic Union's main aims are to raise prosperity by co-ordinating national economic policies, by pursuing a common foreign trade policy, and permitting the free movement of persons, goods, capital and services. Unlike EEC the Benelux Economic Union is not a supra-national institution. Its institutions are based on those which grew up empirically within the Benelux Customs Union.

RESULTS

Co-operation between the Benelux countries has resulted in the area becoming the first completely free labour market. Capital movement as well as services have been made almost completely free. A number of restrictions still exist as to the free movement of goods. Strenuous efforts are being made towards the abolition of these restrictions through the harmonization of national legislation, through a Convention on mutual recognition.

There is continuous co-ordination of economic, financial and social policies and the adoption and pursuit of a common policy on economic relations with third countries and on relative payments.

THE TREATY OF ECONOMIC UNION

The Treaty consists of 100 Articles and is valid in the first instance for fifty years.

1. DEFINITION OF PRINCIPLES

The main aim of the Economic Union is to raise the prosperity of the people by realizing the free mutual movement of persons, goods, services and capital, the co-ordination of national economic policy and the pursuance of a common foreign trade policy.

All nationals of the three member countries are free to move anywhere within the territory of the Union and to enjoy in the other two countries the same rights and privileges as are accorded to the nationals of those countries, with regard to freedom of movement, residence and establishment, the exercise of economic and professional activities, capital transactions, labour conditions, social provisions, dues, taxes and legal protection. Trade between the three countries is freed from all import duties and from all restrictions of a qualitative, quantitative or currency nature. This free intercourse must neither be unduly impeded by non-economic or non-financial measures, although controls and statistical inspections at frontiers will not be considered as restrictions within the meaning of the Treaty. Capital movements are also free and ex-

VATICAN CITY STATE

(CITTÀ DEL VATICANO)

HISTORICAL NOTE

For a period of nearly a thousand years, dating roughly from the time of Charlemagne to the entry of the Italians into Rome at Porta Pia, Sept. 20, 1870, the Papacy held temporal possessions. During the process of unification the Kingdom of Italy gradually absorbed these possessions of the Pope, the States of the Church, which stretched from sea to sea across the middle of the peninsula, the process being completed by the entry into Rome of King Victor Emmanuel's troops in 1870. From 1860 to 1870 many attempts had been made to induce the Pope to surrender his temporal possessions; but regarding them as a sacred trust from a higher Power, to be guarded on behalf of the Church, he replied constantly "Non possumus." After the entry of the Royal Army into Rome he retired into the Vatican, whence no Pope issued thereafter until the ratification of the Lateran Treaty of February 11th, 1929. By the Law of Guarantees of May 1871, Italy attempted to stabilize the position of the Papacy, by recognizing the Pope's claim to use of the Palaces of the Lateran and the Vatican, the Papal villa of Castelgandolfo, and their "gardens and annexes," and to certain privileges customary to Sovereignty. This unilateral arrangement was not accepted by Pius IX, and his protest against it was repeated constantly by his successors. Until the ratification of the Lateran Treaty in 1929, relations between the Vatican and the Quirinal had changed little since the passing of the Law of Guarantees in 1871.

The Papal protest, in principle, apart from any consideration of material spoliation, was based on the Pontiff's claim for Sovereign liberty and independence, and for such a guarantee of them, both actual and apparent, as was necessary for the exercise by the Papacy of its spiritual mission and authority throughout the world. Of this it was deprived by the restriction of the Temporal Power. As things stood until 1929, the liberty and independence of the Pope was incomplete, and, lacking juridical guarantees, was at the mercy of the Italian Government. The passing of the years eliminated much of the original bitterness. In particular, Italians came to have a better understanding of the Papal claim and protest, and to realize that the position given to the Pope under the Law of Guarantees fell short in many respects of the full Sovereignty which it was necessary, from the Catholic standpoint, that he should exercise. The original aloofness, too, of Italian Catholics from national affairs was progressively modified.

The attitude of the Italian Government towards religion, the Church, and the Papacy, changed little by little, culminating in the Lateran Treaty of 1929.

Under the terms of the Lateran Treaty the Holy See was given full use of property rights in and exclusive power and sovereign jurisdiction over the Vatican State, the boundaries of which the Treaty determined. Besides the grounds used by the Pope since 1870, these boundaries were made to embrace certain extra-territorial possessions which formerly belonged to the Italian State, the whole area comprising about 160 acres. So that the world might know that the object in acquiring territory was not political power or royal splendour, the State was kept within these small limits at the express wish of the Pontiff. In international affairs the Vatican State stands as neutral and inviolable territory. Its subjects, who number about 300, most of them employees of the Vatican and their families, are voluntary subjects, possessing freedom to depart from the State at will. A special Vicar-General, assisted by a parish priest, has charge of its spiritual affairs. In 1929, for the first time in history, direct diplomatic relations between the Holy See and the Kingdom of Italy were established.

During the 1939-45 war the neutrality of the Pope and Vatican was respected by all combatants.

The new Italian Constitution of 1947 reaffirmed adherence to the Lateran Treaty of 1929.

The accession of John XXIII in 1958 marked a radical change in the approach of the Papacy to contemporary problems. In 1962 he convened the Second Vatican Council to promote reconciliation and unity among the Christian Churches. His teachings in the encyclicals Mater et Magistra in 1961 and Pacem in Terris in 1963 revealed a rational and humane approach to international and religious questions and aroused great interest in both East and West. Pope John's successor, Paul VI, pledged himself to continue his predecessor's work. In January 1964 he visited the Holy Land, thus becoming the first reigning Pope to do so in the history of Christianity, and in December 1964 attended the Eucharistic Congress in India. In October 1965 Pope Paul spoke at the opening session of the United Nations General Assembly in New York, and in 1966 visited the flood-stricken city of Florence. In 1967 the Pope visited Turkey and had amicable conversations with the Orthodox Patriarch and in 1968 he visited Bogotá, capital of Colombia. During 1969 the Pope went to Geneva to speak at the fiftieth anniversary conference of the International Labour Organisation, and to Uganda where he took part in ceremonies in honour of the African Martyrs. The more important of the teaching encyclicals issued by Pope Paul include Populorum Progressio, concerning the peoples of developing countries, and Humanae Vitae, issued in July 1968, pronouncing the Pope's decision to continue the Roman Catholic Church's ban on artificial birth control.

In 1966 the first women were appointed to the previously all-male curia. There are now several women members.

Since 1967 the Curia has been undergoing reforms which include a greater participation by the laity, appointment of bishops as full members of the Sacred Congregations, and an increase in non-Italian appointments in order to internationalize the Curia. A decree issued in March 1968 abolished hereditary offices in the Papal Court, formerly held by certain members of the Roman nobility. A consultative body of twenty-four Italian lay experts was instituted to advise the five cardinals responsible for administration of the Vatican. Eight of its members are noblemen, and two are women.

GOVERNMENT

THE CENTRAL GOVERNMENT

The central government of the Catholic Church in Rome is vested in the Pope, who is supreme, and in the College of Cardinals. Canonically speaking, the Cardinals are never absent from his Holiness's side except by special permission. Actually many of them are engaged in pastoral work, which they carry on as Archbishops and Bishops in all parts of the world, but there are others who remain in Rome as the Pope's immediate advisers and these are styled Cardinals "in Curia." The Sacred College of Cardinals derives from its earliest days, when the city and, later, the neighbourhood, were apportioned among a number of bishops, priests and deacons. Until the reign of Pope John XXIII, the number of Cardinals was limited by custom, but not by law, to seventy, though there were frequently less than that number. There are now 131 Cardinals. There are six Cardinal Bishops who are in titular charge of the seven suburban sees of Rome—Palestrina, Sabina, Porto and Santa Rufina, Albano, Velletri, Frascati and Ostia; this latter is usually held by the Dean of the Sacred College in addition to his own see.

At the last consistory four Oriental Patriarchs were also elected Cardinal Bishops. Cardinal Priests hold titular churches in Rome, the origins of which go back to the earliest times. The administration of the affairs of the Church is carried out through a number of Sacred Congregations, each under the direction of a Cardinal, and through Tribunals, Offices, Commissions and Secretariats for special purposes. The Pope's representative in the ecclesiastical administration of the See of Rome is the Cardinal Vicar. His representative in affairs of ordinary administration, in the Sacred Council for the Public Affairs of the Church and in matters of Briefs to Princes, that is, in the communications with the Catholic and the outside world, is the Cardinal Secretary of State.

A general reform of the Curia became effective in 1968, with a reduction in the number of Sacred Congregations, the creation of three new organs and the reconstruction of the Secretariat of State. In May 1969 the Sacred Congregation of Rites was divided into two Congregations—one for Divine Worship and the other for the Causes of Saints.

THE SUPREME PONTIFF

His Holiness, Pope PAUL VI, GIOVANNI BATTISTA MONTINI, the 264th Roman Pontiff; b. at Concesio, Brescia, September 26th, 1897; accession June 21st, 1963. Bishop of Rome, Vicar of Christ, Successor of the Prince of the Apostles, Supreme Pontiff of the Universal Church, Patriarch of the West, Primate of Italy, Archbishop and Metropolitan of the Province of Rome, Sovereign of the Vatican City State.

JUDICIAL SYSTEM

The Isle of Man is, for legal purposes, an independent sovereign country under the British Crown with its own Legislature and its own Judiciary administering its own common or customary and statute law. The law of the Isle of Man is, in most essential matters, the same as the law of England and general principles of equity administered by the English Courts are followed by the Courts of the Isle of Man unless they conflict with established local precedents. Her Majesty's High Court of Justice of the Isle of Man is based upon the English system but modified and simplified to meet local conditions. Justices of the Peace are appointed by the Lord Chancellor of England usually on the nomination of the Lieutenant Governor. Members of the Legislative Council, the High Bailiff and the Mayor of Douglas, and the Chairman of the Town and Village Commissioners are ex-officio J.P.s.

THE CHANNEL ISLANDS

The Channel Islands lie off the N.W. coast of France and are the only portions of the Duchy of Normandy now belonging to the Crown of England, to which they have been attached since the Norman Conquest.

Exports are protected by British tariff barriers. The citizens of the Channel Islands enjoy tax sovereignty and imports are free of British purchase tax. Income tax is low at 4s. in the pound.

In addition to the U.K. public holidays, the Channel Islands also celebrate January 1 (New Year's Day), May 9 (Liberation Day).

JERSEY

Jersey, the largest of the Channel Islands, is situated to the south-east of Guernsey, from which it is separated by 17 miles of sea.

THE CONSTITUTION

The Lieutenant-Governor and the Commander-in-Chief of Jersey is the Personal Representative of the Sovereign, the Commander of the Armed Forces of the Crown, and the channel of communication between Her Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom and the Insular Government. He is appointed by the Crown, and is entitled to sit and speak in the Assembly of the States, but not to vote.

right of dissent and a casting vote

The Deputy Bailiff is appointed by the Crown and, when authorised by the Bailiff to do so, may discharge any function appertaining to the office of Bailiff.

The Government of the Island is conducted by Committees appointed by the States. The States consist of 12 Senators (elected for six years, six retiring every third year), 12 Constables (triennial), and 28 Deputies (triennial), all elected under universal suffrage, by the people. The Dean of Jersey, the Attorney-General and Solicitor-General are appointed by the Crown and are entitled to sit and speak in the States, but not to vote. Permanent laws passed by the States require the sanction of Her Majesty in Council but Triennial Regulations do not.

The official language is French, but English is the language in daily use.

RADIO

Radio Vatican: Vatican City and Santa Maria di Galeria; Gen. Man. GIACOMO MARTEGANI, s.j.; Dir. of Programmes G. BLAJOT, s.j.

Radio Vatican was founded in 1931 and situated within the Vatican City. A new transmitting centre, inaugurated by Pius XII on October 27th, 1957, has been added and is located at Santa Maria di Galeria, about twelve miles north-west of the Vatican. Under a special treaty between the Holy See and Italy the site of this new centre, which covers about 1,037 acres, enjoys the same extra-territorial privileges as are recognized by international law to the diplomatic headquarters of foreign States

The station operates an all-day service, normally in thirty-one languages, but with facilities for broadcasting in at least twelve other languages on special occasions. Latin is also used extensively.

The purpose of the Vatican Radio is to broadcast Papal teaching, to provide information on important events in the Catholic Church, to express the Catholic point of view on such problems as touch upon religion and morality, but above all to form a continuous link between the Holy See and all Catholics scattered throughout the whole world

There is no television service (February 1970).

YUGO

INTRODUCT

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

Yugoslavia has a long western coastline on the Adriatic Sea. It is bounded to the north by Italy, Austria and Hungary, by Romania and Bulgaria to the east, by Greece and Albania to the south. The climate is continental in the hilly interior and Mediterranean on the coast, with a steady rainfall throughout the year. The average summer temperature in Belgrade is 71°F (22°C), the winter average being 32°F (0°C). Yugoslavia is a multinational federation of six republics (Serbia, Croatia, Slovenia, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Macedonia and Montenegro). Serbo-Croat is the most widely used language, but Macedonian and Albanian are spoken regionally. Religion is completely separated from the state; about two-fifths of the population belong to the Orthodox Church and one-third to the Roman Catholic Church. There are also a considerable number of Muslims, several other small Christian communities and some Jews. The flag consists of blue, white and red horizontal stripes, with a red star in the centre. The capital is Belgrade.

Recent History

Following the struggle of the Partisans against the German occupation during the Second World War, the Monarchy was abolished and a Republic set up in 1945 under the leadership of Marshal Tito. Refusing to accept Soviet hegemony, Yugoslavia was expelled from Cominform in 1948 after which she formed closer relations with the West. Following the death of Stalin, her relations

Social Welfare

All employed persons and their families are covered by general social insurance schemes. This form of insurance is obligatory and is enforced by law. Insurance provides for health insurance, money and grants in kind in case of sickness, accidents at work or elsewhere, disablement, old-age and death. There were, in 1965, 4,256,000 directly insured persons, with 7,057,299 dependants. The social insurance funds are managed by the insured persons themselves organized in communal, republican and federal social insurance associations. Insured persons are entitled to medical examinations, treatment in case of illness, maternity care, medicines, orthopaedic aids and artificial limbs and other medical services in health institutions and at their homes, including compensation in money during sick leave, rehabilitation and preventive care. The duration of this form of insurance is unlimited. The right to most benefits is acquired on the day of insurance, i.e. the day of employment.

There were in 1968 115,485 hospital beds, 3,532 general clinics and 2,761 dental clinics, as well as a wide network of medical guidance centres, children's clinics and antitubercular dispensaries. The number of doctors has increased from 14,354 (in 1962) to nearly 19,000, but there is still a shortage in some rural areas.

The right to a retirement pension and its amount depend on the total of the contributions paid into the retirement insurance funds and on the period of time over which these payments were made. Insured persons are entitled to a full pension, which is equivalent to 85 per cent of their average monthly income during the last five years of employment, after a 40-year term of employment for men and 35-year term for women regardless of age. The right to a pension is also acquired upon reaching 60 years of age (55 for women) and a 20-year term of employment, or 65 years of age and a 15-year term of employment. Women and young children enjoy special protection under the health insurance scheme. Employed women are entitled to 105 days' paid leave before and after confinement. Confinements in hospital and maternity care are free of charge, whether the woman is employed or not. Women are entitled to shorter working hours until their child is 8 months old.

There is workers' self-management in Yugoslavia. A 42-hour week is guaranteed by the Constitution. All workers are entitled to annual leave which varies from 14 to 30 days, depending on the nature of their work.

Yugoslavia has a Health Convention with Great Britain by which nationals of one country may obtain free medical treatment in the other country.

Education

The entire educational system is organized at republican and local authority level. Elementary education is free and compulsory for all children between the ages of 7 and 15, when Yugoslav children attend the "eight-year school". Various types of secondary education are available to all who are able to qualify, but it is the vocational and technical schools which are most popular and attract the bulk of the country's youth. Alternatively, a child may attend a general secondary school (gymnasium) where he follows a four-year course which will take him up to university entrance. At the secondary level there are also a number of art schools, apprentice schools and teacher-training schools, which train teachers for the elementary schools over a period of 5 years. Those who have attended the technical schools may pursue their education further at one of the two-year post-secondary schools, which were created in response to the needs of industry and the social services for people trained above the secondary level. Higher education is run on a very open system and is available to all who can qualify, irrespective of their school background. Apart from the seven universities and the post-secondary schools, there are also a number of schools of higher learning for teachers who have completed the courses at training schools. There are special facilities for adult education at evening schools, and in part-time studies.

Tourism

Tourist features are the mountains, the great lakes of Scutari, Prespa and Ohrid in the south, the Adriatic resorts, of which Dubrovnik is the best known, the Federal capital of Belgrade and the other republican capitals Zagreb, Sarajevo, Ljubljana, Titograd and Skopje.

Yugoslavia is rapidly expanding her tourist industry which is becoming an important source of foreign currency. The annual growth rate of the industry is between 25-30 per cent and in 1967 some 21 million guest-nights were spent in the country by foreign visitors. The Five-Year Plan envisages 32 million overnight stays by foreign tourists in 1970, and emphasis is being placed on the improvement and enlargement of accommodation facilities.

Sport

The main sports are football, athletics, swimming and basketball.

Public Holidays 1970

January 1 (New Year's Day), May 1 (Labour Day), July 4 (Fighters' Day), November 29 and 30 (Republic Days).

Weights and Measures

The Metric System is in force.

Currency and Exchange Rates

The currency unit is the dinar of 100 paras. In January 1966 the dinar was devalued, the new dinar being equal to 100 at the old rate.

Coins: 5, 10, 20 and 50 paras; 1 new dinar.

Notes: 100, 500, 1,000, 5,000 old dinars; 5, 10, 50, 100 new dinars.

Exchange rate: 30 0 new dinars = £1 sterling

12 5 new dinars = $1 U.S.

U.K. (CHANNEL ISLANDS)—(GUERNSEY)

THE CONSTITUTION

The Lieutenant-Governor and Commander-in-Chief of Guernsey is the Personal Representative of the Sovereign and the channel of communication between Her Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom and the Insular Government. He is appointed by the Crown. He is entitled to sit and speak in the Assembly of the States, but not to vote.

The Bailiff is appointed by the Crown and is President both of the Assembly of the States (the insular legislature) and of the Royal Court of Guernsey and has a casting vote.

The Government of the island is conducted by committees appointed by the States.

The States of Deliberation is composed of the following members:

- (a) The Bailiff, who is President ex-officio.
- (b) Twelve Conseillers elected by the States of Election (elected for six years, six retiring every three years).
- (c) H.M. Attorney-General and H.M. Solicitor-General (Law Officers of the Crown), who have a voice but not a vote.
- (d) Thirty-three People's Deputies elected by popular franchise.
- (e) Ten Douzaine Representatives elected by their respective Parochial Douzaines.
- (f) Two Alderney Representatives elected by the States of Alderney.

The Attorney-General and the Solicitor-General are appointed by the Crown, and are entitled to sit and speak in the States, but not to vote.

Projets de Loi (Permanent Laws) require the sanction of Her Majesty in Council.

The function of the States of Election is to elect persons to the offices of Jurat and Conseiller. It is composed of the following members:

- (a) The Bailiff (President ex-officio).
- (b) The 12 Jurats or "Jures-Justiciers".
- (c) The 12 Conseillers.
- (d) The 10 Rectors.
- (e) H.M. Attorney-General and H.M. Solicitor-General.
- (f) The 33 People's Deputies.
- (g) Thirty-four Douzaine Representatives.
- (h) Four Alderney representatives for the election of Conseillers only.

Meetings of the States and of the Royal Court formerly conducted in French, are now conducted in English, but the proceedings in both are begun and ended in French. English is the language in common use but the Norman patois is often heard in the country parishes.

BENELUX

change of services are subject to the same principles as that of merchandise. Any distortion of competitive conditions are forbidden, lest they should impede the development of mutual free trade.

The three governments engage themselves to consult jointly on matters of economic policy in order to create the necessary conditions for full economic integration. Furthermore, they will also consult each other in order to determine the Union's policy at international meetings and in all matters concerned with regional economic integration or matters relating to foreign countries, in so far as these matters affect the purposes of the Union. There will also be a common policy with regard to foreign trade and payments and a common tariff in respect of import and other duties.

The Economic Union does not include a monetary union, but certain monetary rules are laid down, particularly that policy with regard to rates of exchange must be formulated by consultation. It is further provided that should the vital interests of a member country be in danger, the Committee of Ministers may deviate from the provisions of the Treaty.

2. INSTITUTIONS OF THE UNION

These are listed as the Committee of Ministers, the Consultative Inter-Parliamentary Council, the Council of Economic Union, the Committees and Special Committees, the Secretariat-General, the Joint Services, the Arbitration Tribunal and the Economic and Social Consultative Council (see the section on Organization above).

3. SPECIAL PROVISIONS

This section elaborates certain principles laid down in Part I, and also de-limits certain fields in which the Committee of Ministers may take binding decisions and further provides that the principles of the Treaty shall be effected by special agreement in certain cases.

4. GENERAL PROVISIONS

The main provisions of this part are that the scope of the Treaty is limited to the territories of the member countries in Europe, though the interests of Belgian and Netherlands overseas territories should be safeguarded in foreign trade agreements; and that the Treaty should be valid for a period of fifty years, subject to tacit extension by periods of ten years; the Treaty may be revoked by any member country on one year's notice.

JUDICIAL SYSTEM

The structure of the judicial system in Yugoslavia is set out in the Constitution of 1953 which states that judicial functions are to be discharged within a uniform system and that the jurisdiction of the courts shall be established and altered only by law. In general, court proceedings are conducted in public (exceptionally the public may be excluded to preserve professional secrets, public order or morals) in the national language of the region in which the court is situated. Citizens who do not know the language in which the proceedings are being conducted may use their own language.

The judicial system comprises courts of general jurisdiction, i.e. municipal courts, county courts, republican supreme courts, and supreme courts of autonomous regions (which decide on appeals against the decisions of county courts), the Supreme Court, and courts of specialized jurisdiction established to hear definite cases. Economic cases and other legal matters of concern to the economy are heard by economic courts with the Supreme Economic Court at the head, and criminal offences committed by military persons or offences in any way connected with service in the army are heard by military courts with the Supreme Military Court at the head. Courts of arbitration, arbitration commissions, conciliation councils and other institutions may be set up to settle disputes between citizens or organizations.

Judges are elected or dismissed by the Assembly of the particular Republic and lay judges are elected or dismissed by the assembly of the particular district or town.

The powers of the Constitutional Court of Yugoslavia and the Supreme Court are set out in the Constitution.

Constitutional Court of Yugoslavia. Decides on the conformity of laws with the Constitution.

President: BLAŽO JOVANOVIĆ.

Number of members: 10.

Supreme Court of Yugoslavia. This is the highest organ of justice in Yugoslavia. It decides on appeals against decisions of supreme courts of the Republics and supreme courts of autonomous regions, and gives guidance on the application of federal laws. Judges are elected or dismissed by the Federal Chamber of the Federal Assembly of S.F.R.Y.

President of the Supreme Court of Yugoslavia: ILIJA DOŠEN.

Number of members: 14.

BANKING

The Yugoslav credit and banking system is based on the provisions of the Constitution, of the Law on Banks and Credit Operations (1965), and of the Law on the National Bank of Yugoslavia (1965), and other legislation relating to money and credit. The National Bank is the central bank of Yugoslavia and its powers and obligations are determined by law. Its functions include the issue of money, provision of credit to banks and government authorities, control of credits and bank activities, recommendation of legislation relating to the foreign exchange system and its implementation, management of gold and foreign exchange reserves, control of foreign exchange operations and other special activities.

There are three categories of business banks in Yugoslavia: investment banks, commercial banks and mixed (investment-commercial) banks. At the end of March 1968 there were 39 commercial banks, 36 mixed banks and 9 investment banks. Almost all business banks have branch offices or agencies and there is a total of 450 bank units operating in the country at present. There are no independent savings banks, although these are permitted by the law.

Payments operations, with the exception of external payments (which are handled by the National Bank), are performed by the Social Accounting Service, which keeps the accounts of all working organizations and carries out a number of other duties. It has 383 operating units. Since 1967 certain business banks have been permitted to carry out payments and credit operations from abroad with the

YUGOSLAVIA—(THE CONSTITUTION, THE GOVERNMENT)

Articles 239-240 describe the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court.

Articles 241-251 describe the jurisdiction and composition of the Constitutional Court. It consists of a president and ten judges elected for a term of eight years by the Federal Assembly. It decides on the conformity of laws with the Constitution, on the conformity of laws of the federal republics with the federal law and resolves disputes on the rights and duties and conflicts of jurisdiction.

Articles 252-257 deal with National Defence and the Yugoslav People's Army, reaffirm the duty of all citizens to defend their country and undertake military service, and draw attention to the fact that high treason is a crime against the people and is punishable as a grave criminal offence.

III. TRANSITIONAL AND CONCLUDING PROVISIONS

Articles 258-259 state that a special constitutional law shall be enacted to implement the Constitution and to provide for transition to its application. The Constitution shall be promulgated by the Federal People's Assembly.

AMENDMENTS

In April 1967 six amendments were adopted, affecting the Council of Nationalities, the Federal Executive Council and certain high offices of state.

In December 1968 thirteen additional amendments were adopted. Their main effect was to enhance the status of the autonomous provinces (Vojvodina and Kosovo), to delegate Chamber of Nationalities with 140 deputies delegated to represent republican and provincial interests, which replaced the former Federal Chamber. A directly elected Socio-Political Chamber was substituted for the former Organizational-Political Chamber. The other three chambers of working communities continue to be elected indirectly as in the past. The four chambers, other than that of Nationalities, continue to be composed of 120 deputies each.

TRANSPORT

RAILWAYS

Zajednica Jugoslovenskih Železnica (Community of Yugoslav Railways): Nemanjina 6, P.O.B. 553, Belgrade; Gen. Man. VANJA VRANJICAN.

Railways in Yugoslavia are state-owned. The total length of track is 10,688 km. A reconstruction and modernization programme, 1964-70, includes the electrification of the Sarajevo-Ploče line.

ROADS

There is now a network of good all-weather motor roads, covering most of the country and including, in particular, the main inland route through Ljubljana, Zagreb, Belgrade, Niš and Skopje to the Greek frontier, the Adriatic highway linking Rijeka, Split, Dubrovnik and Titograd, and a number of intermediate roads. Road building continues.

MOTORISTS' ORGANIZATION

Auto-Moto Savez Jugoslavije-Izvršni odbor (A.M.S.J.): Ruzveltova 18, B.P. 66, Belgrade; f. 1923; Fed. Cttee.; Pres. ČEDO KAPOR; Vice-Pres. RADE BOŠKović; Sec.-Gen. LAZAR LOTVIN; publ. Moto Revija (weekly).

INLAND WATERWAYS

Savezni Sekretarijat za Privredu (Federal Secretariat for Economy): Prvi Bulevar, 104-Beograd.

Navigable waterways are the rivers Danube 588 km., Sava 593 km., Tisa 164 km., Drava 151 km. (for vessels up to 1,500 tons-capacity) and Begej 77 km. (for vessels up to 650 tons-capacity); the canals Veliki bački and Mali bački, 123 km. and 29 km. (for vessels up to 400 tons-capacity).

SHIPPING

The principal ports are Rijeka and Koper in the north, Šibenik, Split and Ploče along the central Dalmatian coast, Dubrovnik and Bar in the south. The rail link between Belgrade and Ploče was completed in 1966 and the port facilities at Ploče are undergoing extensive expansion and modernization, allowing accommodation for vessels of up to 60,000 tons. A direct rail link between Belgrade and Bar is under construction, to provide at Bar a third major outlet to the Adriatic. The largest port is Rijeka, which handles about six million tons a year. By 1968, Ploče was handling around two million tons, against only 750,000 tons in 1964.

Jugolinija (Yugoslav Shipping Line): Rijeka, P.O.B. 379; Man. Dir. JURE VUKASOVIĆ; cargo and passenger services from Adriatic to North Europe, North America, South America, Levant, Iran, Iraq, India, Pakistan, Burma, Gulf of Mexico and Japan; fleet of 60 vessels totalling approx. 390,000 tons gross.

Jugoslovenska Pomorska Agencija (Yugoslav Shipping Agency): Knez Mihajlova 22, P.O.B. 298, Belgrade; f. 1947; ship brokers and chartering agents for Yugoslav and foreign vessels; booking of cargoes for Yugoslav and foreign lines; port agencies in all Yugoslav ports; booking tickets for Yugoslav and foreign passenger lines; brs. Zagreb, Ljubljana, Rijeka, Sarajevo, Skopje, Split, Novi Sad, Dubrovnik, Šibenik, Koper, Ploče, Zadar, Bar, Pula, Bakar, Maribor; Dir. ZORAN MATIČEVIĆ.

Jadranska Linijska Plovidba (Adriatic Coastal Line): Obala Jugoslovensko Mornarice 19, Rijeka; regular passenger and cargo services: Yugoslavia-Greece-Italy-Middle East; car-ferry service Ancona-Zadar and to Yugoslav Islands; cruises in the Mediterranean and elsewhere; Man. Dir. JOSIP SUSANJ.

Jugoslovenska Okeanska Plovidba (Yugoslav Ocean Lines): Kotor; regular service every 15 days between Yugoslav ports and Tampico (Mexico), U.S.A., Italy; Gen. Dir. STAROVIĆ SAVO.

CIVIL AVIATION

Jugoslovenski Aerotransport (JAT) (Yugoslav Airlines): Bulevar Revolucije 17, Belgrade; f. 1947; 2,599 staff; mem. of IATA; services throughout the year from Belgrade to New York, Stockholm, Vienna, Munich, Frankfurt/Main, Paris, London, Prague, Berlin, Rome, Venice, Budapest, Bucharest, Athens, Cairo, Amsterdam, Copenhagen, Milan, Moscow, Warsaw, Zurich, Tunis, Tripoli, Brussels and Beirut; internal services: national carrier for civil transport in Yugoslavia; Dir.-Gen. VIDOMIR KRUNIĆ; Commercial Dir. MIHAJLO PETROVIĆ; Financial Dir. MILOŠ MITIĆ; Technical Dir. DOBRIVOJE MANDIĆ; Operational Dir. ALEKSANDAR MIRKOVIĆ.

Belgrade is served by 27 foreign airlines.
